U.S. Marines, Viets Trap Red Battalion

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Marines and Vietnamese paratroopers caught an estimated battalion of Narth Vietnamese in a giant pincer in the Demilitarized Zone Sunday and reported killing 342 of the enemy. The fighting came as U.S. Jets downed five mare MIGs over Hanoi Saturday and bombed a power plant in the port city of Haiphong.

The Leathernecks made a lightning helicopter assault into the so-called neutral zone Saturday, pushing the Communist troops back into the government troops who had been set up as a blocking force.

The assault pumped another battalion of Marines into the Operation Nut Cracker fighting, where a large combined U.S.-Vietnamese force was attempting to trap an estimated two and perhaps three North Vietnamese regiments.

The new fighting sent Communist casualties inside the DMZ to more than 600. U.S. officials said 50 Marines had been killed and 543 wounded since the offensive started Thursday.

The big air battle over communist North Vietnam Saturday raised to 19 the total of Soviet-made jets gunned down in a week over North Vietnam. At least two of Saturday's kills were supersonic MIG21s—the fastest Communist planes.

The MIG kills Saturday raised to 69 the number of Communist jets downed by American planes.

The United States lost seven jets Friday during raids over Hanoi and all 10 American crewmen were reported killed or missing in one of the blackest days of the air war for the Americans.

The official North Vietnamese News Agency reported eight more American planes shot down in Saturday's raids over the North and said a number of pilots were captured.

U.S. Military spokesmen said Sunday Navy pilots Saturday bombed the Haiphong West thermal power plant, a short distance from North Vietnam's most important docks.

In other air action, U.S. B52s rained tons of bombs in the Central Highlands where elements of the U.S. 4th infantry division tangled with a large-sized North Vietnamese force.

The Communists pounded a multi-company 4th division force with heavy mortar and rocket attacks Saturday night and tried to overrun one position. They were repulsed in heavy fighting.

Jets and artillery zeroed in on the Communist positions about three miles from the Cambodian border and about 210 miles northeast of Saigon.

New Violence Threatening In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist-inspired anti-British demonstrations grew in size and intensity Saturday and fear spread through this colony that reaction against them might trigger street battles between pro-Communist and pro-Nationalist Chinese.

Fighting between the two factions in October 1956 killed 60 persons and wounded more than 240. A Swiss diplomat's wife was burned to death when her car was overturned, drenched with gasoline and ignited.

Anti-Communist posters were pasted on the walls of the Hong Kong post office Saturday. One called Chinese Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung a thief.

After dark, gangs of pro-Communist Chinese teen-agers, led by older persons, roamed streets in the Chinese Wanchai area of Hong Kong Island, smearing buildings and people with red paint. They splashed at least one European with paint, roughed up another and chased a third.

Earlier, pro-Communist demonstrators massed at Government House for the third straight day. They also assembled at the Supreme Court building and other government offices.

The disorders, including four days of rioting in the Chinese Kowloon section, began May 1 after police broke up demonstrations by striking artificial flower workers.

Hong Kong Communists and spokesmen in Red China spurred the outbreaks with demands that the British release all Chinese arrested during the riots, punish the police and guarantee against further "racial supression of Chinese." The Communists also are believed hoping to force a crackdown on Nationalist Chinese activities in this colony on the edge of Red China and to prevent its use by American servicemen on leave from Vietnam.

Saturday's demonstrations began as thousands of Chinese marched to Government House and demanded to see Gov. Sir David Trench. He again refused to meet them or accept their petitions.

For the first time, Communist schools were closed and about half the demonstrators were pupils in school uniforms of blue trousers and white shirts.

State Parishes Ordered Mixed

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Schools in eight Louisiana parishes have been ordered desegregated in line with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling upholding federal desegregation guidelines.

U.S. Dist. Judge E. Gordon West handed down the order, which differed only slightly from the appeals court decree.

Instead of spelling out a school choice form to be sent to parents, the judge's order Friday said: "No pupil's choice of schools, either for initial assignment or for transfer shall be devised for any reason other than overcrowding."

The parishes are Ascension, Iberville, St. Helena, Pointe Coupee, Livingston, West Baton Rouge, East Feliciana and West Feliciana.

The Brown's other son, Larry Leon Brown, is stationed with the U.S. Air Force in Chanute, Ill. where he is tops in his pneumatics class. His wife, Donna, plans to leave Monroe Friday to join him for the summer.

FBI Nabs One Of Most Wanted

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Thomas F. Dorman, one of the FBI's ten most wanted fugitives was arrested Saturday in a wooded area near Grantsburg, Ind.

FBI director J. Edgar Hoover said that Dorman, 35, was charged with "unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for kidnaping" a motorist after Dorman and an accomplice allegedly engaged in a gunbattle with Maryland police as they fled from a robbery.

The FBI said that Dorman's accomplice, Clyde Edward Laws, who was also placed on the ten most wanted list, was captured by federal agents on May 18, at Raytown, Mo.

Dorman, who bears the tattoo "born to lose," was captured unarmed in the woods near a farmhouse in a rural area. The FBI was assisted in the apprehension by the Indiana State Police, and the Crawford County, Ind., Sheriffs office.

Israelis Move Tanks To Egyptian Lines As Crisis Worsens

CAIRO (UPI) —Israel was reported moving tanks to the Egyptian border Saturday night following a move that heightened the possibility of an Egyptian blockade of Israel's key "back door" port of Eilat on the Gulf of Aqaba.

Informed sources in Cairo said Egypt had moved troops into position on the Tiran Strait through which Israeli shipping must pass to reach the Port of Eilat.

In Jerusalem, an Israeli army spokesman announced Saturday night that Israeli defense forces have just completed mobilization following the entrance of more than 50,000 Egyptian troops into the Sinai Peninsula area bordering on Israel.

Informed Israeli sources said Israel sent tanks to its side of the Sinai frontier to face the Egyptian force, which was described as twice as large as the Egyptian forces the Israelis faced in the Sinai Peninsula in 1956.

(An official Israeli announcement also claimed the Syria breached the precarious peace Saturday by sending a sabotage unit into Israel. It said two loads of explosives were found under a culvert on the Beersheba to Arad road in southeastern Israel and blamed the Syrians for the incidents.)

TENSION GREAT

Tension heightened further along the Arab-Israeli borders as U.N. Secretary General Thant announced at U.N. headquarters in New York he would fly to Cairo Monday night for urgent talks on the Middle East crisis.

Thant called the Middle East situation "more menacing" than at any time since the Suez crisis of 1956. He had been scheduled to go the Middle East in several weeks but advanced the trip because of the worsening crisis.

In New York, U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg had a 40-minute conference with Thant and told newsmen afterward the United States considers a United Nations presence in the Middle East vital to the interests of peace.

In Cairo, informed sources said Saturday night the extremist Palestine Liberation Army (PLA) had taken over the Gaza strip from the U.N. peacekeeping force which ceased operations in Egypt and the Gaza Strip Friday at the demand of the United Arab Republic.

At the same time, Egyptian troops and artillery were reported to have moved into commanding positions at the Red Sea end of the Israel border.

During the 1956 Suez crisis, Israeli troops drove deep into the Sinai Peninsula where Egyptian troops are now massing, and captured the strategic straits of the Gulf of Aqaba.

The U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF) had been stationed in the region until Friday, when they were removed at the insistence of U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Israeli officials have warned in the past they would not tolerate interference with their shipping in the narrow gulf. Israel's sole access route to the Red Sea. It would take only two Egyptian destroyers to block the strait.

Government sources said the Egyptian troops and artillery moved into the area soon after Scandinavian troops of the UNFE moved out.

(In Jerusalem, Israeli officials said a blockade of the strait would be contrary to international law. Observers said Israel presumably would have no recourse but to interfere with U.A.R. shipping.

(Israeli sources said at the same time they considered the buildup of Egyptian divisions along the 117 mile desert border with the U.A.R. more threatening than a Gulf of Aqaba incident.)

Aycock's Mind Open On Running

By BILL NEIKIRK

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Lt. Gov. C. C. (Taddy) Aycock confirmed Saturday he is considering withdrawal from the governor's race but he added he hasn't made up his mind.

"Nothing has been settled, said Aycock in a telephone interview. "I have talked to the governor and he has talked to me about it."

But the short-deep-voiced Aycock said he has no deadline set for himself to make a decision about seeking the second spot, either on or off the ticket of Gov. John McKeithen.

Many of his supporters expect him to run as an independent candidate if he decides to seek re-election for lieutenant governor. As an Independent Democrat in 1964, he ran ahead of McKeithen.

"I've been thinking about it, yes," Aycock said when asked directly if he were considering withdrawal to seek a third term as lieutenant governor.

He said since the reports got out he will drop out of the race against McKeithen he and his wife were flooded with telephone calls.

"You would have thought the stock market was broke," Aycock said.

Aycock, an avid fisherman, spent much of his time fishing during the past two days after the legislature adjourned until Monday.

On Thursday, McKeithen said he had "read with interest" the reports of a coalition between himself and Aycock. "I still hope that Lt. Gov. Aycock does not run for governor," he said.

McKeithen forces have for months been spreading the rumor that Aycock would never run. Political gossip of this type is common in races for governor.

The idea is to demoralize the opposition so that gathering campaign funds will be difficult.

McKeithen offered Aycock the second spot on his ticket at a recent news conference. Negotiations between the two men have been under way for several weeks.

Aycock recently had a poll taken, and while there was no public release of the results, it reportedly showed McKeithen well in front. There are reports a second poll has been taken by Aycock supporters.

Gaullists Barely Halt Assembly Censure Vote

PARIS (UPI) — The French National Assembly Saturday night narrowly rejected an opposition censure motion against the Gaullist government after Premier Georges Pompidou charged his leftist opponents were bent on "destruction of our regime."

Socialist Party Secretary General Guy Mollet led the final opposition attack against the Gaullist cabinet in general and against its specific move to the special powers to bypass parliament and legislate by decree for a six-month period.

In a sharp attack on the special powers bill, former Premier Mollet charged the government wanted the decree powers because its policies had pushed France into a bad economic situation.

A small group of police was on hand near the lower house chamber, but there were no demonstrations. Over 10 million Frenchmen staged a general strike Wednesday against the bill which the premier says he needs to promote measures adapting France's economic structures to growing international competition.

Mollet, one of the top officials of the leftist federation, charged De Gaulle violated the spirit of the 1958 Constitution by asking the assembly to surrender its legislative powers for six months only a few weeks after its election last March 12.

Joseph Fontanet, leader of the 41-member Progressand Modern Democrat (PDM) group said the center-right faction will throw its support behind the censure motion because the bill showed the government wanted to bypass parliament.

Only ballots cast against the government counted in the vote in which only the deputies actually present could take part. The motion, filed Thursday, was sponsored by the 121-man leftist federation and 73-man Communist group.

Fontanet said his PDM group's hostile vote Saturday night did not indicate its systematic hostility to the regime. He said his group, which on occasion votes with the majority, wanted to signify to Pompidou its dismay over his refusal to have the planned economic and social measures be first debated by Parliament.

The censure motion was the first filed against four-time premier Pompidou since the formation of his latest cabinet April 4. It was the 12th censure motion ballot of the Fifth Republic.

France barely averted being plunged into a full scale political crisis when Pompidou survived the showdown test with the resurgent leftist and Communist opposition by a margin of only eight votes.

The censure motion was endorsed by 236 members of the 487-seat chamber, where the opposition must muster minimum of 244 votes to topple a cabinet.

Rejection of the censure motion meant the automatic adoption of a bill granting Pompidou full powers to rule France by decree for six months.

Miss Alabama Wins Miss U.S.A. Title

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) —Miss Alabama, Sylvia Louise Hitchcock, a 20-year-old brown-eyed beauty from Tuscaloosa, was crowned Miss U. S. A. tonight.

The brown-haired lass became the recipient of $20,000 in prizes and travel opportunities and will represent the United States in the Miss Universe contest in July.

Miss California, Susan Bradley of Tustin, was the first runnerup, followed by Miss Florida, Cheryl Patton of North Miami Beach; Jody Bonham, Miss Wisconsin of Milwaukee, and Miss Missouri, Karen Hendrix of Independence.

Miss Hitchcock, a trim (36-24-37) 126 pounds, was chosen from 51 girls in the nationally televised (CBS) contest.

Maria Judith Remenyi of California, last year's winner, crowned the new queen.

The other finalists were Mira Chudy, Miss Washington, D.C.; Beverly Lacek of Chicago, Miss Illinois; Miss Maryland, Sandy Cledering of Silver Spring; Miss Nevada, Jacquelne Moore of Las Vegas; Miss Texas, Bonnie Robinson of Houston; Miss Arizona, Judianne Magnusson of Phoenix; Miss Oregon, Maureen Bassett of Beaverton; Miss Pennsylvania, Barbara Woronko of Edwardsville; Miss Tennessee, Nancy Brackhahn of Memphis, and Miss Virginia, Elizabeth Kallmyer of Richmond.

Sixty Per Cent Rain Probability

It might be a good idea to hunt outdoor activities because the weather forecast predicts scattered showers and thunderstorms in the Northeast Area today.

The probability of rain is forecast as 60 per cent today, decreasing to 30 per cent tonight. There should be little or no sunshine today with temperatures in the mid 70's.

A cooling trend should set in tonight and continue through at least Monday. Tonight's lows are predicted to be between 56 and 62.

Saturday's high temperature was 80 and the low was 64. Light rain fell in Monroe Saturday night, but the amount was undetermined at 11 p.m.

Winds today should be from the Northeast 8 to 16 mph.

G. C. Murphy Will Build Store Here

G. C. Murphy Company, a 508-store national variety chain operating in 23 states and the District of Columbia, announced Saturday plans for a modern 32,000-square foot store in the Twin City Shopping Center on Louisville Avenue.

Officials said the store is to front 195 feet on the planned air-conditioned enclosed mall between Montgomery Ward and the existing Twin City center.

The entire development when completed will be a total of 335,000 square feet of store space, including the recently announced Selber Bros. store, according to Melvin Simon & Associates, Inc., owners of the development, and Lon Heuer of Rivers & Heuer, architects.

Details of final design on the proposed Murphy store have not as yet been completed, but will be coordinated with and will complement the contemporary overall design, Heuer said.

Construction and completion of the entire Twin City Shopping Center is contemplated for a grand pre-school opening in the fall of 1968.

The store here will be Murphy's second in Louisiana. The first was opened in Shreve City in Shreveport in 1962.

Service said the decision to open a store in Monroe reflects the "confidence of top Murphy officials in the economic growth and future of this tri-state trading area.

"Adequate parking and the comfort and convenience of the all-season, air-conditioned, weatherized shopping mall will attract customers from a much wider area and the completion of the East-West and North-South major traffic arteries now under construction will materially decrease the customer driving time to Twin City Shopping Center according to our market surveys," Service said.

Tallulah Voters Okay Port Bond

TALLULAH (Special) — The taxpayers of Tallulah overwhelmingly approved a tax to build a port on the Mississippi River here Saturday.

The result of a special election was 755 for and 58 against the measure. The assessed property value of those voting for the issue was $2,700,321 and $746,270 against, with assessments from 19 out of 21 precincts.

The tax for the Port of Tallulah has been supported by the Port Commission with J. M. Gilfoil, president and Herbert Massey, secretary-treasurer.

Ensminger To Be Candidate For Senator

John Ensminger, 33-year-old member of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury, said Saturday he definitely will be a candidate for the Louisiana Senate in the November primary.

"Although I do not wish to make a formal announcement now, I am a candidate for the Senate," Ensminger said. "My platform will be issued later."

But Ensminger, a native of Monroe and graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College, stressed his desire to "serve all the parishes within the new senatorial district" if elected.

Ouachita, Morehouse, West Carroll will compose the district. Two senators will be elected.

"If elected, I will work just as hard for our neighboring parishes as I will for Ouachita," Ensminer said.

A member of the Police Jury for almost four years, Ensminger is an active participant in civic affairs of the Monroe area. He presently is serving as president of the Ouachita chapter of the Northeast State Alumni Association.

Last year he was president of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit and he recently completed a three year term on the board of the YMCA. He is a member of the Monroe Optimist Club, Monroe Jaycees and Monroe Chamber of Commerce.

A family man with three children, Ensminger, resides at 2206 Diane Street, and operates his own insurance firm. He has been in the insurance business for the past nine years.

He is a member of the Covenant Presbyterian Church and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Ensminger of Monroe.

Only Senator Defending Dodd

Sen. Long Recalls Drive To Oust Huey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A lot of people wanted to impeach Huey Pierce Long, including a boyhood friend the Kingfish had placed on the state of Louisiana's payroll.

It was 1929, and Huey had been governor not only one wild year. The Kingfish's boy, Russell, was 11, an age when playmates can be vicious about someone's daddy.

At 48 and the assistant Democratic leader of the Senate, Long still winces at the memory of the impeachment attempt and recalls the disloyalty of Huey's "friend."

"Rightfully or wrong, a boy is raised to love his daddy," Long told UPI. He recalls the incident to illustrate why he is the only senator who has come forward to defend Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., against charges that he tended to bring the body into disrepute by pocketing campaign contributions and double-billing for travel.

As Dodd's defender and chief floor spokesman, Long Friday won an initial round by delaying censure proceedings for three weeks. In doing so, he again embarrassed and angered his boss, Sen. Mike Mansfield, Mont., the Democratic leader.

"Anyway," Long said, "this friend of Huey's came to his office. He told Huey to take the impeachment so he and others wouldn't lose their jobs.

"Of course, I didn't hear about it until later. My mother told me I was never again to talk to Huey's 'friend.'"

The Legislature never did impeach Kingfish, finally voting to adjourn after a chaotic session. The adjournment vote is still disputed. Some say the electric voting system had jammed. Others contend th KVING med. Others contend the Kingfish rigged the machine.

In the U.S. Senate, voting is done by voice roll calls.

It will be up to Long to reverse the odds favoring Dodd's censure. And he may already have started off on the wrong foot.

Mansfield emphasized that he was granting the June 13 starting date because of requests by Dodd, not Long, the instigator of the postponement.

A May 22 opening date had been set very carefully by Senate leaders after checking with all members. But Long said he never was informed on the action. "I was busy with the investment tax credit bill."

Long and Mansfield engaged in a rare and bitter public argument while the tax measure was before the Senate.

Gaullists Barely Halt Assembly Censure Vote

PARIS (UPI) — The French National Assembly Saturday night narrowly rejected an opposition censure motion against the Gaullist government after Premier Georges Pompidou charged his leftist opponents were bent on "destruction of our regime."

Socialist Party Secretary General Guy Mollet led the final opposition attack against the Gaullist cabinet in general and against its specific move to the special powers to bypass parliament and legislate by decree for a six-month period.

In a sharp attack on the special powers bill, former Premier Mollet charged the government wanted the decree powers because its policies had pushed France into a bad economic situation.

A small group of police was on hand near the lower house chamber, but there were no demonstrations. Over 10 million Frenchmen staged a general strike Wednesday against the bill which the premier says he needs to promote measures adapting France's economic structures to growing international competition.

Mollet, one of the top officials of the leftist federation, charged De Gaulle violated the spirit of the 1958 Constitution by asking the assembly to surrender its legislative powers for six months only a few weeks after its election last March 12.

Joseph Fontanet, leader of the 41-member Progressand Modern Democrat (PDM) group said the center-right faction will throw its support behind the censure motion because the bill showed the government wanted to bypass parliament.

Only ballots cast against the government counted in the vote in which only the deputies actually present could take part. The motion, filed Thursday, was sponsored by the 121-man leftist federation and 73-man Communist group.

Fontanet said his PDM group's hostile vote Saturday night did not indicate its systematic hostility to the regime. He said his group, which on occasion votes with the majority, wanted to signify to Pompidou its dismay over his refusal to have the planned economic and social measures be first debated by Parliament.

The censure motion was the first filed against four-time premier Pompidou since the formation of his latest cabinet April 4. It was the 12th censure motion ballot of the Fifth Republic.

France barely averted being plunged into a full scale political crisis when Pompidou survived the showdown test with the resurgent leftist and Communist opposition by a margin of only eight votes.

The censure motion was endorsed by 236 members of the 487-seat chamber, where the opposition must muster minimum of 244 votes to topple a cabinet.

Rejection of the censure motion meant the automatic adoption of a bill granting Pompidou full powers to rule France by decree for six months.

Miss Alabama Wins Miss U.S.A. Title

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) —Miss Alabama, Sylvia Louise Hitchcock, a 20-year-old brown-eyed beauty from Tuscaloosa, was crowned Miss U. S. A. tonight.

The brown-haired lass became the recipient of $20,000 in prizes and travel opportunities and will represent the United States in the Miss Universe contest in July.

Miss California, Susan Bradley of Tustin, was the first runnerup, followed by Miss Florida, Cheryl Patton of North Miami Beach; Jody Bonham, Miss Wisconsin of Milwaukee, and Miss Missouri, Karen Hendrix of Independence.

Miss Hitchcock, a trim (36-24-37) 126 pounds, was chosen from 51 girls in the nationally televised (CBS) contest.

Maria Judith Remenyi of California, last year's winner, crowned the new queen.

The other finalists were Mira Chudy, Miss Washington, D.C.; Beverly Lacek of Chicago, Miss Illinois; Miss Maryland, Sandy Cledering of Silver Spring; Miss Nevada, Jacqueline Moore of Las Vegas; Miss Texas, Bonnie Robinson of Houston; Miss Arizona, Judianne Magnusson of Phoenix; Miss Oregon, Maureen Bassett of Beaverton; Miss Pennsylvania, Barbara Woronko of Edwardsville; Miss Tennessee, Nancy Brackhahn of Memphis, and Miss Virginia, Elizabeth Kallmyer of Richmond.

Sixty Per Cent Rain Probability

It might be a good idea to limit outdoor activities because the weather forecast predicts scattered showers and thunderstorms in the Northeast Area today.

The probability of rain is forecast as 60 per cent today, decreasing to 30 per cent tonight. There should be little or no sunshine today with temperatures in the mid - 70's.

A cooling trend should set in tonight and continue through at least Monday. Tonight's lows are predicted to be between 56 and 62.

Saturday's high temperature was 80 and the low was 64. Light rain fell in Monroe Saturday night, but the amount was undetermined at 11 p.m.

Winds today should be from the Northeast 8 to 16 mph.

Israelis Move Tanks To Egyptian Lines As Crisis Worsens

CAIRO (UPI) —Israel was reported moving tanks to the Egyptian border Saturday night following a move that heightened the possibility of an Egyptian blockade of Israel's key "back door" port of Eilat on the Gulf of Aqaba.

Informed sources in Cairo said Egypt had moved troops into position on the Tiran Strait through which Israeli shipping must pass to reach the Port of Eilat.

In Jerusalem, an Israeli army spokesman announced Saturday night that Israeli defense forces have just completed mobilization following the entrance of more than 50,000 Egyptian troops into the Sinai Peninsula area bordering on Israel.

Informed Israeli sources said Israel sent tanks to its side of the Sinai frontier to face the Egyptian force, which was described as twice as large as the Egyptian forces the Israelis faced in the Sinai Peninsula in 1956.

(An official Israeli announcement also claimed the Syria breached the precarious peace Saturday by sending a sabotage unit into Israel. It said two loads of explosives were found under a culvert on the Beersheba to Arad road in southeastern Israel and blamed the Syrians for the incidents.)

TENSION GREAT

Tension heightened further along the Arab-Israeli borders as U.N. Secretary General Thant announced at U.N. headquarters in New York he would fly to Cairo Monday night for urgent talks on the Middle East crisis.

Thant called the Middle East situation "more menacing" than at any time since the Suez crisis of 1956. He had been scheduled to go the Middle East in several weeks but advanced the trip because of the worsening crisis.

In New York, U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg had a 40-minute conference with Thant and told newsmen afterward the United States considers a United Nations presence in the Middle East vital to the interests of peace.

In Cairo, informed sources said Saturday night the extremist Palestine Liberation Army (PLA) had taken over the Gaza strip from the U.N. peacekeeping force which ceased operations in Egypt and the Gaza Strip Friday at the demand of the United Arab Republic.

At the same time, Egyptian troops and artillery were reported to have moved into commanding positions at the Red Sea end of the Israel border.

During the 1956 Suez crisis, Israeli troops drove deep into the Sinai Peninsula where Egyptian troops are now massing, and captured the strategic straits of the Gulf of Aqaba.

The U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF) had been stationed in the region until Friday, when they were removed at the insistence of U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Israeli officials have warned in the past they would not tolerate interference with their shipping in the narrow gulf, Israel's sole access route to the Red Sea. It would take only two Egyptian destroyers to block the strait.

Government sources said the Egyptian troops and artillery moved into the area soon after Scandinavian troops of the UNFE moved out.

(In Jerusalem, Israeli officials said a blockade of the strait would be contrary to international law. Observers said Israel presumably would have no recourse but to interfere with U.A.R. shipping.

(Israeli sources said at the same time they considered the buildup of Egyptian divisions along the 117-mile desert border with the U.A.R. more threatening than a Gulf of Aqaba incident.)

G. C. Murphy Will Build Store Here

G. C. Murphy Company, a 508-store national variety chain operating in 23 states and the District of Columbia, announced Saturday plans for a modern 32,000-square foot store in the Twin City Shopping Center on Louisville Avenue.

Officials said the store is to front 195 feet on the planned air-conditioned enclosed mall between Montgomery Ward and the existing Twin City center.

The entire development when completed will be a total of 335,000 square feet of store space, including the recently announced Selber Bros. store, according to Melvin Simon & Associates, Inc., owners of the development, and Lon Heuer of Rivers & Heuer, architects.

Details of final design on the proposed Murphy store have not as yet been completed, but will be coordinated with and will complement the contemporary overall design, Heuer said.

Construction and completion of the entire Twin City Shopping Center is contemplated for a grand pre-school opening in the fall of 1968.

Announcement of the Murphy store was made by Siddons S. Service, manager of the Murphy Southwestern Regional Estate Office and vice-president of Morgan & Lindsey, Inc., and Terry Farris, Inc., from the executive offices at 4600 Central Avenue in Monroe.

The store here will be Murphy's second in Louisiana. The first was opened in Shreve City in Shreveport in 1962.

Service said the decision to open a store in Monroe reflects the "confidence of top Murphy officials in the economic growth and future of this tri-state trading area.

"Adequate parking and the comfort and convenience of the all-season, air-conditioned, weatherized shopping mall will attract customers from a much wider area and the completion of the East-West and North-South major traffic arteries now under construction will materially decrease the customer driving time to Twin City Shopping Center according to our market surveys," Service said.

Ensminger To Be Candidate For Senator

John Ensminger, 33-year-old member of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury, said Saturday he definitely will be a candidate for the Louisiana Senate in the November primary.

"Although I do not wish to make a formal announcement now, I am a candidate for the Senate," Ensminger said. "My platform will be issued later."

But Ensminger, a native of Monroe and graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College, stressed his desire to "serve all the parishes within the new senatorial district" if elected.

Ouachita, Morehouse, West Carroll will compose the district. Two senators will be elected.

"If elected, I will work just as hard for our neighboring parishes as I will for Ouachita," Ensminer said.

A member of the Police Jury for almost four years, Ensminger is an active participant in civic affairs of the Monroe area. He presently is serving as president of the Ouachita chapter of the Northeast State Alumni Association.

Last year he was president of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit and he recently completed a three year term on the board of the YMCA. He is a member of the Monroe Optimist Club, Monroe Jaycees and Monroe Chamber of Commerce.

A family man with three children, Ensminger, resides at 2206 Diane Street, and operates his own insurance firm. He has been in the insurance business for the past nine years.

He is a member of the Covenant Presbyterian Church and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Ensminger of Monroe.

Tallulah Voters Okay Port Bond

TALLULAH (Special) — The taxpayers of Tallulah overwhelmingly approved a tax to build a port on the Mississippi River here Saturday.

The result of a special election was 755 for and 58 against the measure. The assessed property value of those voting for the issue was $2,700,321 and $746,270 against, with assessments from 19 out of 21 precincts.

The tax for the Port of Tallulah has been supported by the Port Commission with J. M. Gilfoil, president and Herbert Massey, secretary-treasurer.

Only Senator Defending Dodd

Sen. Long Recalls Drive To Oust Huey

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A lot of people wanted to impeach Huey Pierce Long, including a boyhood friend the Kingfish had placed on the state of Louisiana's payroll.

It was 1929, and Huey had been governor nor only one wild year. The Kingfish's boy, Russell, was 11, an age when playmates can be vicious about someone's daddy.

At 48 and the assistant Democratic leader of the Senate, Long still winces at the memory of the impeachment attempt and recalls the disloyalty of Huey's "friend."

"Rightfully or wrong, a boy is raised to love his daddy" Long told UPI. He recalls the incident to illustrate why he is the only senator who has come forward to defend Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., against charges that he tended to bring the body into disrepute by pocketing campaign contributions and double-billing for travel.

As Dodd's defender and chif floor spokesman, Long Friday won an initial round by delaying censure proceedings for three weeks. In doing so, he again embarrassed and angered his boss, Sen. Mike Mansfield Mont., the Democratic leader.

"Anyway," Long said, "this friend of Huey's came to his office. He told Huey to take the impeachment so he and others wouldn't lose their jobs.

"Of course, I didn't hear about it until later. My mother told me I was never again to talk to Huey's 'friend.'"

The Legislature never did impeach Kingfish, finally voting to adjourn after a chaotic session. The adjournment vote is still disputed. Some say the electric voting system had jammed. Others contend th KVING med. Others contend the Kingfish rigged the machine.

In the U.S. Senate, voting is done by voice roll calls.

It will be up to Long to reverse the odds favoring Dodd's censure. And, he may already have started off on the wrong foot.

Mansfield emphasized that he was granting the June 13 starting date because of requests by Dodd—not Long, the instigator of the postponement.

A May 22 opening date had been set very carefully by Senate leaders after checking with all members. But Long said he never was informed on the action. "I was busy with the investment tax credit bill."

Long and Mansfield engaged in a rare and bitter public argument while the tax measure was before the Senate.

United Givers Fund Appointments Made

Appointment of Bert Root as chairman of the Public Relations Committee of the United Givers Fund, and Eric Wade as associate chairman of the committee was announced Saturday by G. L. Morgan, general campaign chairman of UGF.

"On more occasions than one, these gentlemen have expressed their confidence in the United Givers Fund and the hope that the fund's service would grow to [illegible] the community," Morgan said. "Their work for the UGF in this community effort should be an inspiration for every volunteer in the Campaign."

In their role as leaders of the Public Relations Committee, they will head a group of six sub committees, each devoted to keeping the public informed on the services rendered by the UGF member agencies and the value of a federated Campaign.

Root, former owner of Monroe Glass, Inc. and now retired, is presently serving as chairman of the local United States Selective Service Board, vice-chairman of the Monroe Board of Adjustment, board member and past chairman of the Red Cross, and chairman of the Advancement Committee of the District Boy Scout Council. He serves as a Deacon in the First Presbyterian Church.

Wade is the vice - president of marketing for the Central Savings Bank and Trust Co. He is serving as chairman of the Monroe Convention and Tourist Bureau, and as a board member of the Boy Scouts and YMCA member agencies. He is active in the Rotary Club of Monroe and serves as an Elder in St. John's Christian Church.

Three important phases of the public relations program are related to a better public understanding of the United Givers Fund.

1. Better knowledge of the 13 member agencies of the UGF and the services they render the public.

2. "Fair Share Giving Guide" which has been developed over the past years and represents contributing.

3. Knowledge that the United Givers Fund was established to eliminate the necessity of 13 individual campaigns and combine the entire community voluntary health, welfare, and recreation needs into one drive.

Northeast Workshops Scheduled

Day long community workshops on industrial development will be held in the Monroe area next week with one at Farmerville on May 23 and one in Tallulah on May 24 under the auspices of the Louisiana Department of commerce and industry.

The Farmerville workshop will be conducted at the Union Parish Courthouse under the chairmanship of Derwood Cann of Monroe. The meeting place in Tallulah on the 24th will be the Tallulah Elementary School and James R. Baker of Pineville will act as chairman.

Members of the board and staff of the Department of Commerce and Industry will outline to local business, political, and labor leaders the procedures and techniques involved in preparing for industrial growth.

In addition to the presentations by department of commerce and industry personnel Harry A. Cassady, of Southern Bell and a member of the board of directors for the State Chamber of Commerce will explain the Alert Program, a coordinated effort sponsored by the state chambers of commerce C&I and the Louisiana Municipal Association to help Louisiana Communities upgrade facilities to meet the requirements of industry.

Highlights of the program will be an actual case history in which a representative of an industry recently located in Louisiana will outline the procedures his company followed in making its site selection. He will explain the factors evaluated and looked for in each community considered for the site and will state specific reason for the choice made.

Following this case history a representative of the community in which the industry is located will report on the action taken by local leaders in preparation for a visit by the industry as located will report on the action taken by local leaders in preparation for a visit by the industry's site seeking team, what special actions if any had to be taken after the industry decided to locate in the community, and the impact the new industry has had on the everyday life of local citizens and the community as a whole. W. F. Hackett, executive director, Department of Commerce and Industry, explains the workshops are designed to show local community leaders how they can play an important role in area. "In the final analysis," Hackett says "the local community leaders have the job of selling their city or town as a plant site to industrial representatives. Our state agency can arrange for these industrialists to visit the area but the community must be prepared both physically and mentally to receive industry before

Optimists To Present Sky Divers

Along with many exciting events, the Frist Annual Monroe Air Show and Fly-In will feature a daredevil team of skydivers. This expert team of parachuters will constitute a rare treat to the people of Monroe, as skydiving is seldom seen in this area. The First Annual Monroe Air Show and Fly-In is sponsored by the Monroe Jaycees, the Greater Monroe Optimist Club and the Aero-Nutz (a Monroe based sports aviation club).

The "Ark-La-Tex Skydivers" exhibition team was formed in January of 1963 to promote sports parachuting in the Ark-La-Tex area. The team is a non-profit organization and have performed at many grand openings, celebrations, and fund members are selected from members of the Ark-La-Tex Skydivers Club that have attained the highest proficiency rating in free fall maneuvers and precision landing. Each of the six men to perform in the Monroe Air Show holds the highest of four possible international ratings. At present, only 1,500 parachuters have this distinction.

Two of the popular maneuvers this time will perform are the two man baton pass and the 3 man baton pass. More thrilling is the maximum track routine in which two men leave the plane simultaneously and through horizontal maneuvering while in descent land on the ground a mile apart.

Finally the exhibition will be topped off by the most difficult stunt of all; the three man star, in which three men leaving the airplane at fifteen second intervals maneuver during free fall back to within an arms reach of each other and clasp hands. This difficult feat calls for precision timing while the men are falling at the rate 176 feet per second.

All jumpers wear smoke bombs attached to their boots for easier visibility at high altitudes, and all jumps will be made from a height of 8,000 to 10,000 feet. After a free fall of 40 to 50 seconds the jumpers will open their chutes at an altitude of 4,800 to 2,000 feet for a slow descent into the target area.

The Ark-La-Tex Skydivers will join the aerobatic exhibition and the staic display of rare and antique planes to make up the First Annual Monroe Air Show and Fly-In at Selman June 11th starting at 12:00.

MANY EXCITING events — such as this one — will be featured at the First Annual Monroe Air Show and Fly-In at Selman Field on June 11. The event starts at noon and is sponsored by the Monroe Jaycees and the Greater Monroe Optimist Club and the Aero-Nutz.

Rapides Jury Names Pair To Council

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — The Rapides Parish Police Jury Friday elected two representatives to the Kisatchie Delta Economic Development Council, a newly formed organization aimed at industrial and economic development of an eight-parish Central Louisiana Area.

Don Rodemacher, chairman of the board of Central Louisiana Electric Company, was named Rapides' representative to the council and Brian Duke of Ward 1 was named to represent the Rapides Police Jury on the council.

Grant, Winn, Vernon, LaSalle, Avoyelles, Catahoula and Concordia parishes will also name two delegates each to the council. The group will meet four times a year and each delegate will have voting power.

The eight-parish district will hire a professional staff. About 65 per cent of the funds for operation of the district will be provided by a federal economic development grant. The remainder will be provided by member parishes.

State K of C Told To Restyle

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana Knights of Columbus were issued a challenge Saturday to recast their organization in the mainstream of the modern world, or see themselves grow obsolete.

The challenge was made by the Most. Rev. Warren L. Boudreaux, auxiliary bishop of Lafayette, who delivered the sermon at a Pontifical Mass which featured the opening day of the order's 62nd annual convention here.

"The spirit of our times tempts men of faith with its materialism, its disbelief, and its wordliness," Bishop Boudreaux said.

The "Ark-La-Tex Skydivers" exhibition team was formed in January of 1963 to promote sports parachuting in the Ark-La-Tex area. The team is a non-profit organization and have performed at many grand openings, celebrations, and fund members are selected from members of the Ark-La-Tex Skydivers Club that have attained the highest proficiency rating in free fall maneuvers and precision landing. Each of the six men to perform in the Monroe Air Show holds the highest of four possible international ratings. At present, only 1,500 parachuters have this distinction.

Two of the popular maneuvers this time will perform are the two man baton pass and the 3 man baton pass. More thrilling is the maximum track routine in which two men leave the plane simultaneously and through horizontal maneuvering while in descent land on the ground a mile apart.

Finally the exhibition will be topped off by the most difficult stunt of all; the three man star, in which three men leaving the airplane at fifteen second intervals maneuver during free fall back to within an arms reach of each other and clasp hands. This difficult feat calls for precision timing while the men are falling at the rate 176 feet per second.

All jumpers wear smoke bombs attached to their boots for easier visibility at high altitudes, and all jumps will be made from a height of 8,000 to 10,000 feet. After a free fall of 40 to 50 seconds the jumpers will open their chutes at an altitude of 4,800 to 2,000 feet for a slow descent into the target area.

The Ark-La-Tex Skydivers will join the aerobatic exhibition and the staic display of rare and antique planes to make up the First Annual Monroe Air Show and Fly-In at Selman June 11th starting at 12:00.

MANY EXCITING events — such as this one — will be featured at the First Annual Monroe Air Show and Fly-In at Selman Field on June 11. The event starts at noon and is sponsored by the Monroe Jaycees and the Greater Monroe Optimist Club and the Aero-Nutz.

Rapides Jury Names Pair To Council

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — The Rapides Parish Police Jury Friday elected two representatives to the Kisatchie Delta Economic Development Council, a newly formed organization aimed at industrial and economic development of an eight-parish Central Louisiana Area.

Don Rodemacher, chairman of the board of Central Louisiana Electric Company, was named Rapides' representative to the council and Brian Duke of Ward 1 was named to represent the Rapides Police Jury on the council.

Grant, Winn, Vernon, LaSalle, Avoyelles, Catahoula and Concordia parishes will also name two delegates each to the council. The group will meet four times a year and each delegate will have voting power.

The eight-parish district will hire a professional staff. About 65 per cent of the funds for operation of the district will be provided by a federal economic development grant. The remainder will be provided by member parishes.

State K of C Told To Restyle

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana Knights of Columbus were issued a challenge Saturday to recast their organization in the mainstream of the modern world, or see themselves grow obsolete.

The challenge was made by the Most. Rev. Warren L. Boudreaux, auxiliary bishop of Lafayette, who delivered the sermon at a Pontifical Mass which featured the opening day of the order's 62nd annual convention here.

"The spirit of our times tempts men of faith with its materialism, its disbelief, and its wordliness," Bishop Boudreaux said.

ANOTHER ADDITION to the Twin Cities Shopping Center in Monroe will be that of the G. C. Murphy Co., a 508-store national variety chain, which announced plans Saturday for a modern, 32,000-square foot store to front 195 feet on the planned air-conditioned enclosed mall between Montgomery Ward and the existing Twin City center. Details of final design on the proposed Murphy store have not yet been completed, but will be coordinated with and will complement the contemporary overall design of the shopping center, it was announced.

in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. These include 112 Morgan & Lindsey Variety Stores in Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas; 44 Terry Farris, Bruners, Morris and Cobb's Department Stores in Texas, in addition to 31 G. C. Murphy Company Stores located from Texas to Florida. There are two Morgan & Lindsey stores and one Terry Farris store in West Monroe; two Morgan & Lindsey stores in Monroe, one downtown on DeSiard Street and the other in the Twin City Shopping Center.

E. E. Latham, president and sales manager of Morgan & Lindsey, said that "having a large store of our parent company in the same center with Morgan & Lindsey will keep us on our toes."

The Murphy Company is a Pennsylvania Corporation, with headquarters in McKeesport, which is the location of the first Murphy Store. G. C. Murphy Stores carry merchandise for all members of the family, officials emphasized. Included is highly specialized regular variety items, apparel and all accessories, home furnishings and accessories.

In order to furnish the latest in style merchandise to its 508 operating units, the Murphy Company has a large Fashion Center in Jersey City, N.J. near the heart of the nation's garment industry. It maintains at its Home Office in McKeesport an extensive merchandise research department. In addition to the 150,000 square foot fully automated warehouse here in Monroe, Murphy maintains a 600,000 square foot warehouse in McKeesport, and both are utilized to provide a steady flow of staple merchandise to all stores.

Total company sales for the year 1966 was $315,033,701 and sales for the first quarter of 1967 were reported as a 7.8 per cent increase over the same period of 1966.

War Crimes Is Defense Of Captain

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Army Capt. Howard B. Levy's attorneys will try to convince a general court-martial board this week that the United States is committing war crimes in Vietnam.

If they fail, Levy faces a possible maximum of 11 years in prison if convicted on charges of disloyalty and disobedience.

The Brooklyn-born physician's attorneys from the American Civil Liberties Union must convince a panel of 10 high-ranking Army career officers. Four have fought in Vietnam.

Levy's court-martial will resume Wednesday in a small wooden building at nearby Ft. Jackson Army Recruit Training Center. The government grudgingly granted the defense a week-long recess to try to collect evidence to prove its contention that Army Special Forces troops are trained to commit "war crimes, genoicde and crimes against humanity."

Levy, 30, is charged with telling enlisted men that Green Beret Special Forces troops are "liars, peasant killers and murderers of women and children." He acknowledges refusing to train Green Beret medics in the basics of diagnosing and treating skin diseases.

His attorneys, in a move apparently unprecedented in international law, base his defense on judgment rendered at Nuernberg following the trials of German officials after World War II. It was held that military officers could be punished for war crimes although they were only carrying out orders of superiors.

Levy claims he had a right to refuse orders to train Green Beret medics because, he contends, they are trained to commit war crimes.

Monroe Boy Hit Riding Bicycle

A seven-year-old Monroe boy received minor injuries when he was struck by an auto Saturday on Crescent Dr., near Pecan St.

Investigating officers said Robert Allen McCaa, 1206 Crescent Dr., was treated at St. Francis Hospital for cuts and bruises and released.

No charges were filed in the accident.

Cycle Wreck Kills Boy

VILLE PLATTE, La. (AP) — A 14-year-old paperboy running his morning route was struck by a car just east of here Saturday and died on the street.

State police said Paul June Landreneau apparently guided his bicycle out of a driveway and into the path of a car driven by Clyde Fontenot on U.S. 167.

Landreneau was the son of Jose Landreneau and Mrs. Lee O'Connor of Ville Platte.

Mississippi Discovers New Field

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new oil field has been found in Adams County by Pan American Petroleum Corp.

Company officials reported the new wildcat well is pumping 110 barrels per day from perforations in the Wilcox sand at 5,736-37 feet.

The new oiler is located in the Pine Ridge area of the county.

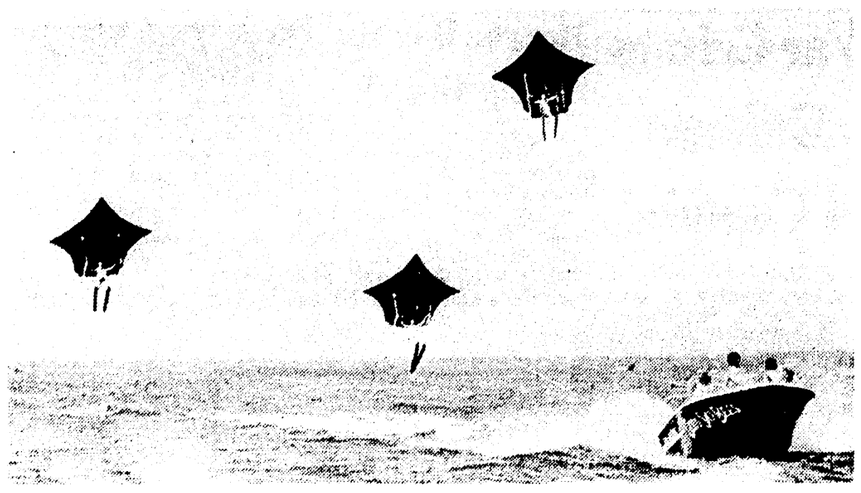
Production tests have commenced at Chevron Oil Company's operation in the Goshen Springs area of Rankin County. Casing has been perforated in several intervals below 15,586 feet to 15,714 in the smackover lime.

High pressure gas shows were encountered while drilling with no information as to the content of the gas.

The venture is located near an abandoned well that logged carbon dioxide gas in the smackover section.

Also in Rankin County at Pelahatchie high interest is being shown Shell and Love's No. 1 Rhodes where oil shows with high pressure gas have been reported at 17,102 feet.

The shows in the well have c



AN AERIAL EXHIBITION of kite flying will highlight the performance here Saturday by the Caddo Ski-Bees of Shreveport. The precision water show will be held in conjunction with a water safety demonstration sponsored by the Twin Cities Optimist Club. Using the Ouachita River as their stage the Ski-Bee show will start at 3 p.m. at the west end of Forsythe Park.

Water Demonstration Scheduled Saturday

The Caddo Ski-Bees will present a demonstration of precision water skiing and kite flying here at 3 p.m. Saturday on the Ouachita River at the west end of Forsythe Park according to Thomas Davenport Jr. of the Twin Cities Optimist Club.

Davenport is program chairman for the club's water safety demonstration to be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Swayze Natatorium in cooperation with the Ouachita Parish Red Cross Chapter.

"The ski show will highlight an enjoyment filled afternoon," Davenport said.

Both the water safety demonstration and the ski show will be open to the public without charge.

The performance of the Shreveport water aggregation will include ski jumping, water ballet, trick runs, human pyramids and clown acts. The show will be climaxed by kite flights. Fifty performers will participate in this show, according to David Stamps, Ski Bee president.

touched off a large scale lease and royalty buying boom in the area and extending into southwestern Scott County.

The recently found Nancy field of Clarke County recorded its first dry hole with placid oil abandoning its No. 2 Ariedge northwest offset to the discovery.

The field was found in February and has two wells producing from the smackover lime at 13,400.

In Smith County southwest gas producing and placid oil are drilling below 15,400 in an effort a mile east of the Tallahala Creek field.

At Tallahala Creek Shell is drilling below 17,000 in its third well in the field. The venture is reported to have logged sand at 15,500 in the cotton valley and is also logging shows in the smackover at 16,000.

Another Shell try in the field is drilling below 11,900 feet.

Wildcat drilling activity in Madison County increased with on test underway and a deep try scheduled. Culbertson and Lacms have set surface casing a half mile east of Flora. The venture has a contract depth of 5,000 feet. Texas Pacific Oil has staked location for a 17,500 foot

Fraternity Names Six To Offices

RUSTON (Special) —Epsilon-Gamma chapter of Kappa Sigma social fraternity at Louisiana Tech recently installed officers for the fall quarter of 1967. They are Gary Gordon, Shreveport, grand master; Bill Hunt, Monroe, grand procurator; Jim Wilson, Shreveport, grand master of ceremonies; Robert Stein; Baton Rouge , grand scribe; Randy Hall, Bossier City, grand treasurer; and Jim Duncan, Winnfield, pledge trainer.

Kappa Sigma had its beginning on the Tech campus on April 7, 1941, when Omega Kappa, a local fraternity formed in 1928, was given a charter and installed as the Epsilon-Gamma chapter of Kappa Sigma. The fraternity's colors are scarlet, white, and emerald green, and its flower is the lily - of - the-valley.

In addition to the regular open houses and parties after the home football games, Kappa Sigma social activities include a spring formal, State Fair, Christmas and Hawaiian parties.

Supper Club To Present Ladies Night

The Paragon Supper Club will be the setting for the Annual Ladies Night Tuesday. The social hour which will begin at 6:30 p.m. will be sponsored by Dowell and Southern Hardware with dinner to follow at 7:15.

Street Fight Kills 33 Men In Manila

MANILA (AP) — Thirty-three members of a political group and one policeman were reported killed and several others wounded in street violence early today in a residential area of suburban Pasay.

Officers said about 20 members of the Lapiang Malaya Freedom Movement surrendered and about 300 others barricaded themselves in their headquarters. The building was ringed by police and an uneasy calm descended on the area.

Authorities said the members had arrived from nearby provinces for a planned demonstration and were camping out near the headquarters.

Bar Gunfight Kills 1, Hurts 2

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — A barroom gunfight killed one man and wounded two others in Lafayette early today.

Jim Conrad, 27, of New Iberia, died several hours after the shootout. The death was attributed to a freak wound, in which a .38 caliber slug struck Conrad in the arm, traveled to the shoulder bone and richocheted down into the heart.

Hospitalized were two brothmond Elias, both of Lafayette.

Company officials reported the new wildcat well is pumping 110 barrels per day from perforations in the Wilcox sand at 5,736-37 feet.

The new oiler is located in the Pine Ridge area of the county.

Production tests have commenced at Chevron Oil Company's operation in the Goshen Springs area of Rankin County. Casing has been perforated in several intervals below 15,586 feet to 15,714 in the smackover lime.

High pressure gas shows were encountered while drilling with no information as to the content of the gas.

The venture is located near an abandoned well that logged carbon dioxide gas in the smackover section.

Also in Rankin County at Pelahatchie high interest is being shown Shell and Love's No. 1 Rhodes where oil shows with high pressure gas have been reported at 17,102 feet.

The shows in the well have touched off a large scale lease and royalty buying boom in the area and extending into southwestern Scott County.

The recently found Nancy field of Clarke County recorded its first dry hole with placid oil abandoning its No. 2 Arledge northwest offset to the discovery.

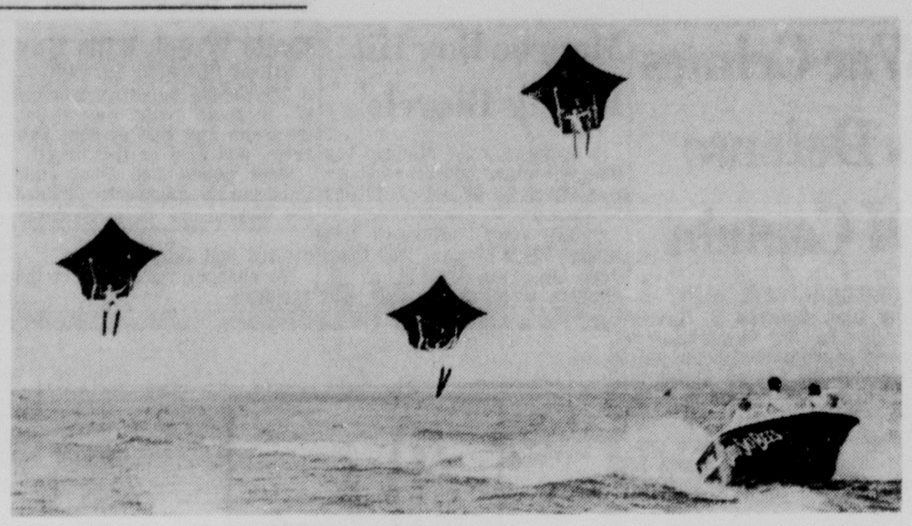
The field was found in February and has two wells producing from the smackover lime at 13,400.

In Smith County southwest gas producing and placid oil are drilling below 15,400 in an effort a mile east of the Tallahala Creek field.

At Tallahala Creek Shell is drilling below 17,000 in its third well in the field. The venture is reported to have logged sand at 15,500 in the cotton valley and is also logging shows in the smackover at 16,000.

Another Shell try in the field is drilling below 11,900 feet.

Wildcat drilling activity in Madison County increased with on test underway and a deep try scheduled. Culbertson and Launius have set surface casing a half mile east of Flora. The venture has a contract depth of 5,000 feet. Texas Pacific Oil has staked location for a 17,500 foot



AN AERIAL EXHIBITION of kite flying will highlight the performance here Saturday by the Caddo Ski-Bees of Shreveport. The precision water show will be held in conjunction with a water safety demonstration sponsored by the Twin Cities Optimist Club. Using the Ouachita River as their stage the Ski-Bee show will start at 3 p.m. at the west end of Forsythe Park.

Water Demonstration Scheduled Saturday

The Caddo Ski-Bees will present a demonstration of precision water skiing and kite flying here at 3 p.m. Saturday on the Ouachita River at the west end of Forsythe Park according to Thomas Davenport Jr. of the Twin Cities Optimist Club.

Davenport is program chairman for the club's water safety demonstration to be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Swayze Natatorium in cooperation with the Ouachita Parish Ped Cross Chapter.

"The ski show will highlight an enjoyment-filled afternoon," Davenport said.

Both the water safety demonstration and the ski show will be open to the public without charge.

The performance of the Shreveport water aggregation will include ski jumping, water ballet, trick runs, human pyramids and clown acts. The show will be climaxed by kite flights. Fifty performers will participate in this show, according to David Stamps, Ski-Bee president.

Fraternity Names Six To Offices

Street Fight Kills 33 Men In Manila

MANILA (AP) — Thirty-three members of a political group and one policeman were reported killed and several others wounded in street violence early today in a residential area of suburban Pasay.

Officers said about 20 members of the Lapiang Malaya Freedom Movement surrendered and about 300 others barricaded themselves in their headquarters. The building was ringed by police and an uneasy calm descended on the area.

Authorities said the members had arrived from nearby provinces for a planned demonstration and were camping out near the headquarters.

Bar Gunfight Kills 1, Hurts 2

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — A barroom gunfight killed one man and wounded two others in Lafayette early today.

Jim Conrad, 27, of New Iberia, died several hours after the shootout. The death was attributed to a freak wound, in which a .38 caliber slug struck Conrad in the arm, traveled to the shoulder bone and richocheted down into the heart.

Hospitalized were two brothmond Elias, both of Lafayette.

Reuther Asks Full, Fair Share

DETROIT (AP) — Walter P. Reuther, United Auto Workers Union president, told the union's Ford Council Saturday, "We will strike unless we get our full, fair share of the economic benefits" reaped by the auto companies.

"We will go to the bargaining table united and determined to go forward," Reuther declared. "We will ask for nothing more than our fair share. We will settle for nothing less."

The council's 300 delegates, representing the 160,000 UAW members in Ford Motor Co. factories, interrupted his speech here, and at 11 other places, with applause. Reuther drew standing ovations at the beginning and the end of his 53-minute talk.

He said the union would not enter this summer's labor contract negotiations, starting in July, predetermined to strike, but he told delegates that if they want to win economic justice "wishing will not make it so."

"The whole history of the labor movement has been a history of struggle," Reuther said. "The great corporations have never been willing to grant us, as a matter of right, that full measure of economic justice.

"It has been won by the workers who were willing to fight for it," he said.

Reuther was asked at a news conference which of the goals on the union's list he deemed essential to economic justice this year. His reply: "All of them—that's why they're on the list."

The council, in the second day of its three-day closed meeting, is tailoring the goals to the needs of Ford workers. It unanimously adopted a resolution Friday asking that Ford be made the prime target in this summer's talks.

The target company will be designated by the UAW probably near the Sept. 5 expiration date of the labor contracts with Ford, General Motors and Chrysler.

$2,200 REWARD

For information leading to the location of these two girls, dead or alive.

Missing from Alexander Springs, in the Ocala National Forest, on the afternoon of Oct. 2, 1966.

PAMELA ANNE NATER

PAMELA ANNE NATER, 20 years old, 5 ft. tall, Weight 115 pounds. Dark brown hair with reddish highlights, brown eyes and freckles across her nose. She has a slight deformity on the fingernail of her right index finger. She was wearing a two piece blue and white bathing suit and a blue and white, print-ish, boys' short-sleeved shirt of Coast or Hagger make.

NANCY LEICHNER

NANCY LEICHNER, 21 years old, 5 ft. tall, Weight 110 pounds. Grey-green eyes and blond hair worn in an upswing shoulder-length shag about. She was wearing a two-piece bathing suit with a navy-blue bottom and a red-and-white, horizontally striped top. She has a very deep tan. A single, tiny amethyst rests in an ear left lobe.

This reward, raised by the families and general public, is held in escrow at the Third City National Bank in Clearwater, Fla. It will be paid without question to any person or persons who can locate the girls, or their bodies.

Persons with such information should contact any law enforcement agency, or the families at 722 Valencia St., Largo — Phone Clearwater 584-3069.

THIS IS the reward poster printed by the parents of Nancy Leichner, 21, and Pamela Nater, 20, after the two girls vanished without trace from the Ocala National Forest near Tavares, Fla., last Oct. 2. A seven-month investigation has failed to turn up a single trace of the attractive young women but it is still going on. (AP Wirephoto)

Girls Still Missing After Seven Months

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) — "Look for a tree with a big limb sticking out," the letter said. "The sun's shadow will fall across one grave in the morning and the other in the afternoon."

This kind of mail continues to reach the Lake County Sheriff's Office here seven months after the disappearance of two young women without a single trace or clue.

It appears Nancy Leichner, 21, and Pamela Ann Nater, 20, simply vanished the afternoon of Oct. 2, 1966.

LAST SUN

Nancy, a sunny, green-eyed blonde, and Pamela, a striking brunette, were last seen walking a nature trail on a Sunday outing in the vast Ocala National Forest at Alexander Springs, where they had gone with a skindiving group. Suddenly, they were gone.

They wore bathing suits. The rest of their clothing and their purses remained with the group near the edge of the springs. Only the men swimmers had entered the icy clear water that day.

Bennie Dauterman, 22, Pamela's steady for two years, and Craig Mackie, 22, Nancy's date, immediately began what was to become one of the most exhaustive manhunts in the state's history.

Experienced woodsmen, Boy Scouts, men on horseback, Navy helicopters and volunteers joined in an inch-by-inch search of the densely wooded area surrounding the springs.

The search didn't turn up so much as a bent twig. Bulletins went out all over the southeastern United States — nothing. Television appeals — nothing. Rewards — nothing.

"You simply can't resign yourself to the thought of your only daughter being dead," said Mrs. Herman Nater of Clearwater. "There is no body. It's just crazy.

"I know my daughter would never run away. If the Lord Himself came down and told me that I wouldn't believe Him."

Mrs. Nater and her husband, Herman, a department store executive, have offered $10,000 for the return of their daughter alive and even turned to clairvoyants for clues.

"Our theory is that the girls were abducted from the parking lot at the springs and killed at that time. There are acres and acres in that park where nobody ever sets foot," she says.

Budget Fight May Hit House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hard line adopted by the House on what Republicans repeatedly have attacked as a budget gimmick could spell more trouble for a federal budget which is becoming more complex with each passing week.

The House, at Republican insistence, curbed by $235 billion the government's power to raise money by selling shares, called participation certificates, in pools of government-owned mortgages and loans.

The net result, if it holds up, would be to increase the budget deficit by $2.35 billion for the fiscal year which begins July 1 if all other budget items remained the same—which they apparently won't.

Treasury officials said Saturday the administration is certain to ask the Senate to reverse the action and grant full power to sell PCs which are much like stock certificates.

Although $2.35 billion is relatively small compared with the entire budget, it would exceed the amount the administration plans to spend for aid to elementary and secondary education in the year beginning July 1.

The House curb could be enough to produce in fiscal 1968 the biggest peacetime administrative budget deficit in history. The peacetime deficit record is a little over $112 billion.

Here's how the estimates for the coming fiscal year go:

1. In January, the administration estimated the deficit at $8.1 billion, which is more than the government actually spent in any year between 1920 and 1936.

2. Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Charles L Schultze, the Budget Bureau director, officially revised the deficit last week to $11 billion but placed a variety of conditions on that figure. The deficit for fiscal 1967 ending June 30 also is figured at $11 billion as of now.

3. The Business Council, a blue ribon business panel, figured the fiscal 1968 deficit at up to $18 billion, including in that a $5 billion escalation in Vietnam and no tax increase. It used $8.1 billion—not the revised $11-billion figure—as its base.

4. The staff of the Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation came up with an estimated deficit ranging from $16.9 billion to $17.4 billion based solely on what it said the government can expect from tax collections, without a surtax.

U.S. War Plane Toll High In Hanoi Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — The toll of U.S. planes over North Vietnam is rising steeply because they are concentrating more and more on targets in the Hanoi-Haiphong area, where most of North Vietnam's 6,000 antiaircraft guns are emplaced.

The pilots who undergo the ordeal by antiaircraft fire refer to Hanoi as "Dodge City."

Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff, says the Hanoi-Haiphong area represents "the greatest concentration of antiaircraft weapons that has ever been known in the history of defense in any town or any area in the world."

Maj. Gen. George B. Simler, deputy director of operations at Air Force headquarters, says, "The air defense system in North Vietnam is the most formidable and sophisticated our air crews have yet encountered in any conflict."

More than 100 U.S. planes have been lost over North Vietnam since the first of the year—about half of them since early last month.

Conventional antiaircraft guns can be credited with downing about 480 of the over-all total of 552 American aircraft lost in the air war over North Vietnam.

Only 22 have fallen before MIG jets. And only about 50 have been lost to surface to air missiles, although the Communists have fired about 2,500 of the SAMs at the raiders.

Many U.S. officers argue that the North Vietnamese were given time and freedom to build up their air defense concentrations around Hanoi and Haiphong because targets in those sectors were highly restricted for a long time.

Putting it in Pentagon jargon, Simler told the Air Force Association convention in March:

"Our losses in the North were incurred in an unchecked defense environment while in tightly controlled pursuit of limited national objectives."

The North Vietnamese antiaircraft guns have been increased tenfold.

NANCY LEICHNER, 21 years old, 5'3" tall, Weight 118 pounds. Grey-green eyes and blond hair worn in an upsweep, shoulder-length when down. She was wearing a two-piece bathing suit with a navy-blue bottom and a red-and-white, horizontally striped top. She has a very deep tan. A single, ivory amethyst color is on her left temple.

This reward, raised by the families and general public, is held in escrow at the Third City National Bank in Clearwater, Fla. It will be paid without question to any person or persons who can locate the girls, or their bodies.

Persons with such information should contact any law enforcement agency, or the families at 722 Valencia Dr., Largo — Phone Clearwater 586-2069.

THIS IS the reward poster printed by the parents of Nancy Leichner, 21, and Pamela Nater, 20, after the two girls vanished without trace from the Ocala National Forest near Tavares, Fla., last Oct. 2. A seven-month investigation has failed to turn up a single trace of the attractive young women but it is still going on. (AP Wirephoto)

Girls Still Missing After Seven Months

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) — "Look for a tree with a big limb sticking out," the letter said. "The sun's shadow will fall across one grave in the morning and the other in the afternoon."

This kind of mail continues to reach the Lake County Sheriff's Office here seven months after the disappearance of two young women without a single trace or clue.

It appears Nancy Leichner, 21, and Pamela Ann Nater, 20, simply vanished the afternoon of Oct. 2, 1966.

LAST SUN

Nancy, a sunny, green-eyed blonde, and Pamela, a striking brunette, were last seen walking a nature trail on a Sunday outing in the vast Ocala National Forest at Alexander Springs, where they had gone with a skindiving group. Suddenly, they were gone.

They wore bathing suits. The rest of their clothing and their purses remained with the group near the edge of the springs. Only the men swimmers had entered the icy clear water that day.

Bennie Dauterman, 22, Pamela's steady for two years, and Craig Mackie, 22, Nancy's date, immediately began what was to become one of the most exhaustive manhunts in the state's history.

Experienced woodsmen, Boy Scouts, men on horseback, Navy helicopters and volunteers joined in an inch-by-inch search of the densely wooded area surrounding the springs.

The search didn't turn up so much as a bent twig. Bulletins went out all over the southeastern United States — nothing. Television appeals — nothing. Rewards — nothing.

"You simply can't resign yourself to the thought of your only daughter being dead," said Mrs. Herman Nater of Clearwater. "There is no body. It's just crazy.

"I know my daughter would never run away. If the Lord Himself came down and told me that I wouldn't believe Him."

Mrs. Nater and her husband, Herman, a department store executive, have offered $10,000 for the return of their daughter alive and even turned to clairvoyants for clues.

"Our theory is that the girls were abducted from the parking lot at the springs and killed at that time. There are acres and acres in that park where nobody ever sets foot," she says.

Budget Fight May Hit House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hard line adopted by the House on what Republicans repeatedly have attacked as a budget gimmick could spell more trouble for a federal budget which is becoming more complex with each passing week.

The House, at Republican insistence, curbed by $235 billion the government's power to raise money by selling shares, called participation certificates, in pools of government-owned mortgages and loans.

The net result, if it holds up, would be to increase the budget deficit by $2.35 billion for the fiscal year which begins July 1 if all other budget items remained the same—which they apparently won't.

Treasury officials said Saturday the administration is certain to ask the Senate to reverse the action and grant full power to sell PCs which are much like stock certificates.

Although $2.35 billion is relatively small compared with the entire budget, it would exceed the amount the administration plans to spend for aid to elementary and secondary education in the year beginning July 1.

The House curb could be enough to produce in fiscal 1968 the biggest peacetime administrative budget deficit in history. The peacetime deficit record is a little over $112 billion.

Here's how the estimates for the coming fiscal year go:

1. In January, the administration estimated the deficit at $8.1 billion, which is more than the government actually spent in any year between 1920 and 1936.

2. Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Charles L Schultze, the Budget Bureau director, officially revised the deficit last week to $11 billion but placed a variety of conditions on that figure. The deficit for fiscal 1967 ending June 30 also is figured at $11 billion as of now.

3. The Business Council, a blue ribon business panel, figured the fiscal 1968 deficit at up to $18 billion, including in that a $5 billion escalation in Vietnam and no tax increase. It used $8.1 billion—not the revised $11-billion figure—as its base.

4. The staff of the Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation came up with an estimated deficit ranging from $16.9 billion to $17.4 billion based solely on what it said the government can expect from tax collections, without a surtax.

U.S. War Plane Toll High In Hanoi Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — The toll of U.S. planes over North Vietnam is rising steeply because they are concentrating more and more on targets in the Hanoi-Haiphong area, where most of North Vietnam's 6,000 antiaircraft guns are emplaced.

The pilots who undergo the ordeal by antiaircraft fire refer to Hanoi as "Dodge City."

Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff, says the Hanoi-Haiphong area represents "the greatest concentration of antiaircraft weapons that has ever been known in the history of defense in any town or any area in the world."

Maj. Gen. George B. Simler, deputy director of operations at Air Force headquarters, says, "The air defense system in North Vietnam is the most formidable and sophisticated our air crews have yet encountered in any conflict."

More than 100 U.S. planes have been lost over North Vietnam since the first of the year—about half of them since early last month.

Conventional antiaircraft guns can be credited with downing about 480 of the over-all total of 552 American aircraft lost in the air war over North Vietnam.

Only 22 have fallen before MIG jets. And only about 50 have been lost to surface to air missiles, although the Communists have fired about 2,500 of the SAMs at the raiders.

Many U.S. officers argue that the North Vietnamese were given time and freedom to build up their air defense concentrations around Hanoi and Haiphong because targets in those sectors were highly restricted for a long time.

Putting it in Pentagon jargon, Simler told the Air Force Association convention in March:

"Our losses in the North were incurred in an unchecked defense environment while in tightly controlled pursuit of limited national objectives."

The North Vietnamese antiaircraft guns have been increased tenfold.

INSURANCE OFFERED legislative excitement in the first half of this 30-day fiscal session and these three lawmakers were responsible. Left to right, Rep. Tom Early, Orleans, Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, Ouachita, and Rep. Benny Christian, Richland, were just a few votes shy of the three-fourth House majority required to introduce non-fiscal bills. The two bills by Christian would have required insurance companies to use two per cent of their investment income as a rate making factor and would have abolished the Louisiana Insurance Commission, leaving sole authority with the State Insurance Commissioner. The House and Senate both go back in at noon Monday.

Sen. Jamar Adcock

Floor Chief Views Upcoming Action

By MILO DAKIN
Legislative Writer

If anyone can predict the future of a legislative session, it would have to be an administration floor leader.

Sen. Jamar Adcock who runs the senate for Gov. John McKeithen views the last two weeks of this session with ease.

"It'll be the quietest one in the history of the Louisiana legislature," he predicted. "There's nothi ngl eft.t vespntecoWod' nothing left to do. We've spent three years building programs and now we are putting them into effect."

There is a bit of nostalga in the administration but no one seems to be crying over it.

This is the last regular, official session of ths administration but few people at the capitol are packing any bags. Adcock sums up the optimism of the McKeithen crowd. "The next four years of his administration will be better than the first."

McKeithen this fall will become the first Louisiana governor to run for re - election, that is, if he can find anyone to run against him. As post time nears, the starting gates are emptying.

And he hasn't taken any chances of anyone slipping from behind during this legislative session and spoiling the records his administration hope to put on the line for re - election in November.

The session has been quite and tight.

With the exception of a few political battles over urban renewal and insurance, debates have been short and committee meetings few.

The governor said on opening day two weeks ago he did not want any non - fiscal legislation in this fiscal session. Except for a few stragglers, bills introduced have been obviously of a fiscal nature.

Of course what is fiscal and what isn't is all in who is making the decision and what time of the day he is making it. The Senate Affairs committee has reversed its decision on at least two measures, and there are bills waiting for action this week that have nothing to do with state financing, which is what "fiscal" is really all about.

The big fiscal item, the general appropriations bill which is the bulk for a $1.2 billion state budget, comes up for House vote Monday and unless the anti - administration forces really have more strength than they appear to have, it should pass over to the Senate before dark.

The Senate Finance Committee of Sen. B. B. (Sixty) Rayburn will go over it first, then the entire Senate body. "The budget will pass with few changes," Adcock predicts. He is chairman of the Legislative Budget Committee, a select administration group that designs state spending before the legislature goes into its annual sessions.

Last year, Rep. Risely Triche of Assumption Parish bottled the appropriations bill up in the house and amended on $3 million for certain pay raises which the governor later vetoed off. Triche was floor leader for former Gov. Jimmie Davis and he is expected to pull a few hidden cards out Monday.

There are some 300 bills waiting for action during the next two weeks and unless House committees show more enthusiasm over meeting, a lot of these will die on the calendar.

Five of these bills affect the cities of West Monroe and Monroe.

— To provide that court costs of the city court of West Monroe shall be paid into general fund of the city.

— To authorize judge of city court of West Monroe to assess additional court costs up to $10.

— To provide for appointment of one or more deputy marshals of city court of West Monroe.

— To provide annual three - week vacation for city judge of West Monroe.

— To increase minimum salary of judge of city court of West Monroe to $800 per month.

— To amend provisions of Pension and Relief fund electrical employes of city of Monroe.

All of the measures are by Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and George Wood, Ouachita Parish.

THE FLOOR leader has many responsibilities and one of those last week for Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe was finding enough lawmakers to secure a three-fourths voting majority after the Senate prematurely adjourned. Adcock here calls for assistance while in the background Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock and Sen. B. B. Rayburn debate whether it is legal to go back into session after adjourning for the day.

WINNSBORO (Special) — The Franklin Parish jail Saturday, for the first time in seven years, was empty.

The jail was emptied Friday afternoon when the last two occupants were released. One of the prisoners was released when a non-support case was settled, and the other prisoner had completed his term.

Sheriff A. J. Stephens took office for the first time June 1, 1960. He said this was the first time in his tenure in office when no one was in custody in the parish jail.

The sheriff commented, "In this case, no business is good business."

Freeman To Meet With Farmers

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman meets with farmers from Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas at a "shirt-sleeve" conference here Monday on farm policy.

C. E. Slack of Alexandria, state executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the purpose of the meeting is to obtain advice and suggestions on farm problems directly from farmers.

The "shirtsleeve" conferences are a continuation of a series begun in Kansas, Iowa and Indiana last month.

The first part of the conference will be devoted to statements and questions by farm organization leaders who have been sent special invitations. man will welcome written questions from the general farm audience and will answer them.

Southside Students Receive Certificate

Fourteen youths from Southside High School received their certificates of completion after 50 hours of Saturday morning classes in Civil Defense TWX (teletypewriting) at the Ouachita Valley Vocational-Technical School in West Monroe.

The brief graduation ceremony was held at 9 a.m. Saturday, during the last class. John Clark, vocational school coordinator, issued certificates to graduates Philip W. Adams, Leslie R. Adams, James E. Burrage, Willie R. Dominick, Richard D. Hendry, Ronnie Holloway, Bart W. Madden, Carroll L. Painter, G. Billy Robillard, Sam H. Robinson, Richard W. Smythe, Charles T. Tedeton, Truman R. Turnbow, Thomas N. Tynes.

James B. Scruggs Jr., Area Four civil defense director and course sponsor, administered loyalty oaths and made preparation to issue identity cards. Their instructor, Philip Kulcke, gave the class an inspirational farewell talk. Cake and soft drinks were served to the participants.

According to Scruggs, the immediate history of Louisiana shows that disasters have been caused by floods or hurricanes, "yet, world idealogical differences and their resulting tensions are increasing the probability of an atomic holocaust. Teletype - writer operators, such as you, are vital to the communications network in the event a disaster knocks out normal systems. You will be working along with police, sheriff, ham operators, and other volunteers in transmitting conditions and coordinated plans of action."

He added that many other civil defense preparations include locating and marking fallout shelters and mapping population drain to each.

The instructor said each student was willing to do what was necessary to learn the course material which includes: learning world time zone conversion, message format, security procedures, and teletypewriter skills. "Each one of you will be able to carry out his assignment in the event of need."

Kulcke, who was selected by the vocational school to teach the class, is a telephone supervising customer service engineer with a military communications background. The teletypewriters were made available at no cost to the public by authority of W. E. Whetstone, district manager of Southern Bell Telephone Co.

Man, Woman Shot In Leg Near Bastrop

BASTROP (Special) — A man and a woman were hospitalized here with gunshot wounds in their legs following a shooting earlier Saturday night.

Morehouse Parish Sheriff's Department identified them as Mrs. Janie B. Meziere, 19, and J. W. Thompson, 44. Both are of Bastrop.

Robert Meziere, husband of the wounded woman, was being questioned in connection with the shooting by the sheriff's department Saturday night.

According to a report by the sheriff's department two .22 caliber pistols were found at the scene of the shooting one mile outside the city limits here on La. 165 South in front of a liquor store. Deputies came on the scene at about 7:45 p.m.

Investigation of the shooting is continuing.

Van Thieu's Candidacy Is Blow To Ky

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky apparently was surprised by Saturday's announcement that his most powerful potential opponent in the upcoming presidential election has decided to run.

When told at Bien Hoa Air Base that Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu had announced his intentions, Ky's jaw dropped.

Since Ky has said several times that in the interest of military unity he would pull out of the race if Thieu decided to become a candidate, newsmen asked him what he planned to do.

"I don't know," Ky said. "I will have a talk with him first."

Could there be two military men running for president, Ky was asked. Ky is an air force marshal and Thieu is a lieutenant general.

"It's possible, but I don't know," he said, and then, as if to show that he was not worried about the competition, added: "I have no comment. I'm indifferent."

Thieu's decision, relayed through a spokesman, was definite. The spokesman said Thieu's decision would make the Sept. 3 election a free-for-all and that a formal announcement of his candidacy would come in proper time, probably early in June.

Ky has repeatedly said Thieu would not run.

Although the powerful Armed Forces Council, made up of the officers who rule South Vietnam, had decided not to publicly endorse any military man for the presidency, a show of hands last Sunday was overwhelmingly in favor of Ky.

Hanoi Claims 6 U.S. Jets Down

TOKYO (AP) — Hanoi radio claimed eight U.S. planes were shot down over North Vietnam Saturday by the North Vietnamese air force and ground fire.

In a broadcast monitored here, Hanoi said "a number of U.S. air pirates were wiped out or captured."

Three U.S. planes were knocked down over Ha Bac Province, one in the morning, two others in the afternoon, the radio said.

"Two U.S. jets were shot down over Haiphong, two others over Bac Thai and another over Vinch Phoc."

Northeast Gets Grants For Building Projects

Northeast Louisiana State College has received Federal grants totaling $1,554,515 for partial financing of three major campus construction projects, according to James M. Nicholson, dean of administration.

The projects are a new health and physical education center, a new administration-classroom building and renovation of and additions to Brown Auditorium.

Northeast received the grants under Title I of the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963.

Additional financing for the projects, which will cost approximately $5,716,000, will come from Federal loans under Title III of the Higher Education Facilities Act and Louisiana captial funds already allocated to the College, Nicholson said. Northeast has applications pending for the Federal loans, the dean said.

Estimated construction costs for the three projects is $4,463,000 with architects' fees and equipment costs estimated at approximately $1,253,000.

The health and physical education center would include a gymnasium seating approximately 8,000 persons which would be the site of Northeast's home basketball games. It will be on Bon Aire Drive on the east side of Bayou DeSiard.

Brown Hall Auditorium renovations will include the installation of air conditioning, new seating, enlargment of the stage, new stage curtains and accessories, new lighting and panels. To be added will be a small auditorium, designed primarily for drama teaching purposes, and dressing rooms and classroom and laboratory areas for the Department of Speech.

Architect for the H&PE center and Brown Hall renovations is Buford Jacka of West Monroe.

The administration-classroom building will be a three-story brick structure with administrative offices on the first floor and classrooms, laboratories and faculty offices on the second and third floors.

Several outside stairways would be included which will permit easy student access to and from the upper levels without the necessity of entering the first floor of the building.

The new building will have a distinctive "emphasis" tower marking it as the administrative center of the campus and enabling it to be seen from most points in the vicinity.

Site of the building will be on the old football field and on land now occupied by a maintenance shop. The building will face west toward College Avenue and will be in the center of a three-structure, U-shaped complex that will include Hanna Hall and the College's proposed new pharmacy building. Architects for the administration-classroom building are Wells and Parker of Monroe.

State Bishop To Visit At Area Church

RUSTON (Special) — The Rt. Rev. Iveson B. Nolan co - adjutor of Louisiana, will make his annual visitation to the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer today.

Bishop Nolan will institute the new rector, the Rev. William L. Worrell, who assumed his duties in Ruston in February of this year.

The bishop, a native of Baton Rouge, will be soon celebrating his 15th year as a bishop in Louisiana. He was first elected in 1952 as an assistant to the Rt. Rev. Giralut Jones, bishop of Louisiana.

In 1961 the convention of the diocese granted him the right of succession at the retirement of Bishop Jones, which will be in 1972. Currently, Bishop Nolan is responsible for the youth and college work of the diocese and also for the young men who are studying for the priesthood.

The Rev. Worrell previously served in the Diocese of Georgia for 11 years before he was called to serve as rector of the Church of the Redeemer.

A class of adults will be confirmed at this service by the laying on of hands by the bishop.

Speaker Set For LSU's Graduation

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Dr. Otis Singletary, vice president of the American Council on Education, Washington, D.C., will be the principal speaker at LSU's annual spring commencement May 27 in the Parker Agricultural Center.

The commencement is scheduled for 3 p.m. LSU President John A Hunter will confer diplomas.

Dr. Singletary, who joined the ACE staff in 1966, became chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro in 1961, and had been on leave from that position since 1964 to serve as director of the Job Corps with the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington.

He received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from LSU and the B.A. from Millsaps College, and was an instructor in sion from 1949 - 51. From 1954-61, Dr. Singletary taught at the University of Texas, where he also served as associate dean of arts and sciences and assistant to the president.

A native of Mississippi, Dr. Singletary is the author of two books, "The Mexican War" and "Negro Militia and Reconstruction," for which he won the 1955 Moncado Award of the American Military Institute. He has written a number of monographs on Southern and Civil War history and has had articles published in historical and literary journals.

While at the University of Texas, Dr. Singletary received a teaching excellence award given by the Students' Association, and the Searborough Teaching Excellence Award given by the University. He won a Carnegie academic administrator grant in 1961, and in 1964 was awarded an honorary LL.D. degree from Yankton College.

Dr. Singletary was director of the honors program at the University of Texas, chairman of the North Carolina committee on selection of Rhodes scholars for three years, is the Texas-Louisiana regional chairman for the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, and is on the administrative committee for the Southern Fellowship Fund. He is also an associate editor of the "Southwestern Historical Quarterly."

Heavy Rains, Hail, Wind Strike South

World Weather Service

Thunderstorms and twisters in areas lashed the Southland Saturday night with heavy rains, hail and strong winds.

The storms were reported along a stationary front from Texas to North Carolina. Heavy rainfall was widespread with more than an inch at Wichita Falls, Tex., and 1.14 at College Station. An inch also fell at Abilene and at Tupelo, Miss.

A funnel cloud was sighted 26 miles west of Tupelo in northern Mississippi during the height of the storm and a number of twisters were sighted in central and northeast Texas. Golf ball size hail was reported at Sylvester, Tex.

A severe thunderstorm watch was in effect for portions of the southern plains and Lower Mississippi Valley region until 10 p.m. Saturday.

The national weather outlook for Sunday called for sunny skies over most of the nation with showers and thundershowers scattered from the Texas Gulf Coast over the Southeast to the Middle Atlantic Coast.

Late today a low was expected to center over the Carolinas with a cold front trailing to South Texas.

DISCOVER URANIUM

PARIS (UPI) — French atomic energy commission experts have discovered a major deposit of uranium ore in the northern sector of Niger, informed sources said Saturday.

They said the deposits were found in a sparsely populated desert area 150 miles north of Agades and that France would sign an agreement to exploit the ore.

LSU Library School Gives Fellowships

BATON ROUGE (Special) — The Louisiana State Library School will offer 10 post graduate - level fellowships of $5,000 each for the 1967 - 68 academic year, Mrs. Florrinell Morton, director of the Library School, has announced.

The non - working fellowships are possible through a $82,500 grant from the U.S. Office of Education under the Higher Education Act of 1965, she said. This is the second year 10 such fellowships have been made available, and the students currently completing work beyond the master's degree under these grants are from Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Idaho.

Applicants who have earned their master's degrees in library science are eligible to apply, Mrs. Morton said, and applications are welcome from throughout the United States.

Extremely high standards have been set for applicants, she said. To be considered, applicants must meet all requirements for admission to the LSU Graduate School, have an average of 2.5 on a 4.0 scale on all college level work, pass the Graduate Record Examination, have completed a fifth - year degree program in library science or have attained an M.A. in another field with 18 hours work in library science. Applicants also must have three years of library experience.

Only about eight universities in the United States offer the Ph.D. in library science, Mrs. Morton said, and the LSU fellowships will offer successful candidates broad preparations for admission to these programs and general professional enrichment for specialized library careers. Graduate courses in supervision, guidance, social sciences and other work related to top - level library service will be offered, as well as field trips and colloquiums.

In addition to the $5,000 fellowships awarded to successful applicants, a $600 dependo allowance will be granted.

Professional librarians terested in applying for the lowships should write to the rector, Library School, I Baton Rouge, 70803. Applic also are asked to have all stitutions they have atter send transcripts to the Libr School director and to se recommendations from th persons who can evaluate applicant's academic and fessional abilities.

Mrs. Morton said applicat will be accepted until July but urged early applications permit careful consideratio

Minden Man Jaycee Chief

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Kenny Bowman of Minden was elected president of the Louisiana Jaycees here Saturday in a rough and tumble election which saw four candidates vying for the position.

It was the first time more than two candidates had ever entered the race.

Bowman was installed at a banquet Saturday night.

The other candidates running for president were Jesse Carey of Ville Platte, Warren Rodriguez of Baker, and Allen Houk of New Orleans.

Among the 800 delegates attending was national Jaycee President Bill Suttle of Greensboro, N.C.

Prisoners Riot

GRONINGEN, Netherlands (AP) — Thirty inmates wrecked three halls of the Veenhuizen Penitentiary because, an official spokesman said, they were disappointed at not getting clemency in a royal decree issued after Crown Princess Beatrix recently gave birth to Prince Alexander, the first male heir born to the throne in 116 years. Tear gas subdued them and ringleaders were sent to other prisons.

Our schools are finding it hard to get and keep teachers because of the much higher salaries paid by other school districts, particularly South Louisiana. In addition, fewer of our high school graduates are going into teaching because they can get more money in other fields.

Nearly one-half of all parishes in the state have passed sales taxes to provide higher salaries for their teachers. These areas include Baton Rouge, Lafayette and New Orleans. Monroe, West Monroe, Ouachita Parish and North Louisiana MUST keep pace.

Our parish and municipal governing bodies are also facing the problem of hiring and keeping qualified personnel, such as firemen and policemen and other employees, as well as the continuation of needed public services.

Bishop Nolan will institute the new rector, the Rev. William L. Worrell, who assumed his duties in Ruston in February of this year.

The bishop, a native of Baton Rouge, will be soon celebrating his 15th year as a bishop in Louisiana. He was first elected in 1952 as an assistant to the Rt. Rev. Giralut Jones, bishop of Louisiana.

In 1961 the convention of the diocese granted him the right of succession at the retirement of Bishop Jones, which will be in 1972. Currently, Bishop Nolan is responsible for the youth and college work of the diocese and also for the young men who are studying for the priesthood.

The Rev. Worrell previously served in the Diocese of Georgia for 11 years before he was called to serve as rector of the Church of the Redeemer.

A class of adults will be confirmed at this service by the laying on of hands by the bishop.

Speaker Set For LSU's Graduation

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Dr. Otis Singletary, vice president of the American Council on Education, Washington, D.C., will be the principal speaker at LSU's annual spring commencement May 27 in the Parker Agricultural Center.

The commencement is scheduled for 3 p.m. LSU President John A Hunter will confer diplomas.

Dr. Singletary, who joined the ACE staff in 1966, became chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro in 1961, and had been on leave from that position since 1964 to serve as director of the Job Corps with the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington.

He received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from LSU and the B.A. from Millsaps College, and was an instructor in sion from 1949 - 51. From 1954-61, Dr. Singletary taught at the University of Texas, where he also served as associate dean of arts and sciences and assistant to the president.

A native of Mississippi, Dr. Singletary is the author of two books, "The Mexican War" and "Negro Militia and Reconstruction," for which he won the 1955 Moncado Award of the American Military Institute, He has written a number of monographs on Southern and Civil War history and has had articles published in historical and literary journals.

While at the University of Texas, Dr. Singletary received a teaching excellence award given by the Students' Association, and the Scarborough Teaching Excellence Award given by the University. He won a Carnegie academic administrator grant in 1961, and in 1964 was awarded an honorary LL.D. degree from Yankton College.

Dr. Singletary was director of the honors program at the University of Texas, chairman of the North Carolina committee on selection of Rhodes scholars for three years, is the Texas-Louisiana regional chairman for the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, and is on the administrative committee for the Southern Fellowship Fund. He is also an associate editor of the "Southwestern Historical Quarterly."

Heavy Rains, Hail, Wind Strike South

World Weather Service

Thunderstorms and twisters in areas lashed the Southland Saturday night with heavy rains, hail and strong winds.

The storms were reported along a stationary front from Texas to North Carolina. Heavy rainfall was widespread with more than an inch at Wichita Falls, Tex., and 1.14 at College Station. An inch also fell at Abilene and at Tupelo, Miss.

A funnel cloud was sighted 26 miles west of Tupelo in northern Mississippi during the height of the storm and a number of twisters were sighted in central and northeast Texas. Golf ball size hail was reported at Sylvester, Tex.

A severe thunderstorm watch was in effect for portions of the southern plains and Lower Mississippi Valley region until 10 p.m. Saturday.

The national weather outlook for Sunday called for sunny skies over most of the nation with showers and thundershowers scattered from the Texas Gulf Coast over the Southeast to the Middle Atlantic Coast.

Late today a low was expected to center over the Carolinas with a cold front trailing to South Texas.

DISCOVER URANIUM

PARIS (UPI) — French atomic energy commission experts have discovered a major deposit of uranium ore in the northern sector of Niger, informed sources said Saturday.

They said the deposits were found in a sparsely populated desert area 150 miles north of Agades and that France would sign an agreement to exploit the ore.

LSU Library School Gives Fellowships

BATON ROUGE (Special) — The Louisiana State Library School will offer 10 post graduate - level fellowships of $5,000 each for the 1967 - 68 academic year, Mrs. Florrinell Morton, director of the Library School, has announced.

The non - working fellowships are possible through a $82,500 grant from the U.S. Office of Education under the Higher Education Act of 1965, she said. This is the second year 10 such fellowships have been made available, and the students currently completing work beyond the master's degree under these grants are from Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Idaho.

Applicants who have earned their master's degrees in library science are eligible to apply, Mrs. Morton said, and applications are welcome from throughout the United States.

Extremely high standards have been set for applicants, she said. To be considered, applicants must meet all requirements for admission to the LSU Graduate School, have an average of 2.5 on a 4.0 scale on all college level work, pass the Graduate Record Examination, have completed a fifth - year degree program in library science or have attained an M.A. in another field with 18 hours work in library science. Applicants also must have three years of library experience.

Only about eight universities in the United States offer the Ph.D. in library science, Mrs. Morton said, and the LSU fellowships will offer successful candidates broad preparations for admission to these programs and general professional enrichment for specialized library careers. Graduate courses in supervision, guidance, social sciences and other work related to top - level library service will be offered, as well as field trips and colloquiums.

In addition to the $5,000 fellowships awarded to successful applicants, a $600 dependents' allowance will be granted.

Professional librarians interested in applying for the fellowships should write to the Director, Library School, LSU, Baton Rouge, 70803. Applicants also are asked to have all institutions they have attended send transcripts to the Library School director and to secure recommendations from three persons who can evaluate the applicant's academic and professional abilities.

Mrs. Morton said applications will be accepted until July 15, but urged early applications to permit careful consideration.

Minden Man Jaycee Chief

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Kenny Bowman of Minden was elected president of the Louisiana Jaycees here Saturday in a rough and tumble election which saw four candidates vying for the position.

It was the first time more than two candidates had ever entered the race.

Bowman was installed at a banquet Saturday night.

The other candidates running for president were Jesse Carey of Ville Platte, Warren Rodriguez of Baker, and Allen Houk of New Orleans.

Among the 800 delegates attending was national Jaycee President Bill Suttle of Greensboro, N.C.

Prisoners Riot

GRONINGEN, Netherlands (AP) — Thirty inmates wrecked three halls of the Veenhuizen Penitentiary because, an official spokesman said, they were disappointed at not getting clemency in a royal decree issued after Crown Princess Beatrix recently gave birth to Prince Alexander, the first male heir born to the throne in 116 years. Tear gas subdued them and ringleaders were sent to other prisons.

New Congo Law Set

KINSHASA, the Congo (AP) — The government announced that a referendum on the new Congo constitution designed to strengthen presidential powers will be held June 4-16 and results will be announced June 24. All Congolese over 18, including women for the first time, are required by law to vote.

A large portion of the 5th District sales tax will be used to bring our teachers salaries to a comparable level with other areas of Louisiana which are already benefiting from similar sales taxes.

Our schools are finding it hard to get and keep teachers because of the much higher salaries paid by other school districts, particularly South Louisiana. In addition, fewer of our high school graduates are going into teaching because they can get more money in other fields.

Nearly one-half of all parishes in the state have passed sales taxes to provide higher salaries for their teachers. These areas include Baton Rouge, Lafayette and New Orleans. Monroe, West Monroe, Ouachita Parish and North Louisiana MUST keep pace.

Our parish and municipal governing bodies are also facing the problem of hiring and keeping qualified personnel, such as firemen and policemen and other employees, as well as the continuation of needed public services.

USING MICROSCOPES, these two coeds are among students of Louisiana Tech participating in a new training program supported by the federal government which is designed to improve curricula in medical technology and dietetics. They are Martha Ann Whitaker (left) of Shreveport, a home economics major, and Bonnie Jo Newcomer of West Monroe, specializing in medical technology.

Health Grant Given Tech For Courses

RUSTON (Special) — Approval of Louisiana Tech as a training center for allied health professions by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been announced here.

In connection with this approval, Tech has been awarded a training grant of $121,241 by the federal agency. The allotment covers a three - year period, now starting, for basic improvement of the dietetics curriculum in the School of Home Economics and the medical technology courses in the School of Arts and Sciences.

Allied health professions include such fields as X - ray technology and occupational therapy as well as medical technology and dietetics.

S. S. Kilgore, associate professor of zoology at Tech, is director of the allied health professions program. Other Tech faculty members who will participate are Dr. Agnes Miller, professor of home economics; Mrs. Janet B. Wright, instructor in institution management; Dr. Selma H. Patton, associate professor of chemistry; Dr. John Murad, assistant professor of zoology, and Dr. Otto Wasmer, professor of botany.

The School of Home Economics at Tech, since 1939, has offered a degree in institution management, approved by the American Dietetics Assn. The School of Arts and Sciences of the university has offered a curriculum in medical technology since 1941.

The federal training grant funds just made available to Tech will be used to enrich the technical and professional courses in medical technology and dietetics curricula, Kilgore said.

Water System Plans Finished

JONESVILLE (Special) — Plans for the Sandy Lake Water System, near Jonesville, have been completed and delivered to the FHA for investigation, it was announced by John McCarty, member of the water system board.

Rates have been approximated at $4.50 per month for an average family.

Man Given Sentence In Fatal Mishap

HARRISONBURG (Special)—Gerald Noone, 51, of Pineville, was given a five-year suspended sentence and placed on active probation during that period in the Monday session of the Seventh Judical District Court in Harrisonburg. Judge Jesse McGee, district judge, presided over the court.

A hearing on a motion to quash the indictment was heard on May 11. The motion was over - ruled.

Noone was present for the counsel and changed his plea fom "not guilty" to "guilty" on the charge of negligent homicide.

The charge came as a result of a two - car accident Saturday, June 25, 1966, at Glen Ditch, west of Jonesville. Mrs. Alda Sandifer, of Jonesville, and secretary of the Catahoula Parish School Board, died as a result of injuries received in the accident. Several others were also injured, including Noone who was hospitalized for a long period of time and is still under medical treatment.

Sen. Ellender Will Deliver Tech Address

RUSTON (Special) — Commencement exercises for 377 spring - semester candidates for degrees at Louisiana Tech will be held at 10 a.m. on Monday, May 29, in Memorial Gymnasium, with the address to be delivered by Sen. Allen J. Ellender of Houma.

There will be no baccalaureate services in connection with the graduation activities, which is a policy established at Tech a few years ago.

Senator Ellender, who was born in Montegut, Terrebonne Parish, is a graduate of St. Aloysius College in New Orleans and Tulane University, with degrees of M. A. and LL.B. He was city attorney of Houma, 1913 - 15; district attorney of Terrebonne Parish, 1915-16; and a member of the Louisiana house of representatives, 1924-36, being floor leader, 1928-32, and speaker, 1932-36.

In 1936, he was elected to the United States Senate without opposition. He again was elected to the senate without opposition in 1942; reelected without opposition in 1948 and reelected without opposition in 1954. He was reelected in 1960 and reelected in 1966 for the term ending Jan. 3, 1973.

Only two senators rank ahead of Senator Ellender in point of service — Senators Hayden of Arizona and Russell of Georgia.

Senator Ellender holds high positions on two of the senate's powerful standing committees, the agriculture committee and the appropriations committee. He also is a long - standing member of the influential Democratic steering committee, as well as the joint committee on reduction of non - essential Federal expenditures.

In connection with his political life, Senator Ellender has traveled seven times around the world, inspecting military installations, visiting embassies and consulates and studying numerous other foreign affairs, which he evaluated and reported to Congress.

Area Hospital Plans Underway

JONESVILLE (Special) — Wedon Smith, chairman of the Catahoula Parish Hospital Board, has announced that plans for the hospital to be built in Jonesville are being held by the Hill - Burton office in Dallas, Tex., and will be reviewed by that office until after critical applications have been processed.

Smith urged Hugh English, architect, on the necessity of speed on the Catahoula project, pointing out that the parish does not have one single hospital bed at this time, and that, in addition up to 350 fimilies may be moving into this area within the next six to eight months for work on a contract let recently.

English indicated that the board might expect to hear from them during the period between June 15 and July 1.

Son Born To Greek Royalty

ATHENS (AP)—A son was born Saturday night to King Constantine of Greece and his Danish-born queen, Anne-Marie.

It was the couple's second child and becomes a direct heir to the throne of Greece.

News of the birth set off a fusilade of 101 cannon shots over Athens fired from atop Mount Lycabattus. The queen, 20, youngest queen in the world, gave birth at the royal palace in Tatoi, 14 miles outside Athens.

The $75 Tire

If it saves your life once, it's a bargain

THE UNIROYAL MASTER

We're asking you to lay out 75 bucks for our Uniroyal® Master size 8.25-14 tire. And we're asking for your old tire besides. Maybe you think that's too much to pay for a tire. And maybe it is. But only until something happens. Like a gaping pothole coming up out of nowhere. Or a sudden rainstorm slicking down the road. Or a rusty old nail lying in wait for you on a lonely road in the middle of the night. That's when this tire is worth $75. That's when it's worth all the money in the world. Sizes other than 8.25?14 priced accordingly.

Two Votes Needed For Constitutional Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — If two more states ask Congress to call a constitutional convention to reverse the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote rule, the one thing certain is that there will be a long and heated debate.

Much of this will center, at least in the early stages, on whether a number of the petitions already received are valid applications for a convention.

By the count of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., 32 states have now petitioned for a convention. He proposes, if two more come in, to march on the Senate floor with a motion that Congress call a convention.

But Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., and others dispute the Dirksen count.

First of all, they point to resolutions adopted by the Washington and Wyoming legislatures in 1963. It was not until the following year that the Supreme Court made its pronouncement that both houses of a legislature must be apportioned on the basis of population.

What the Wyoming and Washington legislatures asked was that the federal courts be foreclosed from considering questions of apportionment of either house of a legislature. At the time they acted, the federal courts were just edging into what the late Justice Felix Frankfurter once called this political thicket.

Of all the petitions, there are only six which apparently are not questioned by anybody.

Four of these came in this year from Colorado, Illinois, Indiana and North Dakota. The other two came earlier from Kentucky and Oklahoma.

Tydings asserts that legislatures in the other petitioning states were all malapportioned at the time and that hence the validity of their petitions is questionable.

TNT Discovery Leads To Arrest

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP) — Sheriff T. Jerry Wattigny announced Saturday one man had been arrested in connection with the discovery of 200 pounds of TNT in a home here.

The sheriff declined to identify the man or to explain the charges against him. He said the man was being held in Mississippi.

Wattigny said more than 200 pounds of explosives were found in the home Friday night along with 15,000 feet of detonator wire and eight boxes of dynamite caps, fuses and primers.

Wallace, Action Candidate

Seasoned political observers warn against underrating George Wallace. They say he's running a shrewd campaign, and Democrats and Republicans alike are worried. The odds against a third party candidate are large. But Wallace is clever, an eloquent speaker, and has strong financial backing.

Monroe Morning World

Sunday Features

Editorials — Spotlight — Churches — Amusements

Monroe, La., May 21, 1967 1-B

By ARTHUR EDSON

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A friend who remembers when George Wallace was Alabama's best 135 - pound boxer says: "Oh, he really poured it on, George did. He just kept moving in all the time." And now that Wallace is running for the presidency, he retains the simple strategy of the ring: Attack, attack, attack, and somebody is bound to be hit — and hurt.

It is usually agreed that Wallace's potential as a probable third party candidate to damage both major parties is immense , even though no one seems sure whether the Democrats or the Republicans would suffer more.

Wallace, his big cigar at a rakish angle, surveys the scene cheerfully.

"I think I'll hurt the Republicans in the South and the Democrats in the North," Alabama's former Democratic governor says. "I think I'll hurt the Democratic party more."

So far few, if any, observers give Wallace even an outside shot at the White House.

But a Gallup poll credited him with 13 per cent of the vote — phenomenal for a regional candidate — even before he began to campaign.

OFFICIALLY COY

And although he remains officially coy about his political future — he hasn't formally announced his candidacy — his backers aren't. They're betting big money — his campaign plans call for spending between $10 million and $15 million—that he can go all the way as a third party candidate.

At 47, Wallace starts with a curious but important distinction: Few in public life can stir such heated emotions.

Wallace opened his presidential campaign last month at Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., and what happened there was repeated, sometimes more vigorously, sometimes less, at every stop.

Outside the new, circular fieldhouse, students and faculty members urged everyone to walk out on Wallace. Inside, a relatively small but determined group jeered, catcalled, chanted and hooted in disapproval.

On a five day trip Wallace inspired such diverse picket signs as "Geo. Wallace, Public Racist No. 1," "God Bless Wallace," and "Wallace is a Warthog."

So intense are the feelings it's almost impossible for most to look at Wallace dispassionately. But it should be done: already he has a campaign setup rivaling that of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, who wants to win the Republican nomination and is the only other candidate unabashedly seeking support this early.

NOT ROUTINE

Normally no one is more impotent than a politican out of office, but routine rules don't apply to Wallace.

Whether his wife, Lurleen, who succeeded him as governor of Alabama, makes some of the decisions, as Wallace insists, or whether he calls the shots, as many suspect, isn't important. His base remains firm. From here he can foray north and west, moving in all the time, punching away at a host of targets covering almost every segment of American life.

He attacks Democrats and Republicans. "There's not a dime's worth of difference between the two parties," he says.

He attacks the courts. "The Supreme Court has just about turned this country over to the anarchists. We've got a system of courts in this country — nine men — nine men who play God."

He attacks judicial decisions which he claims protect the criminal and hamstrings the police. "You almost have to have a lawyer with you when you commit a crime in order to be convicted. Crime is one reason the race relations have deteriorated."

He attacked Chief Justice Earl Warren: "Here's a man who never tried a case. I wouldn't appoint political hacks to the Supreme Court."

He attacks big government. "We're talking about a philosophy of government. We're talking about big government that can't have some bureaucrats in Washington who figure they can solve all the problems in Cleveland or Montgomery or Sacramento. Big government is telling people when to go to bed at night and when to get up in the morning."

He attacks those who, he says, preach one racial doctrine and, alone in a voting booth, practice another. His example is Berkeley, Calif., "that citadel of liberalism," where, by Wallace's reckoning, they argued for civil rights and then voted against open housing. "They're hypocrites — and I'm not a hypocrite."

He attacks what he calls the liberal left wing press. "The national press and the news media have distorted us."

He attacks editors, social engineers, commentators, newspaper men, professors, bureaucrats, theoreticians, lumping them under one label: "intellectual morons." "The intellectual morons have been trying to set up guidelines. They keep talking about the people, but the intellectuals do not trust the people. They look down on them. I trust the people."

To Wallace, the good guys and gals—are the "little" people. "They're getting tired of the theoreticians and the bureaucrats telling them what to do with their children."

WORD FOR POLICE

And, almost always, there's a good word for the police. "If I were president I would give my moral support to the police and thank them for the work they are doing. I think the people are going to defeat mayors who do not defend the police."

From its start this nation has had a strong strain of anti-intellectualism, but few politicians have approached this theme as eagerly as Wallace.

In almost every speech and news conference he works in a denunciation of those who he thinks are thinkers and, therefore, intellectual morons. Usually he ties this in with an attack on the press.

Like most politicians, Wallace does his homework so that few questions catch him by surprise.

In Cleveland, Ohio, when asked about Negro voting back home, he said that Alabama has a Negro sheriff, but that Ohio doesn't.

When asked about his defiance of the Supreme Court, Wallace says, Why, he's simply exercising his constitutional right to criticize, just like Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln and Franklin D. Roosevelt. "I'm in good company," he will say.

And, eveywhere, the questions on race. Does he think the Negro is inferior. "I feel all people are equal in the sight of God. I have never said that anybody is inferior or superior."

Or: "My wife loves all the children of Alabama and she has compassion for all of them."

And: "I'm not a racist. I'm a segregationist."

The answer, Wallace says, is education, but by that he means not dropping out in the fourth grade but sticking around for a high school diploma.

Although he prefers to attack, Wallace also raises some positive arguments. Such as:

"I'm not an ultraright-winger. I believe in progressive government."

"I'm not against everything. I'm for borrowing money to build roads and schools. I'm pretty progressive in the sense that I think government ought to do certain things and do them well."

"I believe in bloc grants to states."

Wallace objects to the words "federal funds." What they really are, he says, are "taxpayers' funds." Whatever they are to be called, he doesn't dwell on the fact that Alabama does fairly well from big government. Tax Foundation, Inc., a nonprofit group specializing in tax studies, figures that for every $1 Alabama puts in it takes $2 out.

Wallace ignores a multitude of problems confronting any modern president. Should the space program be slowed down? Would the U. S. Post Office Department do better as private business. What about a tax surcharge? The draft? Air and water pollution. Urban transportation?

On Vietnam — which has caused Romney so much difficulty — he is hawkish without bothering over details. "We should deescalate the war," he says, "but the best way to deescalate the war is to destroy the supply routes."

Pressed for more specific answers, he said: "I don't say I have any solution to this problem — but then neither does anybody else."

OF SMALL VALUE

Sophisticated arguments on complex subjects are of small value to him. His appeal, as he frankly says, is to the instinct.

Here, in the birthplace of the Confederacy, the dream is of a minority candidate becoming president.

If, in any state, 34 per cent of the voters are unhappy because of unending civil rights strife, because of Vietnam, because they're tired of President Johnson, then maybe these discontented will turn to Wallace. If the remaining 66 per cent split evenly between Republicans and Democrats, Wallace would bag all that state's electoral votes.

A minority president is nothing new. As Wallace enjoys pointing out, the most recent was John F. Kennedy, who won with 49.7 per cent of the popular vote.

The odds against Wallace are fantastic — it's like drawing for an inside straight in every state except possibly a few in the South — and those around him know it. But nevertheless, in a modernistic suite of offices, the planning goes on.

Wallace may run in a few primaries, but he concedes neither party is likely to cotton to the likes of him.

ROUGH ROAD

So he's more likely to go as a third party candidate, a road that, since each state has its own complicated election laws, can be so rough as to be almost impassable.

In Ohio, for example, Wallace would need 433,100 signatures to qualify as a candidate. His backers estimate it would take between $500,000 and $750,000 merely to get his name on the ballot in California. There, more than half a million signers are needed.

Wallace likes to maintain that the little people will shower him with petty cash. So when he was asked in Terre Haute, Ind., where his money was coming from, he replied: "Right here in this auditorium. I was just asked a moment ago: Where can I send money? If you want to put it in your story, it's Montgomery, Ala., Box 1968."

At another point he said: "Last night at the house the mail contained $62 in small bills."

But with 11 persons already on the campaign pay roll, and with expenses running at least $10,000 a month, $62 won't support the present operation for much more than an hour. His backers concede they are going to need big money, and since they speak so confidently of the future, the implication is that they have lined up big commitments.

Wherever Wallace goes he totes a bit of Alabama with him. On his first campaign trip his own party included about a dozen persons. "He likes companions," says Bill Jones, a companion who runs his campaign headquarters.

In the group were four security guards. When Wallace was asked how he justified four state paid troopers on the trip, he said First Ladies get protection and so he was entitled to it, too.

There's no doubt he needs protection. His hotel room often resembles an armed camp. A watch is kept on his chartered plane at night. Bodyguards hover about him.

Paradoxically, this is Wallace's greatest asset. Few politicians create excitement. They may be well known and well informed — but well ignored.

The pocketing, the shouting, the rocking of his car generate interest and guarantee publicity.

WALLACE LOVES IT

Wallace loves it.

He handles an audience masterfully. If it wants to boo, he spaces his material to keep it howling, but he does it lightly, humorously, so that the crowd stays moderately under control. If it's willing to listen, Wallace keeps it with him by delivering his jokes with a timing a professional comedian would envy.

Wallace contends much of his support unlike that of other politicians.

"People are afraid to come out and say they're for Wallace," he says. "But I've had women whisper, 'I'm for you'."

When Romney made his opening Western swing, governors sprang forward, some more willingly than others, to greet him. When Wallace took his first trip, the highest official he could scare up was a Cleveland councilman, Arthur N. Kruczyk.

Yet the memory of 1964 remains. Wallace entered three Democratic presidential primaries and got 25 per cent of the vote in Wisconsin, 30 per cent in Indiana and 43 per cent in Maryland.

Explanations abound as to why this happened, but it still adds up to a lot of votes. No matter how nonchalant Democrats and Republicans may appear in public, privately they worry about the trouble Wallace may stir up.

DIRKSEN SUGGESTION

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., no callow alarmist, has even suggested that maybe, if everyone hurries, the U. S. Constitution can be amended so that presidents can be elected by popular vote.

This, Dirksen said, would guard against the possibility that Wallace's candidacy might mean that no one could get a majority of the electoral votes and thus the whole thing would be thrown into the House of Representatives for a decision.

With his cocky swagger — perhaps he is compensating for being only 5 feet 7 — with his impudent grin, Wallace, the spoiler, thrives on the discomfiture of others.

There's great satisfaction in his voice when he says: "This is a people's movement, and if you don't believe it, you just follow me around the country. I think you're going to see a lot of politicians run over in 1968 — and I'm going to help run over them."

PICKETING, HECKLING, SHOUTING all keep an atmosphere of excitement — and publicity — swirling around George Wallace, ex-governor of Alabama now campaigning for the U.S. Presidency. Here, while bystanders show dismay, an Indiana state policeman and a picket join in a melee at Rose Polytechnic Institute in Terre Haute, Ind., where Wallace spoke April 29 during his first campaign tour.

WHATEVER HE MAY stir up in the way of votes for the Presidency in 1968, George Wallace, ex-governor of Alabama, stirs up strong emotions when he hits the campaign trail. No other politician today generates so much heat, pro and con. Here supporters and critics, with strongly worded signs, crowd close as Wallace, center front, gets into a car in Cleveland during his recent tour. (AP Newsfeatures Photos)

U. S. Women Seen As Attractive, Domineering

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

American men, they'd have you believe, cherish one ambition in regard to American women: To fall into their arms without falling into their hands.

"They have been pampered, spoiled, given most of the worldly things prior to maturing," says a Kansas City business man, divorced a year ago and given to bitter pronouncements about the opposite sex. "Therefore, they expect more, demand more, than the women of less bountiful societies — although they smell better and bathe oftener."

"They are domineering and outlandishly spoiled. I sometimes think woman suffrage was a mistake," says a young Anchorage, Alaska, newsman, who insists he is happily married.

And so it goes with two-thirds of those questioned in a nation-wide Associated Press sampling of male opinion.

A majority of the men agreed that American women's good looks and good grooming are the nicest things about them, that women are entitled to equal legal and civil rights — although a goodly number thought they are just too pushy about it — and that the chief cause of the high divorce rate is too young marriages.

They vociferously applauded miniskirts, although many a husband added "but not on my wife!"

AGAINST DOUBLE STANDARDS

They rejected the double standard of morality for men and women, often with a reference to "what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." Yet they contended that a certain amount of skirt-chasing is normal for the married man.

Are today's women as good wives and mothers and homemakers as those of the last generation? There were takers on both sides of the question.

Perhaps 80 per cent of the husbands said their marriages are happy. Even when they fulminated most vehemently against women they hastened to point out that their wives are an exception.

Sometimes it's difficult to decide if the men were talking tongue in cheek, suffer from an Oedipal hangup or had been mortally wounded by The Woman. Bachelors and particularly the divorced men, could be venomous.

"A woman's place is in the home. She should be allowed to go out with her husband on rare social occasions — baptisms, funerals. And at all times she should walk two steps behind him." A California bachelor lawyer, 36.

"American women should be beaten regularly and made to feel subservient, then they'll feel feminine. Now they have all the sensitivity of a rock." A divorced Detroit lawyer, 29, who says he is newly in love.

Women, though, had a loyal minority following.

A young Kansas farmer: "If you want a woman to be a servant you should marry an Oriental, a Nordic or a southern European. The American woman has it all over them."

A 62 year-old Fairbanks, Alaska, miner who has been married 41 years to the same woman: "As far as American women are concerned, I love 'em all."

"Women round out life and make it full," said a Louisville businessman and widower.

"Otherwise, we would just have half a life."

A New York State employe spoke for a lot of men when he said he appreciated most about women: "Sex and the American woman's ability to make the most of her looks, even when she is downright homely."

SENSE OF HUMOR

Also mentioned were her companionship, sense of humor, frankness, good taste, planning ability, intelligence and education.

"When you're really in need they rise to the occasion to help you," commented an Atlanta bachelor.

What don't they like about women?

"The least appealing thing is their independent, sometimes holier-than-thou attitude and their agonizing ability to make men appear so dull—foolish," said a recently divorced man.

Then there was their perfume — "They douse themselves," their chewing gum — "Their jaws are always moving," their conformism, their faddism, their "total preoccupation with appearance," their "over-improvement on nature, they look like painted savages," their gossiping and their insistence on keeping up with the Joneses.

"Most women are out for the dollar," said a Miami office manager, 63 and long married. "They don't have the homemaking capabilities their mothers had, nor do they pursue it."

Some men thought women are good wives and mothers but let the homemaking slip because they're working outside the home. "In these changing times you need two incomes in a family," said one man.

"I think my wife compares more than favorably with my mother," said a Hollywood movie writer-producer who has been married 25 years. "She's a better cook and knows more about child psychology and matters of health and hygiene. She's a great deal more self-sufficient."

Ah, but are they as moral?

"They are completely immoral and always were," said a recently divorced man. "The only difference is that they are a little bolder about it today."

But an Episcopal minister of Overland, Mo., married and the father of five, decided: "In her way the women in the United States today is more moral than her mother. Today's women are not prudes, but they have done some thinking about what morality is."

Although most men though a little skirt-chasing is normal for married men, they were skittish about how far it should go.

"Just because you're on a diet doesn't mean you can't look at the menu," a married hopeful said cannily.

But a Buffalo citizen summed it up this way: "I believe most men brag and pretend they are skirt-chasers when they aren't. Skirt - chasing is too time-consuming and costly for the average man. He would rather sit at home, sip a beer and watch a baseball game on TV."

MOST FOR EQUALITY

Most men also would give women legal rights and equal pay for equal work.

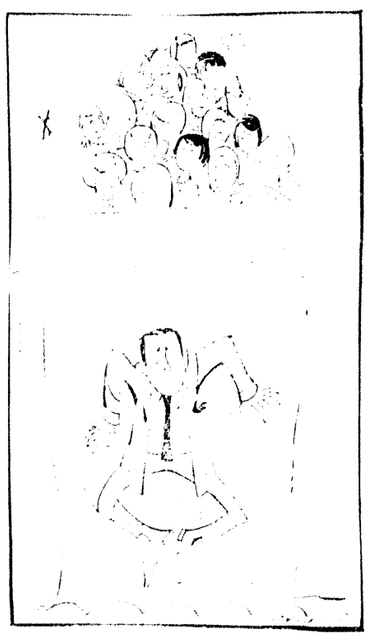
Yet a Kansas City businessman married and the father of three children, said: "They should be more feminine than worry about equal rights. They should learn to take care of their man instead of worrying whether they are going to get the same pay."

A majority of the men who voted enthusiastically for miniskirts, even for their wives, explained that it depends on their figures, of course.

A West Coast bachelor put it: "I think they enhance a woman's legs. If she has bad legs she shouldn't wear them. On a girl, they are delectable because, like a barbed wire fence, they protect the property but don't obscure the view."

Mindful of the tender sensibilities of women, a 26-year-old unmarried lunchroom proprietor in Springfield, Mass., was indignant:

"In certain situations the miniskirts are great. But this topless thing is going too far. There were always places you could go to see a girl stripped. But bringing it out in front of other women, I just don't think that's right!"



"I THINK I'LL hurt the Republicans in the South and the Democrats in the North," says George C. Wallace, who has started running for the Presidency now that his wife, Lurleen, has succeeded him as governor of Alabama. Here Wallace relaxes as he looks over notes and talks with aides before a speech in Pittsburgh to the Amen Corner, a group of businessmen and politicians, last April 28 during his first campaign tour.

Wallace, Action Candidate

Monroe, La., May 21, 1967 1-B

Seasoned political observers warn against underrating George Wallace. They say he's running a shrewd campaign, and Democrats and Republicans alike are worried. The odds against a third party candidate are large. But Wallace is clever, an eloquent speaker, and has strong financial backing.

By ARTHUR EDSON

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A friend who remembers when George Wallace was Alabama's best 135 - pound boxer says: "Oh, he really poured it on, George did. He just kept moving in all the time." And now that Wallace is running for the presidency, he retains the simple strategy of the ring: Attack, attack, attack, and somebody is bound to be hit — and hurt.

It is usually agreed that Wallace's potential as a probable third party candidate to damage both major parties is immense , even though no one seems sure whether the Democrats or the Republicans would suffer more.

Wallace, his big cigar at a rakish angle, surveys the scene cheerfully.

"I think I'll hurt the Republicans in the South and the Democrats in the North," Alabama's former Democratic governor says. "I think I'll hurt the Democratic party more."

So far few, if any, observers give Wallace even an outside shot at the White House.

But a Gallup poll credited him with 13 per cent of the vote — phenomenal for a regional candidate — even before he began to campaign.

OFFICIALLY COY

And although he remains officially coy about his political future — he hasn't formally announced his candidacy — his backers aren't. They're betting big money — his campaign plans call for spending between $10 million and $15 million—that he can go all the way as a third party candidate.

At 47, Wallace starts with a curious but important distinction: Few in public life can stir such heated emotions.

Wallace opened his presidential campaign last month at Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., and what happened there was repeated, sometimes more vigorously, sometimes less, at every stop.

Outside the new, circular fieldhouse, students and faculty members urged everyone to walk out on Wallace. Inside, a relatively small but determined group jeered, catcalled, chanted and hooted in disapproval.

On a five day trip Wallace inspired such diverse picket signs as "Geo. Wallace, Public Racist No. 1," "God Bless Wallace," and "Wallace is a Warthog."

So intense are the feelings it's almost impossible for most to look at Wallace dispassionately. But it should be done: already he has a campaign setup rivaling that of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, who wants to win the Republican nomination and is the only other candidate unabashedly seeking support this early.

NOT ROUTINE

Normally no one is more impotent than a politican out of office, but routine rules don't apply to Wallace.

Whether his wife, Lurleen, who succeeded him as governor of Alabama, makes some of the decisions, as Wallace insists, or whether he calls the shots, as many suspect, isn't important. His base remains firm. From here he can foray north and west, moving in all the time, punching away at a host of targets covering almost every segment of American life.

He attacks Democrats and Republicans. "There's not a dime's worth of difference between the two parties," he says.

He attacks the courts. "The Supreme Court has just about turned this country over to the anarchists. We've got a system of courts in this country — nine men — nine men who play God."

He attacks judicial decisions which he claims protect the criminal and hamstrings the police. "You almost have to have a lawyer with you when you commit a crime in order to be convicted. Crime is one reason the race relations have deteriorated."

He attacked Chief Justice Earl Warren: "Here's a man who never tried a case. I wouldn't appoint political hacks to the Supreme Court."

He attacks big government. "We're talking about a philosophy of government. We're talking about big government that can't have some bureaucrats in Washington who figure they can solve all the problems in Cleveland or Montgomery or Sacramento. Big government is telling people when to go to bed at night and when to get up in the morning."

He attacks those who, he says, preach one racial doctrine and, alone in a voting booth, practice another. His example is Berkeley, Calif., "that citadel of liberalism," where, by Wallace's reckoning, they argued for civil rights and then voted against open housing. "They're hypocrites — and I'm not a hypocrite."

He attacks what he calls the liberal left wing press. "The national press and the news media have distorted us."

He attacks editors, social engineers, commentators, newspaper men, professors, bureaucrats, theoreticians, lumping them under one label: "intellectual morons." "The intellectual morons have been trying to set up guidelines. They keep talking about the people, but the intellectuals do not trust the people. They look down on them. I trust the people."

To Wallace, the good guys and gals—are the "little" people. "They're getting tired of the theoreticians and the bureaucrats telling them what to do with their children."

WORD FOR POLICE

And, almost always, there's a good word for the police. "If I were president I would give my moral support to the police and thank them for the work they are doing. I think the people are going to defeat mayors who do not defend the police."

From its start this nation has had a strong strain of anti-intellectualism, but few politicians have approached this theme as eagerly as Wallace.

In almost every speech and news conference he works in a denunciation of those who he thinks are thinkers and, therefore, intellectual morons. Usually he ties this in with an attack on the press.

Like most politicians, Wallace does his homework so that few questions catch him by surprise.

In Cleveland, Ohio, when asked about Negro voting back home, he said that Alabama has a Negro sheriff, but that Ohio doesn't.

When asked about his defiance of the Supreme Court, Wallace says, Why, he's simply exercising his constitutional right to criticize, just like Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln and Franklin D. Roosevelt. "I'm in good company," he will say.

And, eveywhere, the questions on race. Does he think the Negro is inferior. "I feel all people are equal in the sight of God. I have never said that anybody is inferior or superior."

Or: "My wife loves all the children of Alabama and she has compassion for all of them."

And: "I'm not a racist. I'm a segregationist."

The answer, Wallace says, is education, but by that he means not dropping out in the fourth grade but sticking around for a high school diploma.

Although he prefers to attack, Wallace also raises some positive arguments. Such as:

"I'm not an ultraright-winger. I believe in progressive government."

"I'm not against everything. I'm for borrowing money to build roads and schools. I'm pretty progressive in the sense that I think government ought to do certain things and do them well."

"I believe in bloc grants to states."

Wallace objects to the words "federal funds." What they really are, he says, are "taxpayers' funds." Whatever they are to be called, he doesn't dwell on the fact that Alabama does fairly well from big government. Tax Foundation, Inc., a nonprofit group specializing in tax studies, figures that for every $1 Alabama puts in it takes $2 out.

Wallace ignores a multitude of problems confronting any modern president. Should the space program be slowed down? Would the U. S. Post Office Department do better as private business. What about a tax surcharge? The draft? Air and water pollution. Urban transportation?

On Vietnam — which has caused Romney so much difficulty — he is hawkish without bothering over details. "We should deescalate the war," he says, "but the best way to deescalate the war is to destroy the supply routes."

Pressed for more specific answers, he said: "I don't say I have any solution to this problem — but then neither does anybody else."

OF SMALL VALUE

Sophisticated arguments on complex subjects are of small value to him. His appeal, as he frankly says, is to the instinct.

Here, in the birthplace of the Confederacy, the dream is of a minority candidate becoming president.

If, in any state, 34 per cent of the voters are unhappy because of unending civil rights strife, because of Vietnam, because they're tired of President Johnson, then maybe these discontented will turn to Wallace. If the remaining 66 per cent split evenly between Republicans and Democrats, Wallace would bag all that state's electoral votes.

A minority president is nothing new. As Wallace enjoys pointing out, the most recent was John F. Kennedy, who won with 49.7 per cent of the popular vote.

The odds against Wallace are fantastic — it's like drawing for an inside straight in every state except possibly a few in the South — and those around him know it. But nevertheless, in a modernistic suite of offices, the planning goes on.

Wallace may run in a few primaries, but he concedes neither party is likely to cotton to the likes of him.

ROUGH ROAD

So he's more likely to go as a third party candidate, a road that, since each state has its own complicated election laws, can be so rough as to be almost impassable.

In Ohio, for example, Wallace would need 433,100 signatures to qualify as a candidate. His backers estimate it would take between $500,000 and $750,000 merely to get his name on the ballot in California. There, more than half a million signers are needed.

Wallace likes to maintain that the little people will shower him with petty cash. So when he was asked in Terre Haute, Ind., where his money was coming from, he replied: "Right here in this auditorium. I was just asked a moment ago: Where can I send money? If you want to put it in your story, it's Montgomery, Ala., Box 1968."

At another point he said: "Last night at the house the mail contained $62 in small bills."

But with 11 persons already on the campaign pay roll, and with expenses running at least $10,000 a month, $62 won't support the present operation for much more than an hour. His backers concede they are going to need big money, and since they speak so confidently of the future, the implication is that they have lined up big commitments.

Wherever Wallace goes he totes a bit of Alabama with him. On his first campaign trip his own party included about a dozen persons. "He likes companions," says Bill Jones, a companion who runs his campaign headquarters.

Black Power, Poverty

Two extremely disturbing factors involving the drive for power by this country's most aggressive and most violent leaders of what was once regarded as the integration movement have been disclosed in documents in the possession of Mayor Joe Smitherman of Selma, Ala.

One is the astonishing lengths to which "black power" advocates will go in their campaign of "down with Whitey" and the other is the amount of financial support being given these black power advocates by the national administration, despite the fact that they are openly advocating the overthrow of white government in the United States.

Smitherman displayed documents which he said proved black power advocates were behind an Alabama farm co-operative that received a $399,997 anti-poverty grant. If this is true, it is difficult to see the so-called anti-poverty money as anything other than a political gift by the administration. Surely the black power advocates are not poverty - stricken. Furthermore, recent figures show that Negroes have practically vanished from the farms of the nation, so why should Negro black power advocates be in charge of a farm co-operative and why should they receive a $399,997 anti-poverty grant?

The Selma mayor said the papers were found in a satchel which belonged to an official of the so-called Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, one of the most violent of the groups formerly devoting their attention to integration, instead of calling for "down with Whitey" and overthrow of the Caucasian government in this country.

There are those who say that in no other country in the world would anyone be allowed to get away with the sort of seditious and rebellious statements that have been made by some of the Negro advocates of black power in the United States.

The Office of Economic Opportunity announced in Washington recently that it was awarding the grant to the Southwest Alabama Farm Co-operative, despite the objection of local officials. The cooperative would function in 10 so-called "black belt" counties.

Governor Lurleen B. Wallace has announced she will veto the project but had a 30-day optional period before doing so. The grant could, and in all probability would, be awarded over her veto.

Mayor Smitherman said the satchel containing the documents was believed to belong to James Lytle, who is stationed at nearby Craig Air Force Base. He said the satchel was turned over to police by the finder and the police, in turn, gave it to him because of the type of material it contained. He said he had offered to give it to the Federal Bureau of Investigation but had had no reply to his offer.

Smitherman said some of the documents in the satchel showed the SNCC intended either to control or destroy the Office of Economic Opportunity.

It was stated that one of the papers was a newsletter which showed Senator Robert F. Kennedy, D., N. Y., had pushed for approval of the grant.

Another letter in the satchel was from Lytle's parents to Kennedy, asking him to intercede with the Air Force to keep Lytle from being discharged, Smitherman said. He said the Air Force later transferred Lytle to Craig AFB.

The way President Johnson is being used, abused and deceived by this country's so-called "doves" in behalf of a movement to dump Johnson and nominate Kennedy at the 1968 Democratic national convention is enough to make strong men weep. Negro black power advocates plan to gouge President Johnson for all the people's tax money they can get and then plan to lead the President "up a blind alley" and throw him to the wolves. The chances seem 99 to 1, or more, that the black power advocates will nail President Johnson to a cross made of his own donations to them and will tear him apart at the 1968 convention.

Many people throughout the nation wonder why President Johnson has not, long ago, seen the trap that has been laid for him.

Lip-Service Allies

Of all the questions about Vietnam that prove embarrassing to the administration, none is more apt to bring a flush to Democratic cheeks than, "why don't more Asian allies send troops to help out?"

With the pacification program now under American military command, the war has turned another notch toward complete Americanization, excepting the fine work done by South Korea. There are contingents in Vietnam from Australia, New Zealand, and the Philippines, but the main fighting is done by Americans, and South Koreans.

Thailand is presently training a token force for dispatch to the war zone. Fortunately for the Viet effort, this strongly pro-Western nation has assisted in other vital ways, mainly in allowing a large buildup of United States troops and aircraft on its soil for use against the common enemy.

Following the Honolulu conference, Vice - President Humphrey made an extended trip across friendly Asian countries in hopes of getting more contributions to the war effort. There have been other attempts. But last week it was reported the Johnson Administration told some Senators in private that although maximum pressure on its allies to broaden participation in the Vietnam war had been brought to bear, all efforts had proved futile.

As if to prove the accuracy of the statement, reports from Manila said that the present 2,000-man Philippine contribution to the allied war effort — a medic outfit — was in danger financially. A bill to finance operations of the unit for another year was not included in a list of 31 urgent measures which President Marcos had drawn up for action. Unless $9.5 million is appropriated, the Philippine troops may have to be withdrawn before the year's end.

The only Asian member of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) not sending anything is Pakistan. The contributors are the United States, Thailand, Philippines, Australia and New Zealand. European non-contributing members are France and Great Britain. SEATO was established to counterbalance the power of Communist China. And while SEATO's provisions are not as strong as NATO's in Europe, an armed attack on one of them is supposed to be regarded as a threat to the safety of the others. Secretary of State Rusk has more or less placed being in Vietnam squarely on the SEATO treaty. Critics say he is giving its provisions a broad interpretation.

At any rate, the nagging question is whether American diplomacy has failed miserably in its mission of persuasion, or whether SEATO members are so unconcerned about the danger that nothing can move them.

The United States is committed to several treaties of collective defense. We make a great to-do about keeping our word. What we need are allies who live up to their word. Perhaps treaties with clearer language would be in our best interests. But the fact is, as always, this country has an overabundance of lip-service allies.

U.S. Communists Set Meeting

Cockily Resurgent After Court's Ruling

TOP U. S. COMMUNISTS, cockily resurgent since the Supreme Court invalidated the federal law requiring party members to register, are holding an important powwow in New York City next weekend—May 27-29.

The affair will take the form of a meeting of the party's so-called "National Committee." It consists of some 85 hand-picked members from various parts of the country who were "elected" at a "national convention" in New York last summer. The committee met in December largely to set the stage for next week's gathering.

A number of "major policy questions" are on the agenda prepared by Gus Hall, general secretary of the U. S. party, and the small inner clique of Moscow - controlled bosses.

Directly in accord with Kremlin dictates, the principal subject will be agitational and other activity against U. S. policy in Vietnam.

Hall, also known as Arvo Kusta Halberg, has publicly boasted in recent statements that the Communist Party is playing a forefront of the mass rally in New York last month.

He has also declared the CP will actively support a "peace" candidate in next year's presidential campaign. Hall has even intimated the Communists may go so far as to throw their backing behind a "satisfactory" candidate of one of the major parties.

Should there be no "acceptable" peace ticket, the CP will put one into the field. In that event, the slate will include a militant Negro civil rights leader.

MORE SKULDUGGERY — Other priority topics that will be "considered" at next weekend's meeting are:

Increasing the party membership by recruiting and other methods.

Bringing more youths into the party, with a special drive this summer and next fall. Particular attention will be devoted to operations on college campuses, including facilities.

Intensification of efforts to repeal the 1950 Internal Security Act — the only remaining federal law still imposing some restrictions on CP activity.

Setting up a front organization to raise a $50,000 "legal defense fund" for party members involved in civil liberties and other cases.

A staff study published several months ago by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee states:

"SINCE ITS inception in September 1919, the Communist Party, U.S.A., has been a pawn of Soviet subversion operating within the United States and an essential cog in the cold war which the Soviet Communist Party is conducting against the United States. This has been demonstrated repeatedly and beyond controversion.

"Although the Communist International has been 'dissolved,' there is ample reason to believe that the international Communist apparatus in Moscow, and its practice of sending representatives to control Communist parties in non-Soviet countries have been retained in modified form.

"Previous hearings have established that Moscow has in the past distributed vast sums, along with its directives, through various secret channels to support subversive activities in countries outside Russia, including the United States, and there is every reason to believe that the practice continues."

Senator Dodd Faces Unfortunate Setup

IN THE ORDINARY proceeding before a jury, a defendant benefits from old rules of jurisprudence: He is presumed innocent until proved guilty. A verdict must be based solely upon evidence in the record. And the jury is instructed that unless it is satisfied of the defendant's guilt, beyond a reasonable doubt, it must refuse to convict.

They start trying Tom Dodd in the Senate tomorrow (on Monday), and this is, of course no ordinary case. Here in Washington, and before the larger jury of the country as a whole, Senator Dodd is widely presumed to be guilty — not that he is guilty precisely as charged, but just guilty generally. This conclusion has been reached not on the evidence alone, but also on gossip and surmise.

Dodd has irrelevant factors working against him too. The Senate traditionally is reluctant to reject the considered recommendations of its own committees. In this case, the resolution of censure came with unanimity from the new Select Committee on Standards and Conduct, composed of six of the most respected men in the body. By ironic circumstance, Dodd's principal defender will be Russell Long of Louisiana, who recently antagonized his colleagues in debate on the campaign financing bill. Finally, the spectre of the unrelated case of Adam Clayton Powell will be brooding over the chamber. The sins of Senator Dodd may yet be judged by the sentence imposed upon Powell.

THE RECORD IN the Dodd case, compiled by the Stennis committee, runs to nearly 1,200 pages. I have gone over the whole of that record; I covered some of the hearings in person; and my own present inclination, based upon the rule of reasonable doubt, would be to vote for acquittal. Yet the verdict seems to me a very close point, and I might be talked around the other way. Viewed in restrospect, some of Dodd's actions, if not censurable, were surely incredible.

The principal charge is that Dodd obtained funds "from the public" through political testimonials and used these funds in part for his personal benefit. Dodd's defense is threefold: First, that the testimonial contributions were not truly "from the public," but came rather from invited friends and known supporters; second, that in Connecticut, contributors to testimonial functions are indifferent to the use that is made of their gifts; and third, that whatever sums he may have diverted from the testimonial bank accounts for his personal use were roughly balanced by personal funds that he devoted to political use. These defenses may not be altogether persuasive, but they raise some reasonable doubts.

A SECOND CHARGE is that on eight occasions over a five-year period, Dodd requested and accepted reimbursement for certain travel expenses totaling $2,100 from both the Senate and from private organizations. Dodd offers two defenses: First, that he himself was unaware of this double billing — that it was the work of his faithless bookkeeper, Michael O'Hare; second, that considering the hundreds of trips he made in this period, including 21 official trips for which he never received the reimbursement he was entitled to, the eight incidents scarcely establish a pattern of deceit. A careful reading of O'Hare's testimony tends to corroborate the first point; the second point is a jury question.

A third charge is that Dodd accepted a large contribution from A. N. Spaniel, of International Latex; the innuendo is that in return, Dodd was to recommend Spaniel for an ambassadorship. The innuendo is groundless; Dodd made no such recommendation.

A fourth charge is that Dodd accepted the loan of three Oldsmobiles from David P. Dunbar, a constituent; but the evidence fails to disclose that Dodd ever used his office improperly in Dunbar's behalf.

IN MY OWN VIEW, after studying the record anew, the strongest case against Dodd may be built on the Senator's inexplicable trip to Germany in April of 1964. When the hearings began, the charge was that Dodd made the trip, at public expense primarily as a favor to public relations man Julius Klein. Dodd's own explanation (that he went solely to investigate the case of a Communist murderer) strikes me as singularly unconvincing. Yet the committee found insufficient evidence of wrongdoing to warrant a disciplinary recommendation. Dodd was "indiscreet," no more.

Put a little differently, that seems to be about the size of this overblown affair. Dodd was a blundering idiot in his bookkeeping; he was weak in his relationship with Klein; he was stupid in his choice of office staff; he was a victim of his own Olympian notions of how a Senator should live and travel and pick up checks. In brief, the Senator was frequently a fool. On that score, at least, the evidence is overwhelming. If it justifies censure, the Senate will want to vote aye.

De Gaulle's Brushoff Of England Explained

CHARLES DE Gaulle's imperial veto of England's application for entry into the Common Market was delivered in the grand style, but it is heavy with animus. Obviously attempting to bolster a rationale for keeping England away, General de Gaulle launched into economic analyses in which he is manifestly ill at ease, and it must have been a strain on him to memorize — as is his habit at all his press conferences—those passages in which he explained England's economic disqualifications.

It requires a superior economic intelligence to understand all the ramifications of the Common Market. The late Professor Wilhelm Ropke of Geneva, who was the teacher of Ludwig Erhard and subsequently of Walter Hallstein, until recently the administrative head of the Common Market, sharply disagreed with both of them about the desirability of an exclusively European experiment. Although an admirer of de Gaulle, he feared the cartelization of Europe, or even of parts of Europe. And indeed de Gaulle, in proceeding against England, seems to consider most objectionable England's ties elsewhere — he seems to fear the cosmopolitanization of the European plan.

It isn't that de Gaulle didn't make some good points, independently considered. Much of what he said about England is true, for instance that the English pound is shaky, and that the Common Market — which greaty depends on mutual convertibility of currencies — does not like to link up with a shaky partner. And then, de Gaulle observed, England has outstanding a number of commitments that trace to the fact of the pound sterling's being a reserve currency. So that currency reform in England isn't a matter that England can decide upon purely with reference to her own internal needs. There are the repercussions in the Commonwealth and elsewhere to be considered. And to consider other matters than Europe — as narrowly defined by Charles de Gaulle — is a cardinal obstacle to camaraderie with Charles de Gaulle.

THERE ARE of course, difficulties in English participation. But the whole Common Market idea is heavily burdened with difficulties for that matter, and there is no reason to believe that England's addition to that community would confront the Market with the marginal difficulty. What Charles de Gaulle distrusts is not England's economic suitability, but her political suitability. Concerning the latter, de Gaulle was vigorous, mostly indirect, but not always so. He referred specifically to "England's special relationships," including "those with America." (In another connection at his press conference he alluded to the "scandal of foreign intervention" in South Vietnam, by which he meant U.S. intervention, not the North Vietnamese. And he referred to the "threat" to Western Europe posed by America's "technological invasion.")

It was in his summation that de Gaulle was most characteristically himself. Having devoted two thousand words to describing England's unfortunate inadequacies, he loftily condescended to the oldest and most stable parliamentary government in the world, against the ironic background of a France whose Fifth Republic is being rocked by a general strike in protest against de Gaulle's invocation of despotic powers . . .

It is my intention, said de Gaulle, "to wait for the change to be brought about by the internal and external developments of which, it seems, England is showing signs. In other words, that this great people, so magnificiently gifted with ability and courage, should on their own behalf and for themselves achieve the profound economic and political transformation which would allow them to join the Six continentals. I truly believe that this is the desire of many people who wish to see a Europe appear, which would have its natural dimensions, and who have for England a deep admiration and a sincere friendship. If Britain one day reached this stage, with what joy would France then greet this historic transformation.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have finished."

Finished with England. And, by example, with any other nation whose ties to the United States are so close as to disharmonize with de Gaulle's landed vision of a self-contained, endogamous continental unit, free at last from commercial, military, and political ties with the United States — the "other hegemony," as the general refers to the country that has overpaid the debt we have to Lafayette.

BARRY GOLDWATER

Thant Deliberately Embarrassing U. S.

ONE OF THE great, but often politely overlooked sanctuaries in the Vietnamese war is the foxhole of diplomatic immunity occupied at the United Nations by Secretary General U Thant.

Although it may be something akin to coming out four-square against apple pie, it is time someone blew the whistle on what this supposedly global official is doing to distort the facts and embarrass the United States.

There has been a monotonous repetition by the secretary general of his neutrality in the matter. It is such neutrality, presumably, which made him so important to the United Nations that its members virtually vowed to disband should he resign his post — as he threatened to do some months ago. (The fact that the membership thus admitted that the United Nations was more a forum of personality than of principle is a corollary to this whole matter.)

The secretary general's neutrality, however, has consisted in the main of hinting, at the drop of a press conference, that our enemy in Vietnam, the Communist officials who have sent first guerrillas and then massed regular troops into the peaceful territory of their neighbor, is doing its best to end the fighting.

Even Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who otherwise has been an able and constant spokesman against such distortions, has suffered these digs in silence — setting the record straight usually in reply only to statements by others, such as when he carefully and objectively listed at least 28 times that we have tried to talk peace with the Communists only to be flatly rebuffed.

NOW, HOWEVER, U Thant has gone so far in his campaign of "neutrality" against the United States that he deserves a full salvo of official reply and a healthy helping of skepticism as to the indispensable nature of his U. N. services.

U Thant's latest barefaced attack against the facts and the United States is to publicly and loudly state that war with Red China is imminent — that if it happens it will be our fault. He says he shares Martin Luther King's all - out attack against our policy in Vietnam. He added piously, after this one, that he didn't mean to stick his nose into the affairs of a member state, but . . .

It is the North Vietnamese, whom U Thant has yet to criticize with anything like the vigor he uses against us, who have crossed a peaceful border. Not us, Mr. Thant.

It is Red China who is supporting and encouraging aggression. Not us, Mr. Thant.

It is Red China who, in any entry into the war, will have been expressing a desire to enlarge the fight. Not us, Mr. Thant.

It is we who have repeatedly asked that the fighting cease and that the borders be returned to their pre - invasion state. Not the Communists, Mr. Thant.

It is the secretary general's fantastic implication that the United States, by its bombing of the North, is waging some sort of aggressive war. He has yet to come to grips with the fact that it was the North which launched the aggression, that it is the North which is deploying troops in the South, that it is the North which is deliberately waging war against civilians in the South, that it is the North that wants to conquer another group of people through force of arms.

It is not us, Mr. Thant!

Black Power, Poverty

Two extremely disturbing factors involving the drive for power by this country's most aggressive and most violent leaders of what was once regarded as the integration movement have been disclosed in documents in the possession of Mayor Joe Smitherman of Selma, Ala.

One is the astonishing lengths to which "black power" advocates will go in their campaign of "down with Whitey" and the other is the amount of financial support being given these black power advocates by the national administration, despite the fact that they are openly advocating the overthrow of white government in the United States.

Smitherman displayed documents which he said proved black power advocates were behind an Alabama farm co-operative that received a $399,997 anti-poverty grant. If this is true, it is difficult to see the so-called anti-poverty money as anything other than a political gift by the administration. Surely the black power advocates are not poverty - stricken. Furthermore, recent figures show that Negroes have practically vanished from the farms of the nation, so why should Negro black power advocates be in charge of a farm co-operative and why should they receive a $399,997 anti-poverty grant?

The Selma mayor said the papers were found in a satchel which belonged to an official of the so-called Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, one of the most violent of the groups formerly devoting their attention to integration, instead of calling for "down with Whitey" and overthrow of the Caucasian government in this country.

There are those who say that in no other country in the world would anyone be allowed to get away with the sort of seditious and rebellious statements that have been made by some of the Negro advocates of black power in the United States.

The Office of Economic Opportunity announced in Washington recently that it was awarding the grant to the Southwest Alabama Farm Co-operative, despite the objection of local officials. The co-operative would function in 10 so-called "black belt" counties.

Governor Lurleen B. Wallace has announced she will veto the project but had a 30-day optional period before doing so. The grant could, and in all probability would, be awarded over her veto.

Mayor Smitherman said the satchel containing the documents was believed to belong to James Lytle, who is stationed at nearby Craig Air Force Base. He said the satchel was turned over to police by the finder and the police, in turn, gave it to him because of the type of material it contained. He said he had offered to give it to the Federal Bureau of Investigation but had had no reply to his offer.

Smitherman said some of the documents in the satchel showed the SNCC intended either to control or destroy the Office of Economic Opportunity.

It was stated that one of the papers was a newsletter which showed Senator Robert F. Kennedy, D., N. Y., had pushed for approval of the grant.

Another letter in the satchel was from Lytle's parents to Kennedy, asking him to intercede with the Air Force to keep Lytle from being discharged, Smitherman said. He said the Air Force later transferred Lytle to Craig AFB.

The way President Johnson is being used, abused and deceived by this country's so-called "doves" in behalf of a movement to dump Johnson and nominate Kennedy at the 1968 Democratic national convention is enough to make strong men weep. Negro black power advocates plan to gouge President Johnson for all the people's tax money they can get and then plan to lead the President "up a blind alley" and throw him to the wolves. The chances seem 99 to 1, or more, that the black power advocates will nail President Johnson to a cross made of his own donations to them and will tear him apart at the 1968 convention.

Many people throughout the nation wonder why President Johnson has not, long ago, seen the trap that has been laid for him.

De Gaulle's Brushoff Of England Explained

CHARLES DE Gaulle's imperial veto of England's application for entry into the Common Market was delivered in the grand style, but it is heavy with animus. Obviously attempting to bolster a rationale for keeping England away, General de Gaulle launched into economic analyses in which he is manifestly ill at ease, and it must have been a strain on him to memorize — as is his habit at all his press conferences—those passages in which he explained England's economic disqualifications.

It requires a superior economic intelligence to understand all the ramifications of the Common Market. The late Professor Wilhelm Ropke of Geneva, who was the teacher of Ludwig Erhard and subsequently of Walter Hallstein, until recently the administrative head of the Common Market, sharply disagreed with both of them about the desirability of an exclusively European experiment. Although an admirer of de Gaulle, he feared the cartelization of Europe, or even of parts of Europe. And indeed de Gaulle, in proceeding against England, seems to consider most objectionable England's ties elsewhere — he seems to fear the cosmopolitanization of the European plan.

It isn't that de Gaulle didn't make some good points, independently considered. Much of what he said about England is true, for instance that the English pound is shaky, and that the Common Market — which greaty depends on mutual convertibility of currencies — does not like to link up with a shaky partner. And then, de Gaulle observed, England has outstanding a number of commitments that trace to the fact of the pound sterling's being a reserve currency. So that currency reform in England isn't a matter that England can decide upon purely with reference to her own internal needs. There are the repercussions in the Commonwealth and elsewhere to be considered. And to consider other matters than Europe — as narrowly defined by Charles de Gaulle — is a cardinal obstacle to camaraderie with Charles de Gaulle.

THERE ARE of course, difficulties in English participation. But the whole Common Market idea is heavily burdened with difficulties for that matter, and there is no reason to believe that England's addition to that community would confront the Market with the marginal difficulty. What Charles de Gaulle distrusts is not England's economic suitability, but her political suitability. Concerning the latter, de Gaulle was vigorous, mostly indirect, but not always so. He referred specifically to "England's special relationships," including "those with America." (In another connection at his press conference he alluded to the "scandal of foreign intervention" in South Vietnam, by which he meant U.S. intervention, not the North Vietnamese. And he referred to the "threat" to Western Europe posed by America's "technological invasion.")

It was in his summation that de Gaulle was most characteristically himself. Having devoted two thousand words to describing England's unfortunate inadequacies, he loftily condescended to the oldest and most stable parliamentary government in the world, against the ironic background of a France whose Fifth Republic is being rocked by a general strike in protest against de Gaulle's invocation of despotic powers . . .

It is my intention, said de Gaulle, "to wait for the change to be brought about by the internal and external developments of which, it seems, England is showing signs. In other words, that this great people, so magnificiently gifted with ability and courage, should on their own behalf and for themselves achieve the profound economic and political transformation which would allow them to join the Six continentals. I truly believe that this is the desire of many people who wish to see a Europe appear, which would have its natural dimensions, and who have for England a deep admiration and a sincere friendship. If Britain one day reached this stage, with what joy would France then greet this historic transformation.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I have finished."

Finished with England. And, by example, with any other nation whose ties to the United States are so close as to disharmonize with de Gaulle's landed vision of a self-contained, endogamous continental unit, free at last from commercial, military, and political ties with the United States — the "other hegemony," as the general refers to the country that has overpaid the debt we have to Lafayette.

BARRY GOLDWATER

Thant Deliberately Embarrassing U. S.

ONE OF THE great, but often politely overlooked sanctuaries in the Vietnamese war is the foxhole of diplomatic immunity occupied at the United Nations by Secretary General U Thant.

Although it may be something akin to coming out four-square against apple pie, it is time someone blew the whistle on what this supposedly global official is doing to distort the facts and embarrass the United States.

There has been a monotonous repetition by the secretary general of his neutrality in the matter. It is such neutrality, presumably, which made him so important to the United Nations that its members virtually vowed to disband should he resign his post — as he threatened to do some months ago. (The fact that the membership thus admitted that the United Nations was more a forum of personality than of principle is a corollary to this whole matter.)

The secretary general's neutrality, however, has consisted in the main of hinting, at the drop of a press conference, that our enemy in Vietnam, the Communist officials who have sent first guerrillas and then massed regular troops into the peaceful territory of their neighbor, is doing its best to end the fighting.

Even Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who otherwise has been an able and constant spokesman against such distortions, has suffered these digs in silence — setting the record straight usually in reply only to statements by others, such as when he carefully and objectively listed at least 28 times that we have tried to talk peace with the Communists only to be flatly rebuffed.

NOW, HOWEVER, U Thant has gone so far in his campaign of "neutrality" against the United States that he deserves a full salvo of official reply and a healthy helping of skepticism as to the indispensable nature of his U. N. services.

U Thant's latest barefaced attack against the facts and the United States is to publicly and loudly state that war with Red China is imminent — that if it happens it will be our fault. He says he shares Martin Luther King's all - out attack against our policy in Vietnam. He added piously, after this one, that he didn't mean to stick his nose into the affairs of a member state, but . . .

It is the North Vietnamese, whom U Thant has yet to criticize with anything like the vigor he uses against us, who have crossed a peaceful border. Not us, Mr. Thant.

It is Red China who is supporting and encouraging aggression. Not us, Mr. Thant.

It is Red China who, in any entry into the war, will have been expressing a desire to enlarge the fight. Not us, Mr. Thant.

It is we who have repeatedly asked that the fighting cease and that the borders be returned to their pre - invasion state. Not the Communists, Mr. Thant.

It is the secretary general's fantastic implication that the United States, by its bombing of the North, is waging some sort of aggressive war. He has yet to come to grips with the fact that it was the North which launched the aggression, that it is the North which is deploying troops in the South, that it is the North which is deliberately waging war against civilians in the South, that it is the North that wants to conquer another group of people through force of arms.

It is not us, Mr. Thant.

Ban The Boycott

In case you might have missed it, the building trades unions are making enormous efforts to destroy a man's fundamental freedom to do business with whomever he pleases.

They are now asking Congress to pass legislation (HR 100 and S 1487) which would legalize secondary boycotts in the construction industry and enable the unions to force one company to stop doing business with another. This bill would give any union the legal right to completely shut down an entire construction project even though it has a grievance with only one of the many employers on the project. In some cases, disagreements between two unions could bring all work on a job to a stop.

Such a bill could and in all probability affect the Twin Cities area in a major way. Passage of such a bill will give the building trades unions a monopoly over construction labor in just about every section of the nation. They could demand that certain contractors or subcontractors on projects be kept off the job; or that wages be increased out of all proportion to productivity. And the unions could close down entire construction sites until their demands were met.

Figures show that in the past year the building trades have been able to get wage increases that averaged more than 6 per cent (this is more than twice the average income rate of growth). Added strike power would, of course, result in more unreasonable demands.

The secondary boycott bill could prove to be the inflationary straw that could break this country's economic back.

It is a bill that would affect every man, woman and child in the United States — where it would hurt the most — in the pocketbook.

A NEW HAIR Style is on the way — although as far as can be determined it has not hit the Twin Cities area under the particular name. So help us, it is called the "Kennedy Kut." In some sections of the country it is offered in men's barber shops, and it is the rage on certain college campuses in the East where the jet - set strives to look like Bobby.

Four Quotes

" . . . In time, perhaps in 10 or 20 years, the Chinese Communist leaders, like the Russians before them, will become somewhat less fanatic and somewhat more realistic in the view of the World." — Senator Fulbright.

"We shall continue to build bridges across the gulf which has divided us from Eastern Europe . . . We are in the midst of a great transition . . . I ask and urge the Congress to help our foreign and commercial trade policies by passing an East - West Trade bill and approving our Consular Convention with the Soviet Union." — President Johnson.

In his book Roosevelt and Hopkins, Robert Sherwood quoted Harry Hopkins, Roosevelt's closest confidant during the war years, as follows: "We really believed in our hearts that this was the dawn of a new day we had all been praying for and talking about for so many years. We were absolutely certain that we had won the first great victory of the peace — and, by 'we' I mean all of us, the whole human race. The Russians had proved that they could be reasonable and for seeing and there wasn't any doubt in the minds of the President or any of us that we could live with them and get along with them peacefully for as far into the future as any of us could imagine. But I have to make one amendment to that — I think we all had in our minds the reservation that we could not foretell what the result would be if anything should happen to Stalin. We felt sure that we could count on him to be reasonable and sensible and understanding — but we could not be sure who or what might be in back of him there in the Kremlin."

Surely there is no need to recite the Soviet record since Hopkins dreamed that dream. Perhaps a fourth quote will be more pointed.

In February of this year, Leonid Brezhnev told the Young Communist League: ". . .we are living at a time of bitter class struggle of two worlds — the world of socialism and the world of capitalism. . .the impact of our. . .successes in the upbuilding of a new society. . . is mounting day after day, eroding the pillars of capitalism from within. . . . We regard ourselves part and parcel of the. .world army of fighters for . . the victory of socialism and communism all over the world."

Could President Johnson be as tragically wrong as Roosevelt and Hopkins were? All the evidence points that way.

SHARP GIRLS: Whatever you may think of their dad, you have to hand it to the Johnson girls. One chose a career, and spends her time flying all over the world accompanied by Secret Service men, on writing assignments for a national magazine. Pretty exciting? The other chose marriage, to the student (at least he is now) at the University of Texas. Recently the Austin National Bank announced that student Patrick Nugent had been elected to its board of directors. How many college students do you know who are on the board of directors of a bank?

EVER STOP to think about the meaning of the tremendous military buildup going on in this country. If you do you can't believe it is all due to the Vietnam war where we now have more equipment, men and supplies than at any single time during the Korean War. So what's behind it — an anticipation of a major, general war? Some experts that should know believe the national leaders expect such a war within two years at most.

In Ouachita Parish

How much of an investment does the average 18 - year - old youngster in Ouachita Parish represent? What has it cost his parents to rear him or her from infancy to age 18?

Most parents haven't the slightest idea. They don't think of children in terms of dollars and cents and rightly so. Beyond knowing that the outlay at certain periods has been large, sometimes staggering, they have never thought about the total cost — and probably really don't care.

But sometimes statistics and figures are interesting things to play around with. So here are a few along this line.

According to studies made by the Institute of Life Insurance, the Agriculture Department and others, the cost varies greatly from family to family but is closely related to income.

On the average, about four years of family earnings are spent in raising a child to age 18.

The studies show that where net income is in the $5,000 to $7,000 range, as it is with the average Ouachita Parish family, the outlay per child is approximately $22,000.

Among families in the $12,000 to $14,000 category, the expenditures are in the neighborhood of $51,000 per child, it is found.

On the other hand, those with low incomes, $3,000 to $5,000, operating on a much tighter budget, spend $15,000 on an average.

In most families the largest single item of expense is food. The figures show that a girl consumes about $7,600 worth in the 18 years, based on present price levels, but that a boy outdoes her in that department by at least $500.

For the average - income family, other major items of cost are listed, based on the national studies. They include clothing, $2,850, transportation, $3,700, and medical care, close to $2,000.

Added to this are recreation, education, housing and personal care.

Fortunately, these costs are distributed over the 18 years. Not so are the medical fees, hospital bills and other expenses in connection with the child's birth.

How much does it all add up for the 2,150 boys and girls in Ouachita Parish who are becoming 18 this year.

On the basis of average cost per child locally, it comes to a grand total of $47,300,000. And that is only up to the point at which they are ready to enter college.

Landmark Decisions On Tariffs, Juveniles

By Oland Silk

FELONY rioting
Kennedy Round cheers from Geneva
Flash crises in Hong Kong and the Middle East
Justice for juveniles
More Garrison wallposters
Rent subsidy defeat
Changing of the Marine Guard in Vietnam
DeGaulle's "velvet veto" of Britain's entry into the Common Market
A DIPLOMATIC play by 16 Senate doves
A Southern bid to ease faculty integration guidelines

These were major news items last week. Now, a synopsis, in no particular order.

Tariffs Sliced

WHEN Congress passed the Trade Expansion act in 1962, it gave the then-President Kennedy authorization to enter this country into trade negotiations at Geneva, the goal being 50 per cent reduction in tariffs. Economists say tariff cuts stimulate business by speeding up and expanding world trade. This being so, it was assumed that the larger the reductions, the happier and wealthier everybody would be.

For five years, the Kennedy Round — so named because he fathered and pushed the idea — percolated along, negotiators working continuously to get agreements. Late Monday night in a sudden, feverish burst of activity brought on by the approaching expiration of the Trade Act, negotiators hammered out up to 35-per cent in tariff reductions, 15 short of the goal.

The agreements will affect more than 80 nations (53 participated in the talks) and bring on a big increase in world trade.

THE CUTS will be reciprocal, with every participating nation benefitting from new opportunities to export to the others.

Clearly it was the beginning of a grand design for partnership between the United States and Europe, particularly the six-nation Common Market which bargained as a single state. The two "countries" emerged as the world's greatest trading units. Communist countries did not participate.

CONSUMERS will not necessarily benefit from every reduction. Few of the 6,300 items in the U. S. tariff book are sold directly to consumers. All pass through the hands of dealers, wholesale and retail. They may pocket most of the savings. The buyer will get a break in having a wider variety of products to choose from however.

ONE example of a tariff cut: A $2,500 American car which now pays a duty of $550 in Western Europe will only have to pay $440 beginning July 1, 1968. This will be matched by a mutual concession here.

Not everyone was happy. The American chemical industry raised Holy Ned about concessions to European companies. Poor nations felt they got the short end, although criticism was muted. Generally, they didn't get as many concessions as they wanted, but will benefit from increased give-aways. Twelve nations agreed to take some of the burden off the United States and help feed the poor ones.

General DeGaulle
. . . . A Negative Yes

FOR THE first time farm products were included in a major tariff slicing session. Results were not sensational, but good.

Codifying the revised tariff schedules is now underway. It will be six weeks before businessmen will know exactly how much they will benefit.

In a related issue, President De Gaulle said it now seemed possible to admit Great Britain to the Common Market. He then proceeded to tell why it was unlikely, listing a series of obstacles. A London newspaper called his approach a "velvet veto." Meantime, the old general sought emergency powers to rule France by decree. Shadowing his move was the threat of a national strike.

Policeman Slain

TEXAS Southern University in Houston is predominately Negro. Until last week racial disturbances there had been minor. Following a watermelon-throwing incident at a Wednesday night student rally, the campus became a battlefield with police battling snipers from dormitory windows. One rookie policeman, Lewis Kuba, 25, was killed and 488 persons arrested, 16 of which remained in jail on charges of felony rioting. Conviction could mean up to 40 years in prison.

Kuba was shot as he and a platoon of 100 officers advanced on a dormitory complex. More than 650 took part before the night was over. Investigative efforts centered on finding the assailant, the extent of outside agitation, and who the armed students were.

Members of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (Snick) were known to be on the campus, although Stokely Carmichael, now resigned, was not one of them.

It was the second Negro college riot in two weeks in which a fatality had occurred. TSU's officials promised a crackdown on trouble-makers.

THE SUPREME Court Monday extended to juveniles substantially the same constitutional protection given adults in criminal trials. The 8-1 landmark decision was written by Justice Abe Fortas, who said juveniles must be given these rights:

1. Notice of the charges placed against them.
2. The right to have an attorney's assistance.
3. The right to confront and cross-examine complainants and other witnesses.
4. Protection against self-incrimination, including the privilege of remaining silent.
5. The right of transcript of the proceedings.
6. The right to have the case reviewed in higher courts.

THE RULING stemmed from an appeal brought by Mrs. Paul Gault of Kearney, Arizona, whose son, Gerald, was arrested in 1964 for making obscene telephone calls and sentenced to a state reform school. She said she and her husband decided to appeal when the judge refused to let her kiss Gerald goodbye.

Fortas made these points, after giving a detailed history of juvenile courts:

"NEITHER the Bill of Rights nor the U.S. Constitution is for adults only. Under our Constitution the condition of being a boy does not justify a kangaroo court."

Another: "Juvenile court history has again demonstrated that unbridled discretion, however benevolently motivated, is frequently a poor substitute for principle and procedure."

Many judges hailed the decision. Others were upset about the right granted kids to keep silent. One noted that it will be very difficult to help or rehabilitate any youngster who chooses to remain mute.

The lone court dissenter, Justice Potter Stewart, objected on the grounds that it was wholly unsound as a matter of constitutional law and sadly unwise as a matter of judicial policy. Said Stewart, the court was imposing upon thousands of juvenile courts throughout the nation restrictions that the Constitution made applicable to criminal trials.

IN WASHINGTON, the Presidential Crime Commission reported that wiretapping is needed to combat organized crime, in addition to espionage. The recommendation goes against Johnson's goal of restricting "snooping and bugging" to national security cases. The Commission pointed to the increasing sophistication of the criminal underworld and the extreme difficulty of rooting out syndicates who use force, "legal" methods, intimidation, and bribery to get their way.

A BATTLE royal shaped up in Congress over the Great Society's multi-billion - dollar school aid bill. The challengers were members of the old GOP-Southern Democrat coalition. They will be heard from next week. Last week's story centered on Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, and Georgia requests for relief from some of the desegregation regulations laid down by the U. S. Office of Education.

Major Gen. Cushman Jr.
. . . . Top Marine in Vietnam

Bill Dodd, Louisiana superintendent of public education, predicted that unless an easing of the desegregation - across - the-board rules were made, many school administrators and teachers in the South will retire or quit and it will be the students who will suffer.

SUPPORTING the state delegation was Senator Russell Long who pleaded for restoration of administrative procedures to school officials. "We further feel that if, for the sake of argument, these are good regulations (upheld by the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals) they should apply equally to all and not just to the states in the 5th circuit."

AT ONE point during the session held in the Senate Finance Committee room, Dodd said the guidelines were rotten. He offered the opinion that "if they (Northerners) think they are good they ought to have a taste of them and then we wouldn't have any more trouble in the South."

Mack Avants, Dodd's executive assistant, said he feared mass resignations of teachers. "We don't believe in coercion of faculties," he said.

It was uncertain what effect the protest meeting, chaired by Senator Long, would have either on the upcoming federal aid debate or next fall's school opening.

In other domestic developments:

The House, in the first real test on a controversial domestic issue in the 90th Congress, threw out Johnson's rent subsidy program and almost stopped his model cities program. Both were born in the last Congress.

ADMINISTRATION wrath descended upon House Republicans. Robert Weaver, head of the Department of Housing and Urban development, charged the GOP leadership victimized some 200,000 low-income Americans by spearheading the attack on rent supplements. The subsidy program calls for government payments to private landlords to supplement rents paid by eligible families. It is designed to encourage private, nonprofit enterprise to get into the housing field. Only a smattering of money was voted to carry out commitments already made. The model cities program was saved by a vote of 213 to 193.

SIXTEEN Senators, including major critics of the U. S. Viet policy, warned Hanoi against refusing negotiations in the hope that America will withdraw from the war. Senator Frank Church, D-Idaho, drafted the statement, which was approved by the Johnson Administration. The statement was aimed at eliminating any grounds for the Administration's contention that dissent could prolong the war by leading North Vietnam to believe the nation was not fully behind Johnson. In effect, it left critics freer to criticize.

More voices were raised in warning against the possibility of provoking Red China to enter the war.

NOW, briefly, as space will allow:

District Attorney Jim Garrison appeared unperturbed by a Dallas Times-Herald story challenging his theory of a mysterious code linking Oswald, Clay Shaw and Jack Ruby. Garrison claimed entries in books belonging to Shaw and Oswald — P. O. Box 19106 — was actually a coded version of Ruby's unlisted telephone number. The Times - Herald said the number was the former Post Office box of Lee Odom, a bullfight promoter, now living in a suburb of Dallas.

In another part of the same forest, FBI agent Regis Kennedy appeared before the New Orleans Grand Jury but refused to answer questions pertaining to the FBI's role in the assassination probe.

The British Colony of Hong Kong came under heavy rioting for two days by Chinese Communists. They demanded that Sir David Trench, governor of the colony, release with apologies more than 400 rioters arrested in the past week. The Hong Kong Reds were egged on by anti-British demonstrations in Peking.

American and South Vietnamese forces invaded the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) while American jets hit a key power plant near Hanoi and shot down three Communist MIG interceptors.

THE DMZ invasion was designed to wipe out 5,000 Communist forces using the neutral zone as a sanctuary in violation of the 1954 Geneva agreement.

The Marine - South Vietnamese thrust put the war on the doorstep of North Vietnam.

Meanwhile, Lt. General Lewis Walt, Marine commander in Vietnam for the past two years, was preparing to leave for home to take a top post in Washington. His replacement will be Maj. Gen. Robert Cushman Jr., 52, a native of St. Paul, Minn. Cushman has been Walt's deputy, and will take charge of a 75,000-man force. General Walt had remained an extra year at the request of the Pentagon.

In the volcanic Middle East, Egypt massed troops on the Siani Peninsula and threatened Israel with a "holy war." U. N. Peacekeeping forces between the Arabs and Israelis were ordered out by Secretary - General U Thant. Observers said one misstep could plunge the bristling region into war.

The Week's Twin Cities-Area News In Review

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Monroyans in the foreseeable future will be seeing their city — literally — in an entirely new light. It will be seen, in fact, in $405,000-worth of new light.

Thus was the significance of disclosures made last week by city, Utilities Commission and engineering officials charged with pressing to completion a three-phased lighting modernization program.

And thus was the mystery of those colorful little painted circles appearing recently on downtown streets cleared up. A good deal more illuminating than Op Art, each marks a light location.

Assembled in the City Hall office of Mayor W. L. Howard, officials outlined the planned installation of 731 vastly more effective mercury vapor lamps in the downtown sector alone, capable of turning night into day and, depending on where one stands, due to provide from 10 to 50 per cent better illumination.

Contract on this work, tagged Phase I, is anticipated not later than early July, with contracts to follow on re-lighting of principal traffic arteries outside center-city in Phase II and re-lighting of secondary arteries "as far as the money goes."

Funds were allocated in the Utilities Commission's most recent — a $15.7 million — revenue bond issue.

MORE NEW LIGHT

Intimations on utilities were far from the only enlightening disclosures of the week. Monroe was getting a new look, obviously, as well as new lights as efforts in the city's most massive beautification campaign ever pushed to an initial climax with judging Friday by officials of the Louisiana Federation of Garden Clubs.

The competition is to determine "Louisiana's Cleanest City" and it's been uppermost for at least two months in the minds of Monroe Beautification Board members and leaders in a score of civic clubs and women's organizations. How well Monroe fared in the district will be known Tuesday. State judging should be completed by early June.

Other peaks by MYRTLE (the name of the beautification drive) were reached with the judging of Lexington and the Little Flower Academy as the city's cleanest schools.

Meanwhile, Monroe's ALERT program, part of a statewide campaign for upgrading in 10 separate areas of community betterment, also was beating the drums for beautification, establishing long-range goals for a more attractive city.

Other new looks were evident or on the way. Monroe's long-awaited official flag finally arrived and was quickly enstalled in front of City Hall, along with five ensigns already floating there. The predominantly blue banners, bearing hand - stitched replicas of the Monroe Civic Center's $100,000 Symphonic Color Fall fountain display, also went into main city offices, to local high schools and to Northeast Louisiana State College.

Work by the way — due to take some six weeks — started early in the week on installation of the complicated inner workings of the Civic Center fountain. It will be the largest and most ornate attraction of its type in the South and, considering they've a big one in Texas, that's some statement.

Talking of long awaited objects in connection with new looks, as we were, Monroe's new approximately one-fourth larger dog pound was opened Tuesday at Selman Field. It stands side by side with the old pound, called by some unserviceable, yet remaining in service, being used by the City of West Monroe and Ouachita Parish.

In another area, new looks are obviously in mind in public housing. Recertification of participation by Monroe, dropped two years ago, in federal loans for public housing was announced from Washington. Locally, the mayor drew a careful distinction between this program — loans, not grants — an urban renewal, a subject which took a beating Monday at the Legislature. Monroe, almost certainly, will seek an enabling bill in the next regular Legislature permitting use here of urban renewal funds, though officials insist the measure will be "local option" in the purest sense of the term. The bill will contain a provision requiring an okay from city voters prior to acceptance of the funds.

UPS AND DOWNS

The broad and always productive subject of education, despite some pronounced peaks and troughs, also was contributing to this Sunday's new look theme. Key posts were filled; at least one was marked by imminent vacancy.

In reverse order, it was probably the unexpected revelation of the planned departure from Monroe of City School Board member Billy Hargiss that produced the deepest trough. By nearly any standard the most outspoken of the five-man body and a frequent critic of board policy, Hargiss told the paper he is taking a new position in Dumas, Ark., giving "professional betterment" as his reason for leaving. The well-liked boardman said he will tender his resignation to Gov. John McKeithen around mid-June, and is due to depart the city about a month later. Hargiss will serve until appointment by the governor of a successor. The next board elections come in May 1968.

For their part, Ouachita school board members were filling posts in moves necessitated by two pending retirements. With Clifford Roberts, visiting teacher, ready to leave July 1, Riser School assistant principal Bobby C. Wilson was named to assume the spot on Aug. 1. In Sterlington, Principal O. K. Bailey is winding up the last term of a long career at the high school and will be succeeded by his assistant, Jimmy White. Moved to Wilson's assistance at Riser was C. L. Wink.

Meanwhile, back at the city board which met Tuesday, another long career was closing — that of the board's effort to air condition all the system's schools. After one false start, balking at a $46,990 bid considered too high on Georgia Tucker Elementary — the only school not then under contract — the board changed its mind. Advised by engineering consultant D. F. Burkhalter Jr., they took the bid of Twin City Plumbing, after an initial rejection, even though it figured out to approximately $710 a ton. Running far beyond original bond issue allocations on air conditioning, the board lately had been shooting for per-ton costs of $650.

On the subject of closing careers, plans were being made to close 29th with commencement exercises next Friday at Northeast Louisiana State College, along with thousands at the various high schools during the week. Set to deliver the commencement address at Northeast is Dr. Paul A. Miller, assistant secretary of education for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Earlier the same day, the graduation candidates will hear a baccalaureate sermon by Dr. James W. Middleton, pastor of Shreveport's First Baptist Church. Both programs are set for Neville auditorium.

And since careers start as well as stop at Northeast, the college's scholarship foundation during the week distributed 31 scholarships to outstanding high school seniors.

FALSE STOP

But down in Baton Rouge, all this while, the Greatest Show on Earth was closing its second week, and it was a false stop, rather than a false start, that plagued the Louisiana Legislature. Stated briefly, the Senate adjourned for the week Thursday afternoon, not realizing the House was laboring to send over legisation which would die by Monday. Like flushed quail the senators departed and in the do that followed, state police, clerks, recaptured solons and mounties were hard-pressed to locate the necessary three-fourths.

Otherwise, it was a busy week in the capital and many of the considerations had to do with new looks. Urban renewal — via Shreveport and New Orleans — got a thumping, as the governor seemed to take first one position, then another.

But the real New Look, if Sen. Jamar Adcock's "emergency" measure goes through, will be in the Ouachita-Morehouse-East Carroll-West Carroll senatorial district, which the Monroe solon seeks to divisionalize. Adcock, representing the old district's Ouachita and Jackson Parishes in its single senatorial seat, this winter will be running for one of two seats the enlarged district will have. If his bill should pass, however, the state's multi-office districts would be divided into divisions, with candidates signing up for divisional races, rather than running district-wide.

Commenting that men claiming to be his friends are seeking senate seats, the Monroyan was quoted as saying that, in effect, they could show him whether they are friends by running in a division other than the division he is in.

In the other chamber, Rep. Benny Christian or Rayville and Monroe's Lawrence Gibbs were battling unsuccessfully for a new look in automobile insurance rates. They were behind two bills that failed: one to abolish the State Insurance Commission, the other requiring insurance companies to take two per cent of their premium investment income into account in setting rates.

Meanwhile, persistent rumors that Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock would abandon his bid for the governorship were given new intensity. McKeithen has said he will support his lieutenant governor should he decided to seek that office for the third time, even if he chooses to run as independent. Likely close to the grapevine as the stories flew was Monroe's James W. Moore, a McKeithen confidante and an announced candidate for lieutenant governor.

BATTLE DEATHS

Word from the Far East brought both good news and tragic. Two battle deaths had been reported in the period covered today — those of Spc. 4 John Carmack of Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carmack, and Marine Pvt. Bobby G. Stanford, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Guy Stanford, 2716 Lee Ave., Monroe. Striking back early in the week was Marine William L. Kirk, 34, of Rayville, who was credited with shooting down one of at least seven communist aircraft which feel in a great sky battle over North Vietnam.

Accidental death continued to claim lives locally and in the area. Two drownings were among the incidents: Jackie Cagle Jr., 13, of Campti, drowned Thursday night in the Louisiana Training Institute swimming pool, while Eddie Thomason, also 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thomason, 808 Wheelis, West Monroe, drowned Tuesday on a swimming outing Tuesday with four companions near Toney Bayou. Little Opal Jeanette Rawls, one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rawls, 120 Blanks St., West Monroe, died in the flames Wednesday evening which consumed an abandoned auto in which she and two older brothers were playing. A 55-year-old Delhi man, John W. Johnson, was killed when his truck was struck by a passenger train at the crossing of a gravel cutoff leading to the Delhi Country Club. He was going fishing.

Other deaths in the area claimed Charles N. Story, 85-year-old former president of the Morehouse Parish Police Jury and a Bastrop resident, and the Rev. Doyle Benton Tullos, 65, active in Jackson Parish schools for 32 years and principal at Weston for 24 years.

Meantime, a revered name in judicial circles was being recalled in Alexandria Monday when a memorial was held in U.S. District Court of the Western District of Louisiana. The eulogy praised the late Judge Ben C. Dawkins Sr., who died last August after 50 distinguished years in state and federal jurisprudence. His son now presides in the district.

OTHER NEWS

Other news of the week was so plentiful, it must be listed, without ado, in what little space remains to us:

U. S. army Corps of Engineers spokesmen gave assurance that the noticeably rising Ouachita River at the Twin Cities will peak in a week to 10 days at considerbly less than flood stage. The spring rise, in fact, will be much below the average they said.

The state accepted a bid of $261,196 on resurfacing and four-laning of West Monroe's North Seventh Street, from Cypress to the Arkansas Road, while the city pushed plans for removal of utility lines from the right-of-way. The job will require about six months.

Chamber of Commerce leaders took to Baton Rouge the list of nominees from which the governor will name the first board of a reactivated Greater Ouachita Port Authority. Nominees were submitted by Monroe, West Monroe and the Ouachita Police Jury.

The 100 block of Walnut Street in downtown Monroe — the second street from the end of the Old Traffic Bridge — was made two-way by the Police Department, opening the route to south-bound vehicles and permitting loops of the block it flanks on the east side.

The Monroe-West Monroe Board of Realtors got a running start into National Realtors' Week — which begins officially today — by hosting President Phillip Zollinger of the Louisiana Realtors' Association. The board presented an appreciation plaque to News-Star-Morning World executive editor Jack Gates for help in publicity.

Ban The Boycott

In case you might have missed it, the building trades unions are making enormous efforts to destroy a man's fundamental freedom to do business with whomever he pleases.

They are now asking Congress to pass legislation (HR 100 and S 1487) which would legalize secondary boycotts in the construction industry and enable the unions to force one company to stop doing business with another. This bill would give any union the legal right to completely shut down an entire construction project even though it has a grievance with only one of the many employers on the project. In some cases, disagreements between two unions could bring all work on a job to a stop.

Such a bill could and in all probability affect the Twin Cities area in a major way. Passage of such a bill will give the building trades unions a monopoly over construction labor in just about every section of the nation. They could demand that certain contractors or subcontractors on projects be kept off the job; or that wages be increased out of all proportion to productivity. And the unions could close down entire construction sites until their demands were met.

Figures show that in the past year the building trades have been able to get wage increases that averaged more than 6 per cent (this is more than twice the average income rate of growth). Added strike power would, of course, result in more unreasonable demands.

The secondary boycott bill could prove to be the inflationary straw that could break this country's economic back.

It is a bill that would affect every man, woman and child in the United States — where it would hurt the most — in the pocketbook.

A NEW HAIR Style is on the way — although as far as can be determined it has not hit the Twin Cities area under the particular name. So help us, it is called the "Kennedy Kut." In some sections of the country it is offered in men's barber shops, and it is the rage on certain college campuses in the East where the jet - set strives to look like Bobby.

Four Quotes

" . . . In time, perhaps in 10 or 20 years, the Chinese Communist leaders, like the Russians before them, will become somewhat less fanatic and somewhat more realistic in the view of the World." — Senator Fulbright.

"We shall continue to build bridges across the gulf which has divided us from Eastern Europe . . . We are in the midst of a great transition . . . I ask and urge the Congress to help our foreign and commercial trade policies by passing an East - West Trade bill and approving our Consular Convention with the Soviet Union." — President Johnson.

In his book Roosevelt and Hopkins, Robert Sherwood quoted Harry Hopkins, Roosevelt's closest confidant during the war years, as follows: "We really believed in our hearts that this was the dawn of a new day we had all been praying for and talking about for so many years. We were absolutely certain that we had won the first great victory of the peace — and, by 'we' I mean all of us, the whole human race. The Russians had proved that they could be reasonable and for seeing and there wasn't any doubt in the minds of the President or any of us that we could live with them and get along with them peacefully for as far into the future as any of us could imagine. But I have to make one amendment to that — I think we all had in our minds the reservation that we could not foretell what the result would be if anything should happen to Stalin. We felt sure that we could count on him to be reasonable and sensible and understanding — but we could not be sure who or what might be in back of him there in the Kremlin."

Surely there is no need to recite the Soviet record since Hopkins dreamed that dream. Perhaps a fourth quote will be more pointed.

In February of this year, Leonid Brezhnev told the Young Communist League: ". . .we are living at a time of bitter class struggle of two worlds — the world of socialism and the world of capitalism. . .the impact of our. . .successes in the upbuilding of a new society. . . is mounting day after day, eroding the pillars of capitalism from within. . . . We regard ourselves part and parcel of the. .world army of fighters for . . the victory of socialism and communism all over the world."

Could President Johnson be as tragically wrong as Roosevelt and Hopkins were? All the evidence points that way.

SHARP GIRLS: Whatever you may think of their dad, you have to hand it to the Johnson girls. One chose a career, and spends her time flying all over the world accompanied by Secret Service men, on writing assignments for a national magazine. Pretty exciting? The other chose marriage, to the student (at least he is now) at the University of Texas. Recently the Austin National Bank announced that student Patrick Nugent had been elected to its board of directors. How many college students do you know who are on the board of directors of a bank?

EVER STOP to think about the meaning of the tremendous military buildup going on in this country. If you do you can't believe it is all due to the Vietnam war where we now have more equipment, men and supplies than at any single time during the Korean War. So what's behind it — an anticipation of a major, general war? Some experts that should know believe the national leaders expect such a war within two years at most. . .

In Ouachita Parish

How much of an investment does the average 18 - year - old youngster in Ouachita Parish represent? What has it cost his parents to rear him or her from infancy to age 18?

Most parents haven't the slightest idea. They don't think of children in terms of dollars and cents and rightly so. Beyond knowing that the outlay at certain periods has been large, sometimes staggering, they have never thought about the total cost — and probably really don't care.

But sometimes statistics and figures are interesting things to play around with. So here are a few along this line.

According to studies made by the Institute of Life Insurance, the Agriculture Department and others, the cost varies greatly from family to family but is closely related to income.

On the average, about four years of family earnings are spent in raising a child to age 18.

The studies show that where net income is in the $5,000 to $7,000 range, as it is with the average Ouachita Parish family, the outlay per child is approximately $22,000.

Among families in the $12,000 to $14,000 category, the expenditures are in the neighborhood of $51,000 per child, it is found.

On the other hand, those with low incomes, $3,000 to $5,000, operating on a much tighter budget, spend $15,000 on an average.

In most families the largest single item of expense is food. The figures show that a girl consumes about $7,600 worth in the 18 years, based on present price levels, but that a boy outdoes her in that department by at least $500.

For the average - income family, other major items of cost are listed, based on the national studies. They include clothing, $2,850, transportation, $3,700, and medical care, close to $2,000.

Added to this are recreation, education, housing and personal care.

Fortunately, these costs are distributed over the 18 years. Not so are the medical fees, hospital bills and other expenses in connection with the child's birth.

How much does it all add up for the 2,150 boys and girls in Ouachita Parish who are becoming 18 this year

On the basis of average cost per child locally, it comes to a grand total of $47,300,000. And that is only up to the point at which they are ready to enter college.

Landmark Decisions On Tariffs, Juveniles

By Oland Silk

FELONY rioting
Kennedy Round cheers from Geneva
Flash crises in Hong Kong and the Middle East
Justice for juveniles
More Garrison wallposters
Rent subsidy defeat
Changing of the Marine Guard in Vietnam
DeGaulle's "velvet veto" of Britain's entry into the Common Market
A DIPLOMATIC play by 16 Senate doves
A Southern bid to ease faculty integration guidelines

These were major news items last week. Now, a synopsis, in no particular order.

Tariffs Sliced

WHEN Congress passed the Trade Expansion act in 1962, it gave the then-President Kennedy authorization to enter this country into trade negotiations at Geneva, the goal being 50 per cent reduction in tariffs. Economists say tariff cuts stimulate business by speeding up and expanding world trade. This being so, it was assumed that the larger the reductions, the happier and wealthier everybody would be.

For five years, the Kennedy Round — so named because he fathered and pushed the idea — percolated along, negotiators working continuously to get agreements. Late Monday night in a sudden, feverish burst of activity brought on by the approaching expiration of the Trade Act, negotiators hammered out up to 35-per cent in tariff reductions, 15 short of the goal.

The agreements will affect more than 80 nations (53 participated in the talks) and bring on a big increase in world trade.

THE CUTS will be reciprocal, with every participating nation benefitting from new opportunities to export to the others.

Clearly it was the beginning of a grand design for partnership between the United States and Europe, particularly the six-nation Common Market which bargained as a single state. The two "countries" emerged as the world's greatest trading units. Communist countries did not participate.

CONSUMERS will not necessarily benefit from every reduction. Few of the 6,300 items in the U. S. tariff book are sold directly to consumers. All pass through the hands of dealers, wholesale and retail. They may pocket most of the savings. The buyer will get a break in having a wider variety of products to choose from however.

ONE example of a tariff cut: A $2,500 American car which now pays a duty of $550 in Western Europe will only have to pay $440 beginning July 1, 1968. This will be matched by a mutual concession here.

Not everyone was happy. The American chemical industry raised Holy Ned about concessions to European companies. Poor nations felt they got the short end, although criticism was muted. Generally, they didn't get as many concessions as they wanted, but will benefit from increased give-aways. Twelve nations agreed to take some of the burden off the United States and help feed the poor ones.

General DeGaulle
. . . . A Negative Yes

FOR THE first time farm products were included in a major tariff slicing session. Results were not sensational, but good.

Codifying the revised tariff schedules is now underway. It will be six weeks before businessmen will know exactly how much they will benefit.

In a related issue, President De Gaulle said it now seemed possible to admit Great Britain to the Common Market. He then proceeded to tell why it was unlikely, listing a series of obstacles. A London newspaper called his approach a "velvet veto." Meantime, the old general sought emergency powers to rule France by decree. Shadowing his move was the threat of a national strike.

Policeman Slain

TEXAS Southern University in Houston is predominately Negro. Until last week racial disturbances there had been minor. Following a watermelon-throwing incident at a Wednesday night student rally, the campus became a battlefield with police battling snipers from dormitory windows. One rookie policeman, Lewis Kuba, 25, was killed and 488 persons arrested, 16 of which remained in jail on charges of felony rioting. Conviction could mean up to 40 years in prison.

Kuba was shot as he and a platoon of 100 officers advanced on a dormitory complex. More than 650 took part before the night was over. Investigative efforts centered on finding the assailant, the extent of outside agitation, and who the armed students were.

Members of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (Snick) were known to be on the campus, although Stokely Carmichael, now resigned, was not one of them.

It was the second Negro college riot in two weeks in which a fatality had occurred. TSU's officials promised a crackdown on trouble-makers.

THE SUPREME Court Monday extended to juveniles substantially the same constitutional protection given adults in criminal trials. The 8-1 landmark decision was written by Justice Abe Fortas, who said juveniles must be given these rights:

1. Notice of the charges placed against them.
2. The right to have an attorney's assistance.
3. The right to confront and cross-examine complainants and other witnesses.
4. Protection against self-incrimination, including the privilege of remaining silent.
5. The right of transcript of the proceedings.
6. The right to have the case reviewed in higher courts.

THE RULING stemmed from an appeal brought by Mrs. Paul Gault of Kearney, Arizona, whose son, Gerald, was arrested in 1964 for making obscene telephone calls and sentenced to a state reform school. She said she and her husband decided to appeal when the judge refused to let her kiss Gerald goodbye.

Fortas made these points, after giving a detailed history of juvenile courts:

"NEITHER the Bill of Rights nor the U.S. Constitution is for adults only. Under our Constitution the condition of being a boy does not justify a kangaroo court."

Another: "Juvenile court history has again demonstrated that unbridled discretion, however benevolently motivated, is frequently a poor substitute for principle and procedure."

Many judges hailed the decision. Others were upset about the right granted kids to keep silent. One noted that it will be very difficult to help or rehabilitate any youngster who chooses to remain mute.

The lone court dissenter, Justice Potter Stewart, objected on the grounds that it was wholly unsound as a matter of constitutional law and sadly unwise as a matter of judicial policy. Said Stewart, the court was imposing upon thousands of juvenile courts throughout the nation restrictions that the Constitution made applicable to criminal trials.

IN WASHINGTON, the Presidential Crime Commission reported that wiretapping is needed to combat organized crime, in addition to espionage. The recommendation goes against Johnson's goal of restricting "snooping and bugging" to national security cases. The Commission pointed to the increasing sophistication of the criminal underworld and the extreme difficulty of rooting out syndicates who use force, "legal" methods, intimidation, and bribery to get their way.

A BATTLE royal shaped up in Congress over the Great Society's multi-billion - dollar school aid bill. The challengers were members of the old GOP-Southern Democrat coalition. They will be heard from next week. Last week's story centered on Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, and Georgia requests for relief from some of the desegregation regulations laid down by the U. S. Office of Education.

Major Gen. Cushman Jr.
. . . . Top Marine in Vietnam

Bill Dodd, Louisiana superintendent of public education, predicted that unless an easing of the desegregation - across - the-board rules were made, many school administrators and teachers in the South will retire or quit and it will be the students who will suffer.

SUPPORTING the state delegation was Senator Russell Long who pleaded for restoration of administrative procedures to school officials. "We further feel that if, for the sake of argument, these are good regulations (upheld by the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals) they should apply equally to all and not just to the states in the 5th circuit."

AT ONE point during the session held in the Senate Finance Committee room, Dodd said the guidelines were rotten. He offered the opinion that "if they (Northerners) think they are good they ought to have a taste of them and then we wouldn't have any more trouble in the South."

Mack Avants, Dodd's executive assistant, said he feared mass resignations of teachers. "We don't believe in coercion of faculties," he said.

It was uncertain what effect the protest meeting, chaired by Senator Long, would have either on the upcoming federal aid debate or next fall's school opening.

In other domestic developments:

The House, in the first real test on a controversial domestic issue in the 90th Congress, threw out Johnson's rent subsidy program and almost stopped his model cities program. Both were born in the last Congress.

ADMINISTRATION wrath descended upon House Republicans. Robert Weaver, head of the Department of Housing and Urban development, charged the GOP leadership victimized some 200,000 low-income Americans by spearheading the attack on rent supplements. The subsidy program calls for government payments to private landlords to supplement rents paid by eligible families. It is designed to encourage private, nonprofit enterprise to get into the housing field. Only a smattering of money was voted to carry out commitments already made. The model cities program was saved by a vote of 213 to 193.

SIXTEEN Senators, including major critics of the U. S. Viet policy, warned Hanoi against refusing negotiations in the hope that America will withdraw from the war. Senator Frank Church, D-Idaho, drafted the statement, which was approved by the Johnson Administration. The statement was aimed at eliminating any grounds for the Administration's contention that dissent could prolong the war by leading North Vietnam to believe the nation was not fully behind Johnson. In effect, it left critics freer to criticize.

More voices were raised in warning against the possibility of provoking Red China to enter the war.

NOW, briefly, as space will allow:

District Attorney Jim Garrison appeared unperturbed by a Dallas Times-Herald story challenging his theory of a mysterious code linking Oswald, Clay Shaw and Jack Ruby. Garrison claimed entries in books belonging to Shaw and Oswald — P. O. Box 19106 — was actually a coded version of Ruby's unlisted telephone number. The Times - Herald said the number was the former Post Office box of Lee Odom, a bullfight promoter, now living in a suburb of Dallas.

In another part of the same forest, FBI agent Regis Kennedy appeared before the New Orleans Grand Jury but refused to answer questions pertaining to the FBI's role in the assassination probe.

The British Colony of Hong Kong came under heavy rioting for two days by Chinese Communists. They demanded that Sir David Trench, governor of the colony, release with apologies more than 400 rioters arrested in the past week. The Hong Kong Reds were egged on by anti-British demonstrations in Peking.

American and South Vietnamese forces invaded the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) while American jets hit a key power plant near Hanoi and shot down three Communist MIG interceptors.

THE DMZ invasion was designed to wipe out 5,000 Communist forces using the neutral zone as a sanctuary in violation of the 1954 Geneva agreement.

The Marine - South Vietnamese thrust put the war on the doorstep of North Vietnam.

Meanwhile, Lt. General Lewis Walt, Marine commander in Vietnam for the past two years, was preparing to leave for home to take a top post in Washington. His replacement will be Maj. Gen. Robert Cushman Jr., 52, a native of St. Paul, Minn. Cushman has been Walt's deputy, and will take charge of a 75,000-man force. General Walt had remained an extra year at the request of the Pentagon.

In the volcanic Middle East, Egypt massed troops on the Siani Peninsula and threatened Israel with a "holy war." U. N. Peacekeeping forces between the Arabs and Israelis were ordered out by Secretary - General U Thant. Observers said one misstep could plunge the bristling region into war.

The Week's Twin Cities-Area News In Review

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Monroyans in the foreseeable future will be seeing their city — literally — in an entirely new light. It will be seen, in fact, in $405,000-worth of new light.

Thus was the significance of disclosures made last week by city, Utilities Commission and engineering officials charged with pressing to completion a three-phased lighting modernization program.

And thus was the mystery of those colorful little painted circles appearing recently on downtown streets cleared up. A good deal more illuminating than Op Art, each marks a light location.

Assembled in the City Hall office of Mayor W. L. Howard, officials outlined the planned installation of 731 vastly more effective mercury vapor lamps in the downtown sector alone, capable of turning night into day and, depending on where one stands, due to provide from 10 to 50 per cent better illumination.

Contract on this work, tagged Phase I, is anticipated not later than early July, with contracts to follow on re-lighting of principal traffic arteries outside center-city in Phase II and re-lighting of secondary arteries "as far as the money goes."

Funds were allocated in the Utilities Commission's most recent — a $15.7 million — revenue bond issue.

MORE NEW LIGHT

Intimations on utilities were far from the only enlightening disclosures of the week. Monroe was getting a new look, obviously, as well as new lights as efforts in the city's most massive beautification campaign ever pushed to an initial climax with judging Friday by officials of the Louisiana Federation of Garden Clubs.

The competition is to determine "Louisiana's Cleanest City" and it's been uppermost for at least two months in the minds of Monroe Beautification Board members and leaders in a score of civic clubs and women's organizations. How well Monroe fared in the district will be known Tuesday. State judging should be completed by early June.

Other peaks by MYRTLE (the name of the beautification drive) were reached with the judging of Lexington and the Little Flower Academy as the city's cleanest schools.

Meanwhile, Monroe's ALERT program, part of a statewide campaign for upgrading in 10 separate areas of community betterment, also was beating the drums for beautification, establishing long-range goals for a more attractive city.

Other new looks were evident or on the way. Monroe's long-awaited official flag finally arrived and was quickly enstaffed in front of City Hall, along with five ensigns already floating there. The predominantly blue banners, bearing hand - stitched replicas of the Monroe Civic Center's $100,000 Symphonic Color-Fall fountain display, also went into main city offices, to local high schools and to Northeast Louisiana State College.

Work, by the way — due to take some six weeks — started early in the week on installation of the complicated inner workings of the Civic Center fountain It will be the largest and most ornate attraction of its type in the South and, considering they've a big one in Texas, that's some statement.

Talking of long-awaited objects in connection with new looks, as we were, Monroe's new approximately one-fourth larger dog pound was opened Tuesday at Selman Field. It stands side by side with the old pound, called by some unserviceable, yet remaining in service, being used by the City of West Monroe and Ouachita Parish.

In another area, new looks are obviously in mind in public housing. Recertification of participation by Monroe, dropped two years ago, in federal loans for public housing was announced from Washington. Locally, the mayor drew a careful distinction between this program — loans, not grants — an urban renewal, a subject which took a beating Monday at the Legislature. Monroe, almost certainly, will seek an enabling bill in the next regular Legislature permitting use here of urban renewal funds, though officials insist the measure will be "local option" in the purest sense of the term. The bill will contain a provision requiring an okay from city voters prior to acceptance of the funds.

UPS AND DOWNS

The broad and always productive subject of education, despite some pronounced peaks and troughs, also was contributing to this Sunday's new look theme. Key posts were filled; at least one was marked by imminent vacancy.

In reverse order, it was probably the unexpected revelation of the planned departure from Monroe of City School Board member Billy Hargiss that produced the deepest trough. By nearly any standard the most outspoken of the five-man body and a frequent critic of board policy, Hargiss told the paper he is taking a new position in Dumas, Ark., giving "professional betterment" as his reason for leaving. The well-liked boardman said he will tender his resignation to Gov. John McKeithen around mid-June, and is due to depart the city about a month later. Hargiss will serve until appointment by the governor of a successor. The next board elections come in May 1968.

For their part, Ouachita school board members were filling posts in moves necessitated by two pending retirements. With Clifford Roberts, visiting teacher, ready to leave July 1, Riser School assistant principal Bobby C. Wilson was named to assume the spot on Aug. 1. In Sterlington, Principal O. K. Bailey is winding up the last term of a long career at the high school and will be succeeded by his assistant, Jimmy White. Moved to Wilson's assistance at Riser was C. L. Wink.

Meanwhile, back at the city board which met Tuesday, another long career was closing — that of the board's effort to air condition all the system's schools. After one false start, balking at a $46,990 bid considered too high on Georgia Tucker Elementary — the only school not then under contract — the board changed its mind. Advised by engineering consultant D. F. Burkhalter Jr., they took the bid of Twin City Plumbing, after an initial rejection, even though it figured out to approximately $710 a ton. Running far beyond original bond issue allocations on air conditioning, the board lately had been shooting for per-ton costs of $650.

On the subject of closing careers, plans were being made to close 293 with commencement exercises next Friday at Northeast Louisiana State College, along with thousands at the various high schools during the week. Set to deliver the commencement address at Northeast is Dr. Paul A. Miller, assistant secretary of education for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Earlier the same day, the graduation candidates will hear a baccalaureate sermon by Dr. James W. Middleton, pastor of Shreveport's First Baptist Church. Both programs are set for Neville auditorium.

And since careers start as well as stop at Northeast, the college's scholarship foundation during the week distributed 31 scholarships to outstanding high school seniors.

FALSE STOP

But down in Baton Rouge, all this while, the Greatest Show on Earth was closing its second week, and it was a false stop, rather than a false start, that plagued the Louisiana Legislature. Stated briefly, the Senate adjourned for the week Thursday afternoon, not realizing the House was laboring to send over legisation which would die by Monday. Like flushed quail the senators departed and in the do that followed, state police, clerks, recaptured solons and mounties were hard-pressed to locate the necessary three-fourths.

Otherwise, it was a busy week in the capital and many of the considerations had to do with new looks. Urban renewal — via Shreveport and New Orleans — got a thumping, as the governor seemed to take first one position, then another.

But the real New Look, if Sen. Jamar Adcock's "emergency" measure goes through, will be in the Ouachita-Morehouse-East Carroll-West Carroll senatorial district, which the Monroe solon seeks to divisionalize. Adcock, representing the old district's Ouachita and Jackson Parishes in its single senatorial seat, this winter will be running for one of two seats the enlarged district will have. If his bill should pass, however, the state's multi-office districts would be divided into divisions, with candidates signing up for divisional races, rather than running district-wide.

Commenting that men claiming to be his friends are seeking senate seats, the Monroyan was quoted as saying that, in effect, they could show him whether they are friends by running in a division other than the division he is in.

In the other chamber, Rep. Benny Christian or Rayville and Monroe's Lawrence Gibbs were battling unsuccessfully for a new look in automobile insurance rates. They were behind two bills that failed: one to abolish the State Insurance Commission, the other requiring insurance companies to take two per cent of their premium investment income into account in setting rates.

Meanwhile, persistent rumors that Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock would abandon his bid for the governorship were given new intensity. McKeithen has said he will support his lieutenant governor should he decided to seek that office for the third time, even if he chooses to run as independent. Likely close to the grapevine as the stories flew was Monroe's James W. Moore, a McKeithen confidante and an announced candidate for lieutenant governor.

BATTLE DEATHS

Word from the Far East brought both good news and tragic. Two battle deaths had been reported in the period covered today — those of Spc. 4 John Carmack of Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carmack, and Marine Pvt. Bobby G. Stanford, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Guy Stanford, 2716 Lee Ave., Monroe. Striking back early in the week was Maj. William L. Kirk, 34, of Rayville, who was credited with shooting down one of at least seven communist aircraft which feel in a great sky battle over North Vietnam.

Accidental death continued to claim lives locally and in the area. Two drownings were among the incidents: Jackie Cagle Jr., 13, of Campti, drowned Thursday night in the Louisiana Training Institute swimming pool, while Eddie Thomason, also 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thomason, 808 Wheelis, West Monroe, drowned Tuesday on a swimming outing Tuesday with four companions near Toney Bayou. Little Opal Jeanette Rawls, one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rawls, 120 Blanks St., West Monroe, died in the flames Wednesday evening which consumed an abandoned auto in which she and two older brothers were playing. A 55-year-old Delhi man, John W. Johnson, was killed when his truck was struck by a passenger train at the crossing of a gravel cutoff leading to the Delhi Country Club. He was going fishing.

Other deaths in the area claimed Charles N. Story, 85-year-old former president of the Morehouse Parish Police Jury and a Bastrop resident, and the Rev. Doyle Benton Tullos, 65, active in Jackson Parish schools for 32 years and principal at Weston for 24 years.

Meantime, a revered name in judicial circles was being recalled in Alexandria Monday when a memorial was held in U.S. District Court of the Western District of Louisiana. The eulogy praised the late Judge Ben C. Dawkins Sr., who died last August after 50 distinguished years in state and federal jurisprudence. His son now presides in the district.

OTHER NEWS

Other news of the week was so plentiful, it must be listed, without ado, in what little space remains to us:

— U. S. army Corps of Engineers spokesmen gave assurance that the noticeably rising Ouachita River at the Twin Cities will peak in a week to 10 days at considerbly less than flood stage. The spring rise, in fact, will be much below the average they said.

— The state accepted a bid of $261,196 on resurfacing and four-laning of West Monroe's North Seventh Street, from Cypress to the Arkansas Road, while the city pushed plans for removal of utility lines from the right-of-way. The job will require about six months.

—Chamber of Commerce leaders took to Baton Rouge the list of nominees from which the governor will name the first board of a reactivated Greater Ouachita Port Authority. Nominees were submitted by Monroe, West Monroe and the Ouachita Police Jury.

—The 100 block of Walnut Street in downtown Monroe — the second street from the end of the Old Traffic Bridge — was made two-way by the Police Department, opening the route to southbound vehicles and permitting loops of the block it flanks on the east side.

—The Monroe-West Monroe Board of Realtors got a running start into National Realtors' Week — which begins officially today — by hosting President Phillip Zollinger of the Louisiana Realtors' Association. The board presented an appreciation plaque to News-Star—Morning World executive editor Jack Gates for help in publicity.

Training Offers Retarded Children Hope For Better Life

OF THE UNITED STATES' million and a half or so mentally retarded children, only one in three is in school — although it is estimated about 83 per cent of mentally retarded persons could be educated and trained toward useful, happy lives. These happy children are learning coordination as they dance at the Normal College of the American Gymnastics Union in Indianapolis.

JUMPING ROPE is a new and exciting experience for Carol — at age 11. Mentally retarded and almost totally blind and deaf, she finally learned to jump this year after many tries. She still fails more often than she succeeds, but has fun, and a rare feeling of success. Here Carol jumps a rope held by Gail Wolf, left, and Linda Bloom, two of the Indiana University student teachers who assist in training retarded children at the Normal College of the American Gymnastics Union in Indianapolis. By G. K. HODENFIELD

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — It was just an ordinary jump rope, held by two teachers standing six feet apart.

But to Carol it was one of the biggest and most frightening challenges faced in a lifetime of 11 lonesome, frustrated years. Slowly the teachers twirled the rope over her head, and as it neared the floor one of them said, "NOW, Carol."

Carol, every muscle taut, literally threw her body six inches into the air. The rope passed beneath her feet, and the gymnasium exploded with applause. Big deal, huh? An 11-year-old girl had finally learned to jump rope.

A big deal indeed for Carol, a mentally retarded child who must carry through life the added burdens of near total blindness and deafness. In the shadow world of the mentally retarded, even the most commonplace accomplishment may be recorded as a great victory. Learning to jump rope may help Carol learn to read a bit faster, write a bit more legibly, and grasp at least the fundamentals of simple arithmetic.

To whatever extent that is true, she will be better able to fend for herself in the world of normality.

It is a perverse use of the word perhaps, to say that Crol, with all her handicaps, is "lucky." But, unlike most youngsters who share her plight, Carol at least has people working to lighten her load.

There are almost six million mentally retarded men, women and children in the United States today. There will be seven million by 1970. About 1.5 million of them are school age boys and girls. Every 15 minutes a retarded child is born in this country. There will be 126,000 such births this year alone, from any of 100 known causes.

Most of the mentally retarded can be helped. An official of the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation reported recently: "The U. S. Office of Education estimates that 83 per cent of the retarded are educable. They can be taught to read and write, to hold down jobs with little or no supervision, to get along in society wholly or partially by themselves, to become tax contributors and not tax takers."

"Another 12 per cent are trainable. Under proper supervision, they can live happily and usefully at home or in a sheltered workshop. Even the remaining 5 per cent of the retarded are capable of performing at higher levels than were imagined five years ago."

The promise is bright. Yet, only one of three mentally retarded children — even in school; only one in five is getting the special attention he needs. Carol is one of 34 mentally retarded children who spend one afternoon a week in special physical education classes at the Normal College of the American Gymnastics Union. The college is a department of Indiana University's School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

"We don't have any scientific proof that what we're doing has really helped these children," says Lola Lohse, director of the college. "But we have seen tremendous changes, in and out of the classroom."

One problem is that most mentally retarded children lack "laterality" and "directionality." Laterality is the inner sense of leftness and rightness; directionality is the way people apply this to keep things straight.

"So many of these children don't seem to have any orientation in space," explained Mrs. Lohse in an interview. "Anything in back of them, for instance, just doesn't exist — it isn't there.

"And they can't tell the difference between the letters "b' and "dn' or between the numerals '6' and '9', or between the words 'on' and 'no.' It isn't just that they have difficulty telling the difference; the tragic thing is that, to them, there is no difference."

SIMPLE, EFFECTIVE

To help the children become "oriented in space," Mrs. Lohse and her staff have invented some simple but effective little games. In one, each child is given a balloon and told to keep it in the air by batting it with his hands.

"This forces the children to keep their eyes moving to watch the balloon, and their bodies moving in all directions to stay under it," Mrs. Lohse said. "It's pitiful to see what little coordination many of them have."

"Sometimes," Mrs. Lohse said, "we play the mirror game. I stand in front of them and ask them to mimic my movements.

"They're improving every week, but even now some of them have trouble lifting their right foot or their left foot, even when we show them which is which. Some will hold an arm parallel to the floor, and think it's raised straight up in the air."

Another game — and one the children love — is designed to lengthen their attention span.

"I put them in groups of three or four," Mrs. Lohse said, "and I tell them, 'I want you to touch a circle, touch a wall, touch something green, and then come back to me.'

"At the start of the year you can give them only one order at a time. By the end of the year we get them up to four, five and sometimes six different things."

As Lola Lohse said, "We don't have any scientific proof that what we're doing here has really helped these children."

But there is unscientific proof a plenty in the comments of the children's classroom teachers at St. Mary's child center. Sister Gerald and Sister Brendon. St. Mary's, a former Catholic elementary school, became a diagnostic clinic six years ago with special classrooms for the retarded.

"This has been a tremendous help to them in their classroom work," said Sister Gerald. "Their handwriting has improved, because of their better coordination. Their reading has improved, and their arithmetic."

"EVERYTHING BLOSSOMING"

Sister Brendon agrees: "Everything is just blossoming now — in reading, in writing, in spelling, in arithmetic, in every thing. We can see a definite improvement in every area."

And how do you measure that most important dividend of all — the feeling of accomplishment? When Carol lifted her body over that jump rope, it may have been the first time she had known success in any task.

"Just to see them have success in even the smallest thing — oh, it's such a wonderful thing," said Sister Gerald.

Only in recent years has there been a concerted effort to improve the lot of retarded children through special education. Most recent of all is the attempt to coordinate classroom work with physical education.

"There are dozens, perhaps hundreds, of physical education programs for the mentally retarded such as at the one here under way across the country. Breakthroughs in knowledge are being made every day, new techniques are being discovred."

There may never be a preventative for mental retardation, as there is for polio, nor a cure, as there is for scarlet fever. But there is hope for a better life for the afflicted.

BOUNCING UP AND DOWN on the trampoline is only for children who already have begun to gain confidence, in the special weekly classes for retarded children at Normal College of the American Gymnastics Union in Indianapolis. This girl is watched carefully by Walter Leinert, a member of the college faculty.

Odessa--Resort Air, Artistic Heritage

This Black Sea port town has a reputation for laughter, but its business and entertainment establishments close down early. It has a cultural background, a fine opera house, which is closed; no fresh food and the same drab buildings as Moscow. But it is sunny and quiet.

ODESSA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The people of Odessa think Moscow is a nice place to visit, but they wouldn't want to live there.

"Odessa is quieter," a scientist says. "We can do more real work here. Do you know what real work means. It means less telephone calls, less big shots, less interference."

"Odessa is sunny," the port official says. "Look, there is another one from Moscow, another paleface."

For the Soviet Union this Black Sea port is part of the sunny south, a resort area with sandy beaches, workers' vacation sanatoria and the busiest all weather port in the country. There is a Mediterranean air to some of its main streets, due to French and Italian architectural influences.

Odessa has a reputation for laughter and individualism in a nation of somber conformism. When a Moscow newspaper proposed this year that April 1 be declared national Laughter Day, it got enthusiastic reponses from city officials throughout the country. Odessa was unmoved. City officials here said Odessa laugh all year round and needs one day off.

Odessa is second only to Leningrad as a birthplace or residence of great Russian artists and writers. Alexander Pushkin, the poet, lived here from 1823 to 1824 while writing part of "Eugene Onegin." Nikolai Gogal also lived here briefly.

Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky conducted the first performance of his "Queen of Spades" at the magnificent opera house here, second only to Moscow's Bolshoi among Russian opera houses. The Odessa Opera is now closed for restoration work.

Native Odessans include some of the great artists of the Soviet period-author Issac Babel, violinist David Ostrakh, pianist Emil Gilles, jazz composer Leonid Gilles, jazz composer Leonid Utyosov, satiric writers Ilya Ilf and Evgeny Petrov, writer Yuri Olesha.

The great Soviet film director Serge Eisenstein made Odessa's landmark Potemkin steps famous throughout the world in his classic "Battleship Potemkin."

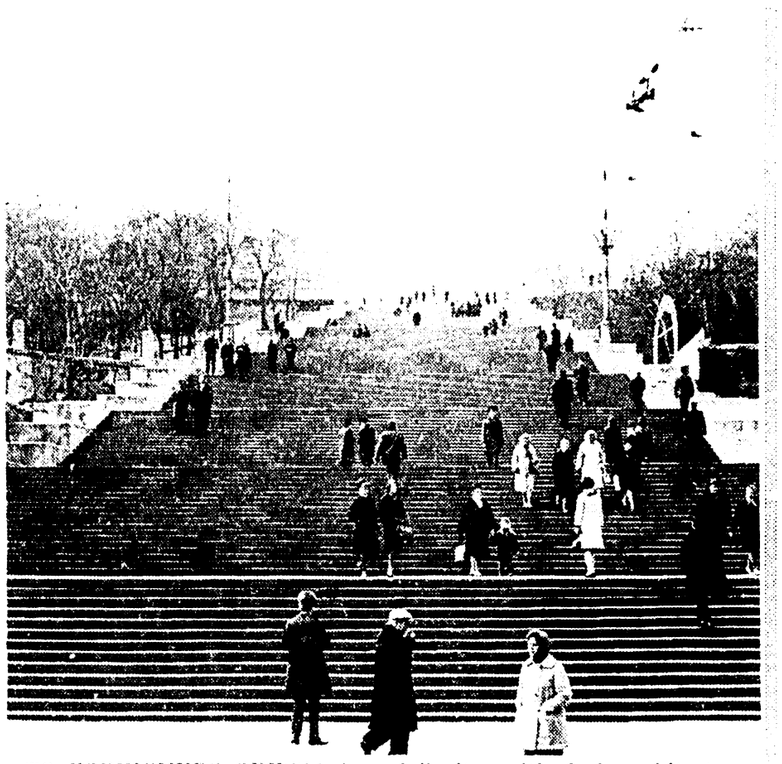
Odessa has a long tradition of liberalism. In tsarists days it was given unusual autonomy in a bid for the city's loyalty, perhaps because of it's proximity to Turkey.

Despite the differences, the visitor to Odessa never doubts he is in the Soviet Union. The same drab buildings and streets of most Soviet cities predominate here, as in Moscow.

Odessa is a great seaport but its restaurants have no fresh fish for dinner. Canned fruit and vegetables available here come mostly from Bulgaria. There is a shortage of fresh food, particularly in winter. Lines are common in food stores, as in Moscow.

Foreign shipping officials complain of excessive red tape, slow loading and unloading, and a lack of modern port facilities. A snip captain joked that he can clear the port of Hamburg in 36 hours, but it might take 36 days to clear Odessa.

One foreigner living here says, "Odessa is a horrible place at night. There is nothing here, nothing."



TO FOREIGNERS ODESSA is a dull city, with drab architecture, uninspired cuisine, and no night life. But to the people of the Soviet Union, the all-weather port on the Black Sea is a magnet — with a population of 745,000, still growing, workers' vacation sanatoria, and shortages familiar in other cities where demand outreaches supply. Odessans call it a city of laughter. Here is its most famous landmark, the Potemkin Steps, leading from the port to the center of the city. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Advance Seen In Developing Of Superdog

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

MULDERSDRIFT, South Africa (AP) — For thirteen years, South African geneticist Dr. Daan Marais has been trying to breed the world's largest and smartest dog. Now, 800 dogs later, he feels he's nearing success.

His ultimate aim is a mammoth watchdog and hunter with supercanine intelligence, strong and courageous enough to tackle a leopard or baboon, the scourge of cattle farmers in southern Africa.

Top weight of Dr. Marais' superdog would be in the 250-pound region. It will have the wiliness of a wolf, the strength of a Great Dane and the cuddly affection of a St. Bernard.

"I want a dog which, apart from being a hunter-killer animal, will also be docile and affectionate with children," he said. "During the past thirteen years I have tried to incorporate, by selective breeding, these physical and psychological characteristics into the dog.

PROTOTYPE

"Now I have a kind of prototype which has massive strength, stamina, courage and yet is docile with a high degree of superintelligence," he said.

The latest litter will resemble giant boxers, with huge chests, tapered hindquarters and large, square foreheads. They will finally develop into 250-pound monsters, bearing strains of St. Bernard, English mastiff, Great Dane and a touch of European wolf.

By cross - breeding with a wolf, Dr Marais has changed the doleful expression of the St. Bernard. Its eyes now have the sharp cunningness of the wolf. The inclusion of wolf blood into his superdog has also changed the texture of the St. Bernard's fur.

Strange new psychological changes have been induced into the superdog. Its hunting instincts have taken on the characteristics of the wolf, yet it still retains a friendly disposition toward humans.

JACKALS IN BLEND

In an attempt to strengthen the jaws of the new dog, Dr. Marais tried to breed hyena blood into the strain. But the hyena refused to mix. Jackals were finally used to develop hunting instincts, speed and powerful jaw muscles.

"In another eight years I should have the perfect animal," he said. "One which can be used for hunting, has stamina and courage enough to take on anything, from the marauding leopard to the killer jackals who plague many cattle farmers in southern Africa. On the other hand if the children want a quiet, docile monster, he'll be just that. It will be all a matter of training."

Now that Dr. Marais is convinced he can produce a superstrong, superintelligent dog he is using his knowledge to perfect a new breed of antelope. He plans cross breeding antelopes with other animals, hoping to induce a strain tame enough to herd in the arid bushland of southern Africa, where few animals can survive.

He foresees a new type of hardy animal which would breed prolifically and provide a cheap source of food for Africa's hungry black millions.

"It cannot be done overnight," he said. "It will take another 30 years or so before I can produce an antelope which can be farmed like sheep in desert bushland."

THIRTEEN YEARS and 800 dogs have gone into breeding this dog, named Pony. Here Karin Marais, 5-year-old daughter of Dr. Daan Marais of Muldersdrift, South Africa, is taking Pony for a walk. Dr. Marais, a geneticist, is trying to breed the world's largest and most intelligent dog—watchdog and hunter, but gentle with children. Pony, the largest thus far has strains of St. Bernard, wolf, and jackal. Dr. Marais hopes to develop 250-pound dogs. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

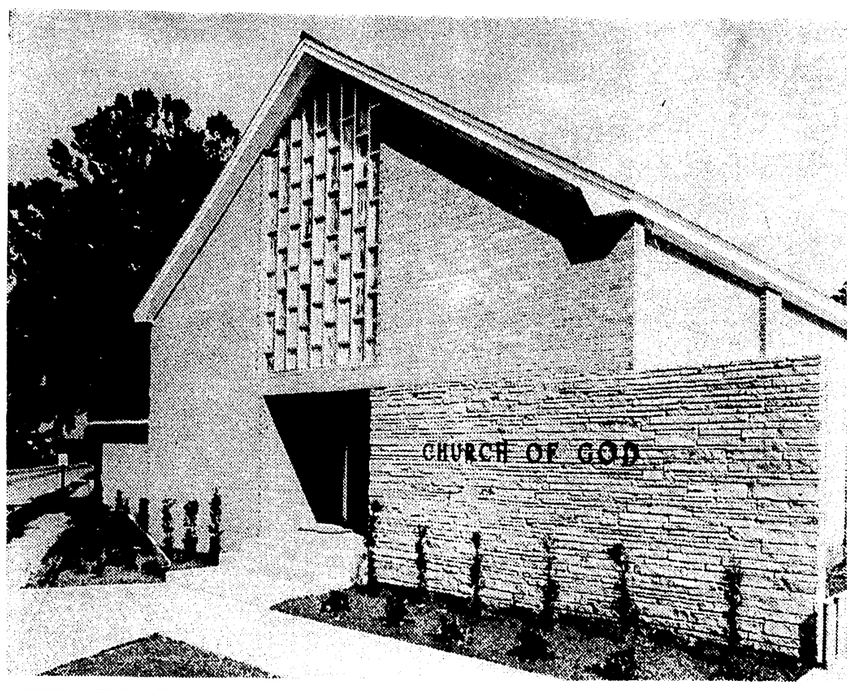
There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities . . .

Be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, 323-3660, 323-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.



THIS NEW ADDITION to the Church of God, 813 Montgomery Ave., West Monroe, will be dedicated in ceremonies today. Church officials have reported a major advance in the church's work during the past two years.

New Dimension Added To Religious Thinking

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientific knowledge of man's gradual development through the past — and his burst of technological progress in the present — are adding a new dimension today to religious thinking about his future.

The advances may "form part of the history of salvation," which is still unfolding, says the Rev. Dr. Ernest Benz, a noted German Lutheran scholar.

Striking modern signs of this forward process, he adds, are "restoring hope to its rightful place" in the theology.

BASIC PREMISE

Noting that human growth — both in sensitivity of conscience and in skill to harness the earth — is a basic premise of Biblical faith, he says both are dramatically reflected in this "age of a changing man in a changing world."

"It may seem incredible that technology and technical progress could be connected with Christian expectations of the end of time and the coming of the Kingdom of God," he says.

"But in actual fact, there is an immediate and close connection."

In a new book, "Evolution and Christian Hope," published by Doubleday, Dr. Benz links both man's increasing mastery of his environment and human evolution itself to time-long progression toward the ultimate "new man" and a "new earth."

Traces of the view have shown up increasingly in Christian eschatology — the concepts of the "last things" or final consumation of worldly existence.

LIVELY TOPIC

What part natural — or secular — change may have in accomplishing that destiny has become a lively topic among both Protestant and Roman Catholic theologians.

The interest was spurred by the late French Jesuit paleontologist, Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, who saw human evolution, under unifying pressures of technology, as ascending through ever higher states of awareness to total loving mutuality.

Numerous others, such as the Rev. Dr. Joseph Sittler of the University of Chicago's Divinity School, have stressed the sacred significance of the material universe and its history, as indicated in Christ's promise to "draw all things to Myself".

Assessing this current of thought, both before Chardin and since, Dr. Benz finds it had early roots. "The Christian understanding of man was determined by something akin to the idea of evolution."

LORD OF HISTORY

The fundamental concept, he notes, is that "God, the creator, is the Lord of history. He leads His creation toward a distinct goal of salvation."

Modern cosmology and anthropology have sharpened the vision, he adds, making clear that man and the world are involved in continuous change and that "man is still going through a constant development of consciousness."

"Our present knowledge of man's past development forces the question of man's future right into the foreground."

Dr. Benz, professor of church and dogmatic history at the University of Marburg, says that in New Testament Christianity, there were intermingling, variant views of the coming of God's Kingdom — by earthly and also divine transformations.

News Briefs In Religion

ASSEMBLY BEGINS

GALWAY, Ireland (AP) — Work has begun on assembling the organ for Galway's new Roman Catholic cathedral, which was consecrated at ceremonies attended by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, last year.

A five-man team from Liverpool will spend four months putting the 5,000 pieces of the 25,000-pound ($70,000) organ together.

NON-ANGLICAN INDUCTED

BRISTOL, England (AP) —A Free Church (non - Anglican) Protestant minister was inducted into office in Bristol's Anglican Cathedral by Dean Douglas Harrison. He is the Rev. Peter McCall, moderator of the Free Church Council of England and Wales. Clergy of all denominations, including Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox, attended the ceremony. While he holds office McCall will have his own seat in the cathedral.

GIFT REPEATED

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — The congregation of St. James's Episcopal Church, West Hartford, Conn., which sent $1,500 last year to help meet the cost of a students' chaplaincy at Aberdeen University, have repeated the gift this year. There are strong links between Aberdeen and the diocese of Connecticut.

The first Episcopal bishop, the Rt. Rev. Samuel Seabury, was consecrated in Aberdeen, and the Rev. Douglas Kennedy, rector of St. James's, West Hartford, is an honorary canon of St. Andrew's Cathedral, Aberdeen.

LOSE MEMBERS.

LONDON (AP) — The Methodist Church in England is losing about 10,000 members a year, according to Dr. Leslie Davison, secretary of the Methodist Home Missions Department, who calls his church "the helpless victim of social revolution."

Dr. Davison says the current mobility of the population means that local churches tend to be left to the leadership of the retired and elderly and make little impact on newcomers.

He hopes the proposed reunion of the Methodist Church with the Church of England will enable both bodies to arrange their manpower and finances to better advantage.

Priest Killed In Vietnam Left Final Message

The first Catholic priest killed in actual battlefield combat in Vietnam and the fifth American chaplain killed there was Father Michael Quealy of Mobile, Alabama, the Catholic Digest states. He could have stayed behind with his own battalion, but when he heard that another battalion had stumbled into jungle combat near Saigon he rushed in with the reinforcements.

Under fire he went from man to man, administering the last rites and helping carry wounded to a helicopter. As he bent over, a Viet Cong soldier burst through the bushes, and Father Quealy fell, machine-gunned in the head and stomach.

A diary fell from the dead priest's pocket. A soldier opened it and read the last entry, for that same day, Nov. 8: "So will my heavenly Father treat you unless each of you forgives his brother with all his heart."

Church Sets Dedication Of Addition

The congregation and officials of the Church of God, 813 Montgomery Ave., West Monroe, will dedicate a new $35,000 building addition today, it was announced by the Rev. J. C. Dudley, pastor.

Combined homecoming - dedication services will start at 9:45 a.m. today. There will be a basket dinner on the church lawn at noon. Formal dedication services will start around 2 p.m., and services will be dismissed at 4 p.m.

The addition includes a Sunday school plant which is fully air conditioned, has carpeting throughout, church office, pastoral study, lounges, and vestibule. The yard has been landscaped, and there is a concrete parking area and drive.

In the old section of the church plant the interior has been renovated throughout the baptistry, and overflow rooms where overflow seating will be available for large audiences.

A new nursery also has been installed. All of the facilities have year around air conditioning.

BELIEFS

The church has occupied the present location for the past 25 years. The pastor who has been with the church for the past 21 months, said his group "claims to accept 'The whole Bible rightly divided.'" They are pentecostal in emphasis, but teach the Holy Trinity and are a franchised group which is a local congregation of the international headquarters located in Cleveland, Tenn.

The Rev. Mr. Dudley said the church has shown major growth since he assumed the pastorate there. The pastor is a native of Alabama, and has pastored at Sheffield, Tuscaloosa, Piedmont, and in Kentucky. He also served for 10 years as evangelist for the church.

Among guest speakers today will be the Rev. C. Raymond Spain, an assistant general executive of the Churches of God, Cleveland, Tenn., and the Rev. A. G. Thompson, overseer of the Churches of God in Louisiana. A number of ministers from the area are expected to be at the services today, including district overseer, James W. Miller of Monroe.

The choir will present several familiar hymns at the 2 p.m. service, and the pastor will lead the dedication. Choir director is Clint Thornton. Mrs. painist, and Mrs. J. C. Dudley as organist.

Evening services today will be held at 6:30.

EUGENE STAMPER, resident of Murrell Cottage at the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home here, has been elected president of the Hi-Y Club and secretary of the Senior Class at Ouachita Parish High School for the coming year.

Angry Priest Working In Social Reform Move

EDITOR'S NOTE — Father Groppi has cast his lot with 80,000 Negroes in Milwaukee's center city, and finds himself in conflict with whites and with his church superiors. But he believes in "creative tension," and says "Christ never preached noninvolvement."

By KEN HARTNETT

MILWAUKEE Wis. (AP) — The priest, clad in mourning vestments, was delighted by the answer but the girl's voice was almost lost in the tall stillness of the church. The priest asked the question once more.

"And why am I wearing black today? Tell them again."

"Because it's a beautiful color," the girl said.

"Because it's a beautiful color," the priest repeated. "Wonderful. It is a beautiful color. All colors are beautiful — black, white, red, yellow — all colors. And why is that?

"Because God made them," said a child.

"Because God made them," said the priest.

The priest was the Rev. James E. Groppi, 36, assistant pastor of the virtually all-Negro Roman Catholic Parish of St. Boniface. It is situated in the center of Milwaukee, the so-called inner core where all but a tiny minority of the city's more than 80,000 Negroes live. Father Groppi, son of Italian immigrants, is a white man in a black community he says is ringed with hate and petrified in poverty. Conflict wracks his life.

PRICE OF PROMINENCE

Part of it is the price of his prominence in the glint of National Guard bayonets during a succession of stormy nights in the white suburb of Wauwatosa. Last summer Father Groppi led marchers into Wauwatosa to protest against membership by public officials in all-white clubs. This made him a symbol and a target, and stripped him of the protective armor of being considered just another idealistic priest.

On May 5 he was caught up in a fresh conflict. The priest intervened in a dispute between youths and police on an inner core street and was arrested on charges of obstructing officers and resisting arrest. The charges are pending.

Police said debris, including bottles and bricks, flew during the disturbance and three policemen were slightly hurt. The priest denied the police version of his role in the incident, which they said included kicks, profanity and the shout, "Start the riot! Start the riot!"

"It's a dirty lie," said the priest who identifies almost totally with the Negro community.

"Sure I'm angry," he once said. "And any black man that isn't angry needs a psychiatrist."

The next week, a Milwaukee newsman's car was stoned in the inner core after he reported that some Negroes were becoming disenchanted with Father Groppi's role as adviser to the Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. From Freedom House, his headquarters near the scene of the incident, Father Groppi apologized to the man and said, "some of the kids are very unhappy with him" about the story. He said he knew nothing of the incident, but added: "The tension around Freedom House is very great."

Now it was the children's Mass, and Father Groppi's manner was mild as he taught the catechism of racial consciousness and pride. In another day, a priest might have told the children about the Sacred Heart of Jesus. Father Groppi told them about Harriet Tubman, whom he called "the black Moses of the Negro race."

"Harriet, take us back to the plantation," some of the slaves would say to her. "At least we were safe there." And do you know what Harriet Tubman would do, the priest asked. "She'd take a shotgun and point it at them and say, 'I'd sooner see you dead than be a slave.'"

It was a typical morning in the life of a typical priest.

Father Groppi has been arrested at demonstration scenes and has been in open conflict with his chancery. He is a priest who is actively engaged in organizing the Negro community out of its apathy and police keep tabs on his comings and goings.

The rectory is his home only part of the time. He also lives at the headquarters of the Milwaukee Youth Council, a 900-member organization, which staged the demonstrations at Wauwatosa. He is a believer in "creative tension," and says organization and crisis are "the only ways to bring change."

"What is needed is a change in the social structure that causes poverty," he said. "We're living in what is called an affluent society; yet there are millions of people living in poverty. We have the economic power to wipe it out; yet we allow it to exist. We must bring about a change in the social structure that allows poverty to exist."

A revolution, the priest said, must occur within the Negro's mind.

"He must become proud of his negritude and be able to say to himself 'Thank God I'm me, just the way I am. God made me this way and I'm beautiful.'

"This is the revolution that has to take place first, then the black man can feel complete."

The priest's commitment to that revolution is complete. He sees few of his former friends from seminary days. "I'm beginning to feel in many respects like a black man," he explained.

As Father Groppi and other civil rights leaders see it, there has been little change for the better on the Milwaukee racial scene. Clashes with the police have become more frequent and there has been little perceptible change in housing patterns.

One major source of controversy is the school board's support of a neighborhood schools policy. The system of sending children to schools near their homes has been under steady attack from civil rights advocates, who maintain that it condemns most Negro children to segregated education.

Rev. Brown, Don Logan Speak Today

An elder from Highland Presbyterian Church in West Monroe and the pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Monroe, will be featured speakers at services today at Memorial Presbyterian Church, N. 4th and Mill streets, West Monroe.

Speaker for the 11 a.m. services will be Elder Donald E. Logan of Highland Church, and the speaker at 7 p.m. services will be the Rev. Preston Brown of First Church.

Elder Logan is active in laymen's work, in 1966 was president of the Red River Laymen's Association, is presently secretary of Synod Men's Conference, and is treasurer-elect for 1968 for the conference. He formerly was a deacon at Memorial and went to Highland Church when it was formed through the efforts of Memorial Church. He is married and has two children.

OTHER PASTORATES

The Rev. Mr. Brown has been at First Presbyterian Church for two years. He came to his present assignment from the Presbyterian Church at Belcher.

He started in the ministry at Savannah, Ga., 13 years ago. He studied at Erskin College in South Carolina, and Columbia Seminary, Decatur, Ga. He presently is serving as chairman of Church Extenion Committee of Red River Presbytery. He is married and has four children.

Rev. Chambers Is Ordained At Church In Area

The Rev. Joe Martin Chambers, of Saint Andrew's Church, Mer Rouge, was ordained to the sacred priesthood Saturday morning in ceremonies at the Church of the Redeemer (Episcopal), in Oak Ridge.

He will celebrate his first eucharist in St. Andrew's Church at 9:30 a.m. today.

The ordination was conducted by the Rt. Rev. Iveson B. Noland, bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of Louisiana. The Rev. John Jenkins, rector of All Saints Episcopal School, Vicksburg, Miss., was the preacher for the occasion. The ordinant was presented by the Rev. Richard Wilson, vicar of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, Monroe.

Other participants in the service were the Rev. A. Dean Calcote, chaplain to the bishop; the Rev. William Worrell, reader of the preface; the Rev. Deith Riggs, litanist; Joe Mott Jr., epistler, and the Rev. Joe Harrison, gospeler.

Following the ordination there was a covered dish luncheon in the Oak Ridge High School gymnasium honoring the ordinant.

Baptist Home's Children From 29 Parishes

Youngsters from 29 Louisiana parishes are currently being cared for in the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe.

Parishes represented in the Home population at the present time include Avoyelles, Beauregard, Bienville, Caddo, Calcasieu, Caldwell, East Baton Rouge, East Carroll, Franklin, Grant, Iberville, Jackson, Lafayette, Lafourche, Lincoln, Madison, Morehouse, Orleans, Ouachita, Plaquemines, Pointe Coupee, Rapides, Richland, Sabine, Tensas, Union, Washington, Webster and West Carroll.

The three parishes with the largest number of children in the Home, according to Charley B. Underwood, director of social services, are Caddo with 25, East Baton Rouge with 14, and Jackson with 13. Several parishes are represented this year that did not have children in the Home last year.

COED THEOLOGY SCHOOL

DURHAM, England (AP) — Cranmer Hall, Durham, will become the Church of England's first co-educational theological college next October. The women will live in a separate block from the 47 male students but share their chapel, dining-room and common room. Canon James Hickinbotham, the 51-year-old principal of the college, says: "The men are very pleased about the women coming."

The women will train for full-time parish work.

J. V. ARMOR

J. V. Armor In Central Church Post

A former member of the staff of the First Baptist Church of Farmerville, J. V. Armor, has started duties as minister of music and education at Central Baptist Church, 3400 Lee Ave.

He and his family will be honored today at a reception in the educational building of the church from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Armors have a son, Stanley, 13, and a daughter, Mrs. Terry Ryals of West Monroe.

Armor served with the First Baptist Church in Farmerville for 11 years, leading what has been described by officials as a challenging program. Choirs of all ages last year averaged a total enrollment of 211, which was 25 per cent of the church's resident membership.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTION

In that position he gave a considerable amount of time and effort to private voice instruction among the members and helped in the development of talents of many young people. He conducted several church music schools at the state level during the period of 1947 - 67. He served as judge at state music festivals, attended music administration clinics at Nashville, Tenn., and helped in an observance of state Youth Music Week.

Before entering full - time church work he taught music in public schools.

He received a bachelor of music degree from Louisiana Tech, Ruston, in 1950; master of sacred music from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Tex., in 1952, and a bachelor of science degree in public school music from Northeast State College here in 1956.

The Armors live at 1506 Crescent Dr., Monroe.

Membership Of Catholic Church Up

The Roman Catholic Church in the United States gained in membership during the past year, but suffered sharp losses in nuns and seminarians.

Statistics were disclosed by the official Catholic directory for 1967, published recently by P. J. Kennedy & Sons, New York.

The total number of Catholics in America increased by 618,735 to a record high of 46,864,910. The membership increase of 1.3 per cent was slightly higher than overall U.S. population growth rate of about 1.1 per cent.

But the number of converts entering the Catholic Church was the lowest in 13 years — the previous year. Infant baptisms also decreased by 84,096 to a total of 1,190,842.

Corroborating reports that some convents have been experiencing serious personnel losses, the directory showed that the number of sisters decreased by 4,750, or 2.7 per cent, during the year. The new total is 176,671.

Enrollment in seminaries dropping by 2,735, or 6 per cent, to a figure of 45,379.

The decline in seminary enrollment is cause for concern about the future supply of priests. But for the present, the church is still strong in priestly manpower.

MORE PRIESTS

The number of priests increased during the past year by 699 to a total of 59,892, the largest ever recorded. The rate of increase for priests, 1.2 per cent, was only slightly below the rate of increase in membership, so that the United States will continue to have one of the world's most favorable ratios of priests to communicants.

Student enrollment in 305 Catholic colleges and 1,469 Catholic high schools was up. The colleges reported an enrollment of 431,070, or 17,309 more than the previous year. The high school enrollment of 1,403,000 was up about 13,000.

But enrollment in Catholic elementary schools decreased by 122,000 to 4,369,000.

TO COACH PRIESTS

LONDON (AP) — English actor Raymond Clarke has been appointed to conduct a two-month course for newly ordained priests in communications and the spoken word at the Oblate Fathers' Scholastico Internazionale in Rome. It is the first time such a course has been orgainzed by the Roman Catholic Church.

Theologians Of Varying Faiths Give War Views

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Three well-known American theologians—a Protestant, a Catholic and a Jew—have written a book which explains, with exceptional clarity, why many religious leaders oppose the war in Vietnam.

The book, to be published next month, is entitled "Vietnam: Crisis of Conscience."

The authors are the Rev. Dr. Robert McAfee Brown, Presbyterian theologian who is professor of religion at Stanford University; Dr. Michael Novak, a Catholic scholar on the Stanford faculty; and Rabbi Abraham Heschel, professor of ethics at Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

They believe the United States is involved in a morally indefensible and increasingly dangerous war which could be terminated honorably by a determined and sincere effort.

Dr. Novak says in the opening section that "all war is barbarous" but the war in Vietnam is particularly repugnant to the moral conscience because of the way it's being fought.

WITHOUT FRONTLINES

"The special quality of this war is that it is a war without front lines. Most of the enemy forces are mixed in with the civilian population. The lowest estimate of civilian to military deaths is 3 to 1 . . ."

Civilians are being killed and maimed, he says, because U.S. forces are "relying upon enormously heavy fire power"—especially bombs and napalm dropped from aircraft—as a substitute for the huge infantry force which would be required "to ferret out the guerrillas rifle by rifle."

"The United States is taking the cheapest course possible. American lives will be saved. The South Vietnamese people and countryside must pay the costs."

Dr. Novak concedes that the United States may have good intentions in Vietnam.

"But the moral dilemma is that in carrying them out we seem to be involved in evils as great as those we oppose," he said.

RABBIS VIEWS

Rabbi Heschel observes that the moral justification for America's role in Vietnam is ostensibly that "we are living up to a commitment to give aid to democratic governments when they are threatened or attacked by dictators."

"However, we do not fight in Vietnam as allies of a freely elected democratic government, but rather as allies of a despotic military oligarchy," he says.

Dr. Brown takes issue with President Johnson's assertion that the United States has tried its best to arrange peace negotiations and now has no alternative except to apply increasing military pressure to North Vietnam.

"Such an attitude can only prolong the war," says Dr. Brown. "We, as the stronger nation, must give more conclusive evidence than we yet have that . . . we genuinely wish to negotiate, that we seek a peace without victory, and that we are not trying to win at the conference table what we have been unable to win on the battlefield."

He proposes that the United States halt the bombing of North Vietnam—without demanding or expecting any "immediate response from the other side."

This is necessary, he says, to break the present impasse in which the United States keeps saying it will stop the bombing if NorthVietnam will give some reciprocal evidence of readiness to negotiate, and NorthVietnam says it won't consider peace talks until the bombing is halted.

CONCESSION

Dr. Brown concedes that a bombing halt entails the risk that "during the interval the other side will simply build up its supply lines for more furious battle in the future." But the United States also could use the interval to strengthen and redeploy its forces, so that "the proportions of power would not materially change." And in the meantime, "fewer people would be dying" and the de-escalation of conflict would create "a climate more conducive to the possibility of peace talks."

He thinks prospects for negotiations would be further enhanced by the United States declaring that it will accept the Viet Cong at the peace table and by sincerely seeking the good offices of the United Nations in the quest for a settlement.

The book concludes with a plea to churches and synagogues to "mobilize enough support for new peace initiatives so that our policymakers will be forced to move in new directions."

Not all church and synagogue members will agree with these authors. But even those who sharply disagree will find their book worth reading as a detailed, documented, closely-reasoned exposition of a viewpoint which seems to be gaining many adherents in America's major religious communities.

"Vietnam: Crisis of Conscience" will be published jointly by Association Press, Herder & Herder and Behrman House. Publication date is June 12, and the paperback edition is priced at 95 cents.

LSD Perils To Be Topic At Service

A revival which started last Monday at Emmanuel Baptist Church, 2208 Wellerman Rd., West Monroe, will run through today, with Moody Adams of Baton Rouge as evangelist., it was announced by the Rev. Kerry Burns, pastor.

One of the highlights of his appearances today will be at 3 p.m., when he will speak on "LSD, America's Last Thrill."

In announcing this topic, the evangelist said, "America could well be enjoying her 'last thrill' as tens of thousands of young people turn to LSD, a hallucination drug that is rapidly plunging our country into mental ruin, moral anarchy and a socialistic political revolution."

He said that since his work among San Francisco's 15,000 "Hippies" recently, he has traveled from coast to coast speaking in schools and churches.

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

Some of my friends say that Christ had no choice in going to the cross, that He was forced to die. What is your opinion? G. S.

The Bible clearly indicates that our Lord laid down His life willingly for the sins of the race. True, God had ordained Him to be "the Lamb of God slain from the foundation of the world," but He was in thorough accord with the sacrifice and atonement He was to make.

They did not take His life from Him. He gave it!

He was not a helpless, unwilling martyr. With the full significance of the cross in view, He said, "Unto this end was I born and for this cause came I into the world." He said, "I am the Good Shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep . . . . I lay down my life for the sheep."

His life was freely and willingly given. "Who gave himself for our sins. . .Walk in love, as Christ hath also loved us, and hath given himself for us . . .Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us. . ."

True, Isaiah said, "The Lord hath laid upon Him the iniquity of us all," but our sins were laid upon willing shoulders. The Christian says, "I live by the grace of the Son of God who loved us and gave himself for us." In gratitude we give the best we have to Him who gave His all for us.

Angry Priest Working In Social Reform Move

EDITOR'S NOTE — Father Groppi has cast his lot with 80,000 Negroes in Milwaukee's center city, and finds himself in conflict with whites and with his church superiors. But he believes in "creative tension," and says "Christ never preached noninvolvement."

OTHER PASTORATES

The Rev. Mr. Brown has been at First Presbyterian Church for two years. He came to his present assignment from the Presbyterian Church at Belcher.

He started in the ministry at Savannah, Ga., 13 years ago. He studied at Erskin College in South Carolina, and Columbia Seminary, Decatur, Ga. He presently is serving as chairman of Church Extenion Committee of Red River Presbytery. He is married and has four children.

Rev. Chambers Is Ordained At Church In Area

The Rev. Joe Martin Chambers, of Saint Andrew's Church, Mer Rouge, was ordained to the sacred priesthood Saturday morning in ceremonies at the Church of the Redeemer (Episcopal), in Oak Ridge.

He will celebrate his first eucharist in St. Andrew's Church at 9:30 a.m. today.

The ordination was conducted by the Rt. Rev. Iveson B. Noland, bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of Louisiana. The Rev. John Jenkins, rector of All Saints Episcopal School, Vicksburg, Miss., was the preacher for the occasion. The ordinant was presented by the Rev. Richard Wilson, vicar of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, Monroe.

Other participants in the service were the Rev. A. Dean Calcote, chaplain to the bishop; the Rev. William Worrell, reader of the preface; the Rev. Deith Riggs, litanist; Joe Mott Jr., epistler, and the Rev. Joe Harrison, gospeler.

Following the ordination there was a covered dish luncheon in the Oak Ridge High School gymnasium honoring the ordinant.

Baptist Home's Children From 29 Parishes

Youngsters from 29 Louisiana parishes are currently being cared for in the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe.

Parishes represented in the Home population at the present time include Avoyelles, Beauregard, Bienville, Caddo, Calcasieu, Caldwell, East Baton Rouge, East Carroll, Franklin, Grant, Iberville, Jackson, Lafayette, Lafourche, Lincoln, Madison, Morehouse, Orleans, Ouachita, Plaquemines, Pointe Coupee, Rapides, Richland, Sabine, Tensas, Union, Washington, Webster and West Carroll.

The three parishes with the largest number of children in the Home, according to Charley B. Underwood, director of social services, are Caddo with 25, East Baton Rouge with 14, and Jackson with 13. Several parishes are represented this year that did not have children in the Home last year.

COED THEOLOGY SCHOOL

DURHAM, England (AP) — Cranmer Hall, Durham, will become the Church of England's first co-educational theological college next October. The women will live in a separate block from the 47 male students but share their chapel, dining-room and common room. Canon James Hickinbotham, the 51-year-old principal of the college, says: "The men are very pleased about the women coming."

The women will train for full-time parish work.

J. V. ARMOR

J. V. Armor In Central Church Post

A former member of the staff of the First Baptist Church of Farmerville, J. V. Armor, has started duties as minister of music and education at Central Baptist Church, 3400 Lee Ave.

He and his family will be honored today at a reception in the educational building of the church from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Armors have a son, Stanley, 13, and a daughter, Mrs. Terry Ryals of West Monroe.

Armor served with the First Baptist Church in Farmerville for 11 years, leading what has been described by officials as a challenging program. Choirs of all ages last year averaged a total enrollment of 211, which was 25 per cent of the church's resident membership.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTION

In that position he gave a considerable amount of time and effort to private voice instruction among the members and helped in the development of talents of many young people. He conducted several church music schools at the state level during the period of 1947 - 67. He served as judge at state music festivals, attended music administration clinics at Nashville, Tenn., and helped in an observance of state Youth Music Week.

Before entering full - time church work he taught music in public schools.

He received a bachelor of music degree from Louisiana Tech, Ruston, in 1950; master of sacred music from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Tex., in 1952, and a bachelor of science degree in public school music from Northeast State College here in 1956.

The Armors live at 1506 Crescent Dr., Monroe.

Membership Of Catholic Church Up

The Roman Catholic Church in the United States gained in membership during the past year, but suffered sharp losses in nuns and seminarians.

Statistics were disclosed by the official Catholic directory for 1967, published recently by P. J. Kennedy & Sons, New York.

The total number of Catholics in America increased by 618,735 to a record high of 46,864,910. The membership increase of 1.3 per cent was slightly higher than overall U.S. population growth rate of about 1.1 per cent.

But the number of converts entering the Catholic Church was the lowest in 13 years — the previous year. Infant baptisms also decreased by 84,096 to a total of 1,190,842.

Corroborating reports that some convents have been experiencing serious personnel losses, the directory showed that the number of sisters decreased by 4,750, or 2.7 per cent, during the year. The new total is 176,671.

Enrollment in seminaries dropping by 2,735, or 6 per cent, to a figure of 45,379.

The decline in seminary enrollment is cause for concern about the future supply of priests. But for the present, the church is still strong in priestly manpower.

MORE PRIESTS

The number of priests increased during the past year by 699 to a total of 59,892, the largest ever recorded. The rate of increase for priests, 1.2 per cent, was only slightly below the rate of increase in membership, so that the United States will continue to have one of the world's most favorable ratios of priests to communicants.

Student enrollment in 305 Catholic colleges and 1,469 Catholic high schools was up. The colleges reported an enrollment of 431,070, or 17,809 more than the previous year. The high school enrollment of 1,103,000 was up about 13,000.

But enrollment in Catholic elementary schools decreased by 122,000 to 4,369,000.

TO COACH PRIESTS

LONDON (AP) — English actor Raymond Clarke has been appointed to conduct a two-month course for newly ordained priests in communications and the spoken word at the Oblate Fathers' Scholastico Internazionale in Rome. It is the first time such a course has been orgainzed by the Roman Catholic Church.

Theologians Of Varying Faiths Give War Views

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Three well-known American theologians—a Protestant, a Catholic and a Jew—have written a book which explains, with exceptional clarity, why many religious leaders oppose the war in Vietnam.

The book, to be published next month, is entitled "Vietnam: Crisis of Conscience."

The authors are the Rev. Dr. Robert McAfee Brown, Presbyterian theologian who is professor of religion at Stanford University; Dr. Michael Novak, a Catholic scholar on the Stanford faculty; and Rabbi Abraham Heschel, professor of ethics at Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

They believe the United States is involved in a morally indefensible and increasingly dangerous war which could be terminated honorably by a determined and sincere effort.

Dr. Novak says in the opening section that "all war is barbarous" but the war in Vietnam is particularly repugnant to the moral conscience because of the way it's being fought.

WITHOUT FRONTLINES

"The special quality of this war is that it is a war without front lines. Most of the enemy forces are mixed in with the civilian population. The lowest estimate of civilian to military deaths is 3 to 1 . . ."

Civilians are being killed and maimed, he says, because U.S. forces are "relying upon enormously heavy fire power"—especially bombs and napalm dropped from aircraft—as a substitute for the huge infantry force which would be required "to ferret out the guerrillas rifle by rifle."

"The United States is taking the cheapest course possible. American lives will be saved. The South Vietnamese people and countryside must pay the costs."

Dr. Novak concedes that the United States may have good intentions in Vietnam.

"But the moral dilemma is that in carrying them out we seem to be involved in evils as great as those we oppose," he said.

RABBIS VIEWS

Rabbi Heschel observes that the moral justification for America's role in Vietnam is ostensibly that "we are living up to a commitment to give aid to democratic governments when they are threatened or attacked by dictators."

"However, we do not fight in Vietnam as allies of a freely elected democratic government, but rather as allies of a despotic military oligarchy," he says.

Dr. Brown takes issue with President Johnson's assertion that the United States has tried its best to arrange peace negotiations and now has no alternative except to apply increasing military pressure to North Vietnam.

"Such an attitude can only prolong the war," says Dr. Brown. "We, as the stronger nation, must give more conclusive evidence than we yet have that . . . we genuinely wish to negotiate, that we seek a peace without victory, and that we are not trying to win at the conference table what we have been unable to win on the battlefield."

He proposes that the United States halt the bombing of North Vietnam—without demanding or expecting any "immediate response from the other side."

This is necessary, he says, to break the present impasse in which the United States keeps saying it will stop the bombing if NorthVietnam will give some reciprocal evidence of readiness to negotiate, and NorthVietnam says it won't consider peace talks until the bombing is halted.

CONCESSION

Dr. Brown concedes that a bombing halt entails the risk that "during the interval the other side will simply build up its supply lines for more furious battle in the future." But the United States also could use the interval to strengthen and redeploy its forces, so that "the proportions of power would not materially change." And in the meantime, "fewer people would be dying" and the de-escalation of conflict would create "a climate more conducive to the possibility of peace talks."

He thinks prospects for negotiations would be further enhanced by the United States declaring that it will accept the Viet Cong at the peace table and by sincerely seeking the good offices of the United Nations in the quest for a settlement.

The book concludes with a plea to churches and synagogues to "mobilize enough support for new peace initiatives so that our policymakers will be forced to move in new directions."

Not all church and synagogue members will agree with these authors. But even those who sharply disagree will find their book worth reading as a detailed, documented, closely-reasoned exposition of a viewpoint which seems to be gaining many adherents in America's major religious communities.

"Vietnam: Crisis of Conscience" will be published jointly by Association Press, Herder & Herder and Behrman House. Publication date is June 12, and the paperback edition is priced at 95 cents.

LSD Perils To Be Topic At Service

A revival which started last Monday at Emmanuel Baptist Church, 2208 Wellerman Rd., West Monroe, will run through today, with Moody Adams of Baton Rouge as evangelist., it was announced by the Rev. Kerry Burns, pastor.

One of the highlights of his appearances today will be at 3 p.m., when he will speak on "LSD, America's Last Thrill."

In announcing this topic, the evangelist said, "America could well be enjoying her 'last thrill' as tens of thousands of young people turn to LSD, a hallucination drug that is rapidly plunging our country into mental ruin, moral anarchy and a socialistic political revolution."

He said that since his work among San Francisco's 15,000 "Hippies" recently, he has traveled from coast to coast speaking in schools and churches.

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

Some of my friends say that Christ had no choice in going to the cross, that He was forced to die. What is your opinion? G. S.

The Bible clearly indicates that our Lord laid down His life willingly for the sins of the race. True, God had ordained Him to be "the Lamb of God slain from the foundation of the world," but He was in thorough accord with the sacrifice and atonement He was to make.

They did not take His life from Him. He gave it!

He was not a helpless, unwilling martyr. With the full significance of the cross in view, He said, "Unto this end was I born and for this cause came I into the world." He said, "I am the Good Shepherd: the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep . . . . I lay down my life for the sheep."

His life was freely and willingly given. "Who gave himself for our sins. . .Walk in love, as Christ hath also loved us, and hath given himself for us . . .Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us. . ."

True, Isaiah said, "The Lord hath laid upon Him the iniquity of us all," but our sins were laid upon willing shoulders. The Christian says, "I live by the grace of the Son of God who loved us and gave himself for us." In gratitude we give the best we have to Him who gave His all for us.

New Dimension Added To Religious Thinking

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientific knowledge of man's gradual development through the past — and his burst of technological progress in the present — are adding a new dimension today to religious thinking about his future.

The advances may "form part of the history of salvation," which is still unfolding, says the Rev. Dr. Ernest Benz, a noted German Lutheran scholar.

Striking modern signs of this forward process, he adds, are "restoring hope to its rightful place" in the theology.

BASIC PREMISE

Noting that human growth — both in sensitivity of conscience and in skill to harness the earth — is a basic premise of Biblical faith, he says both are dramatically reflected in this "age of a changing man in a changing world."

"It may seem incredible that technology and technical progress could be connected with Christian expectations of the end of time and the coming of the Kingdom of God," he says.

"But in actual fact, there is an immediate and close connection."

In a new book, "Evolution and Christian Hope," published by Doubleday, Dr. Benz links both man's increasing mastery of his environment and human evolution itself to time-long progression toward the ultimate "new man" and a "new earth."

Traces of the view have shown up increasingly in Christian eschatology — the concepts of the "last things" or final consumation of worldly existence.

LIVELY TOPIC

What part natural — or secular — change may have in accomplishing that destiny has become a lively topic among both Protestant and Roman Catholic theologians.

The interest was spurred by the late French Jesuit paleontologist, Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, who saw human evolution, under unifying pressures of technology, as ascending through ever higher states of awareness to total loving mutuality.

Numerous others, such as the Rev. Dr. Joseph Sittler of the University of Chicago's Divinity School, have stressed the sacred significance of the material universe and its history, as indicated in Christ's promise to "'draw all things to Myself'."

Assessing this current of thought, both before Chardin and since, Dr. Benz finds it had early roots. "The Christian understanding of man was determined by something akin to the idea of evolution."

LORD OF HISTORY

The fundamental concept, he notes, is that "God, the creator, is the Lord of history. He leads His creation toward a distinct goal of salvation."

Modern cosmology and anthropology have sharpened the vision, he adds, making clear that man and the world are involved in continuous change and that "man is still going through a constant development of consciousness."

"Our present knowledge of man's past development forces the question of man's future right into the foreground."

Dr. Benz, professor of church and dogmatic history at the University of Marburg, says that in New Testament Christianity, there were intermingling, variant views of the coming of God's Kingdom — by earthly and also divine transformations.

Church Sets Dedication Of Addition

The congregation and officials of the Church of God, 813 Montgomery Ave., West Monroe, will dedicate a new $35,000 building addition today, it was announced by the Rev. J. C. Dudley, pastor.

Combined homecoming - dedication services will start at 9:45 a.m. today. There will be a basket dinner on the church lawn at noon. Formal dedication services will start around 2 p.m., and services will be dismissed at 4 p.m.

The addition includes a Sunday school plant which is fully air conditioned, has carpeting throughout, church office, pastoral study, lounges, and vestibule. The yard has been landscaped, and there is a concrete parking area and drive.

In the old section of the church plant the interior has been renovated throughout the baptistry, and overflow rooms where overflow seating will be available for large audiences.

A new nursery also has been installed. All of the facilities have year around air conditioning.

BELIEFS

The church has occupied the present location for the past 25 years. The pastor who has been with the church for the past 21 months, said his group "claims to accept 'The whole Bible rightly divided.'" They are pentecostal in emphasis, but teach the Holy Trinity and are a franchised group which is a local congregation of the international headquarters located in Cleveland, Tenn.

The Rev. Mr. Dudley said the church has shown major growth since he assumed the pastorate there. The pastor is a native of Alabama, and has pastored at Sheffield, Tuscaloosa, Piedmont, and in Kentucky. He also served for 10 years as evangelist for the church.

Among guest speakers today will be the Rev. C. Raymond Spain, an assistant general executive of the Churches of God, Gleveland, Tenn., and the Rev. A. G. Thompson, overseer of the Churches of God in Louisiana. A number of ministers from the area are expected to be at the services today, including district overseer, James W. Miller of Monroe.

The choir will present several familiar hymns at the 2 p.m. service, and the pastor will lead the dedication. Choir director is Clint Thornton. Mrs. painist, and Mrs. J. C. Dudley as organist.

Evening services today will be held at 6:30.

News Briefs In Religion

ASSEMBLY BEGINS

GALWAY, Ireland (AP) — Work has begun on assembling the organ for Galway's new Roman Catholic cathedral, which was consecrated at ceremonies attended by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, last year.

A five-man team from Liverpool will spend four months putting the 5,000 pieces of the 25,000-pound ($70,000) organ together.

NON-ANGLICAN INDUCTED

BRISTOL, England (AP) —A Free Church (non - Anglican) Protestant minister was inducted into office in Bristol's Anglican Cathedral by Dean Douglas Harrison. He is the Rev. Peter McCall, moderator of the Free Church Council of England and Wales. Clergy of all denominations, including Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox, attended the ceremony. While he holds office McCall will have his own seat in the cathedral.

GIFT REPEATED

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — The congregation of St. James's Episcopal Church, West Hartford, Conn., which sent $1,500 last year to help meet the cost of a students' chaplaincy at Aberdeen University, have repeated the gift this year. There are strong links between Aberdeen and the diocese of Connecticut.

The first Episcopal bishop, the Rt. Rev. Samuel Seabury, was consecrated in Aberdeen, and the Rev. Douglas Kennedy, rector of St. James's, West Hartford, is an honorary canon of St. Andrew's Cathedral, Aberdeen.

LOSE MEMBERS.

LONDON (AP) — The Methodist Church in England is losing about 10,000 members a year, according to Dr. Leslie Davison, secretary of the Methodist Home Missions Department, who calls his church "the helpless victim of social revolution."

Dr. Davison says the current mobility of the population means that local churches tend to be left to the leadership of the retired and elderly and make little impact on newcomers.

He hopes the proposed reunion of the Methodist Church with the Church of England will enable both bodies to arrange their manpower and finances to better advantage.

Priest Killed In Vietnam Left Final Message

The first Catholic priest killed in actual battlefield combat in Vietnam and the fifth American chaplain killed there was Father Michael Quealy of Mobile, Alabama, the Catholic Digest states. He could have stayed behind with his own battalion, but when he heard that another battalion had stumbled into jungle combat near Saigon he rushed in with the reinforcements.

Under fire he went from man to man, administering the last rites and helping carry wounded to a helicopter. As he bent over, a Viet Cong soldier burst through the bushes, and Father Quealy fell, machine-gunned in the head and stomach.

A diary fell from the dead priest's pocket. A soldier opened it and read the last entry, for that same day, Nov. 8: "So will my heavenly Father treat you unless each of you forgives his brother with all his heart."

EUGENE STAMPER, resident of Murrell Cottage at the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home here, has been elected president of the Hi-Y Club and secretary of the Senior Class at Ouachita Parish High School for the coming year.

Guide To Good Reading

Many New Books Now In Library

By Frances Flanders, Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books in great number have been added to the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. There are books for every reader. A new book by William Faulkner is always a literary sensation. This week there is the delightful small book "The Wishing Tree". It is a fantasy and is an interesting addition to the Faulkner collection."Diary of an Old Man" by Chaim I. Berman is the story of two old men who have outlived all of their contemporaries. The setting is in England and the story is slight, but there is much philosophy in the book. "The Nine Billion Names of God" is a collection of short stories of the science fiction type, written by Arthur C. Clark. "Sanctuary" is a delightful English story of retired ladies written by Frank Swinnerton. "Shirehill" by Phyllis Whitney is another of her stories of involved family relationships and mystery written by an author who has a large and devoted audience. "The Darling Tree" by Dorothy Yates has a Louisiana setting. It is a story of memories, shadows and impending destruction. "Apple Us" by Chester Aaron is a story of Jewish family life and is exceedingly well done. "The Falling Hills" by Perry Lentz is a story about one battle in the Civil War. It is very realistically done and will be too much for squeamish readers. "The Purloined Paperweight" is a delightful story by P. G. Wodehouse. His devoted readers will not be disappointed. "Finding Out" by Thomas Baird is a story of a mystery in a museum. It is well-written and should be enjoyed by many readers. "For Love or Money" by Tim Jeal is a story of life and love among the upper class English family. It will interest those who do not want a serious work, but light entertainment.

In the field of nonfiction there is a great variety of coverage. "The Responsibility of the Press" by Gerald Gross is a book which will appeal to all those engaged in the profession. "The Voices of the Past" is an explanation of the discovery of Ugaritic and Hebrew poetry. It is an interesting book. "Teilhard de Chardin: Christian Prophet" by Eric Berne has just been added in the large type edition. It is a most interesting book of sociology. "The Guaranteed Income" by Robert Theobold is an interesting new book in the field of economics. "Little Charley Ross" by Norman Zierold is an account of America's first sensational kidnapping case. "The Seventh Step" is the continuation of the story of Bill Sands, whose "My Shadow Ran Fast" was such a sensation two years ago. Editors of school yearbooks will surely want to see "Yearbook Editing, Layout and Management" by Calvin Medlin. "The Gypsies" by Jan Yoors is a very fine account of this remarkable people. John Pierce is the author of two new books in the field of electronics. "Electrons and Waves" and "Quantum Electronics."

"The Ancient World" by Giovanni Gerlini is an evaluation of art in the early days of the world. "Magic of Trees and Stone" contains the secrets of Japanese Gardening and was written by Katsuo Saito. "Jazz Masters of New Orleans" by Martin T. Williams is an interesting addition to our music and Louisiana collection. "My Championship Judo" by Anton Geesink will be used by those who are studying this art. Henry Timrod was one of the great southern poets and his work has long been out of print. We are happy that the University of Georgia has reprinted his collected poems in a lively edition. Gordon C. Bigelow has written an interesting evaluation and criticism of the literary career in Majorie Kinnan Rawlings, which he calls "Frontier Eden." "A Wife for the Pretender" by Anne Miller deals with an interesting period of English history, from 1714 to 1807. There are two new books about the War in Vietnam: "Letters from Vietnam" edited by Bill Adler and "Victor Charlie" by Jorge Knoedl. Both of these books shed much light on the conditions in the troubled land. Philip Viereck is the author of "The New Land" which discusses the discovery, exploration and early settlement of the Northeast Section of the U. S. up to the year 1624. "Latin America in World Poetry" is an interesting appraisal by Norman A. Bailey. Of great interest to students of modern American history are "The Journal of David E. Lilienthal" in three volumes. We just added the last two volumes which are most interesting. "Hollywood Pool" by Don Donaldson is the biography of Paul Mall and makes exciting reading. A most useful new reference book is "Electronics and Nucleonics Dictionary" edited by John Markus.

Providence Woman Dies: Rites Today

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special)—Funeral services for Mrs. Donovan F. Davis, 63, of Lake Providence, will be today at 2 p.m. at First Methodist Church here with the Rev. Ned Stout officiating.

Burial will be in Providence Memorial Park Cemetery under direction of First National Funeral Home of Lake Providence.

Mrs. Davis, the former Marie Jennings of Chicago, Ill., died unexpectedly at Mercy Hospital in Vicksburg late Friday after a short illness.

She was a teacher at Lake Providence High School and the wife of a Lake Providence physician. A member of the Methodist Church, Mrs. Davis had served as an officer for the Fifth District Methodist WSCS. She was a charter member of the Carroll Woman's Club and an active member of that organization. She was also a member of the East Carroll Garden Club, having served as president, and she was a member of Kappa Iota Sorority, a teachers' professional organization, and a member of Providence Chapter No. 42, Order of Eastern Star in Lake Providence.

She received her RN degree from the Lake Forrest School of Nursing in Chicago and a BS Degree from Northeast Louisiana College in Monroe.

Survivors include her husband, Dr. Donovan F. Davis, Lake Providence; two daughters, Mrs. P. G. Trosclair, Ferriday, and Mrs. L. A. Button of Lake Providence, two sisters, Misses Margaret and Irene Jennings, and her father James Jennings, all of Chicago, Ill.

Pallbearers will be Dr. F. M. Terral, Bernard Rosenzweig, B. A. Bayles, Henry Vaughn, Leon Saddler and Sam Batt.

Centenary Choir Sets Appearance

MANY (Special) — In top form vocally and anticipating the six weeks engagement at New York's famed Radio City Music Hall this summer, the Centenary Choir of Shreveport will present a gala program of sitting songs in its annual Spring Concert at Hodges Gardens on Saturday, at 8 p.m.

The 49 - voice singing troupe under the direction of Dr. A. C. Voran will preview some of the songs it will sing in New York plus an album of songs for all ages the choir is recording this month under the auspices of Hodges Gardens.

Featured soloist will be Miss Carolyn Garison, soprano of El Dorado, Ark., who will sing "Jubilant Song" by Dello Joio and "Open a New Window."

GULF COAST

It's truly America's Riviera! Bordering the Gulf of Mexico are 50 miles of beaches, luxurious accommodations, fine restaurants, golf courses, historical sites—fun for all ages, all pocketbooks. Enjoy a really different seacoast vacation this year on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Instant Justice

Back in frontier days, a stern judge in Ohio used to keep a live bomb on the floor of the jury room. When he sent the jurors in to deliberate, he would call their attention to the fuse leading outside of the room.

"Bring me a verdict in five minutes," he would thunder, "or by heaven I will light the fuse!"

Needless to say, his jurors didn't dawdle. And it is still true today that juries, even though not spurred on so persuasively, sometimes do bring in their verdict fast.

Quite naturally, doubts may arise. Did they really give fair consideration to the evidence? Can a trial that last for days be decided in minutes? Time and again, a person who has been found guilty of a crime will raise such questions by appealing to a higher court for a new trial.

But almost invariably, the court has ruled that speed alone does not prove that the verdict was unfair. For, after all, there are perfectly sensible reasons why a jury, while conscientiously doing its duty, may still bring in a speedy verdict. Thus:

When a jury took only eight minutes to convict a man of drunk driving, the court found nothing improper — because there was just one simple issue for the jurors to decide.

And when a jury took only an hour to convict a man of tax fraud, the court found nothing improper — because a lopsided preponderance of evidence pointed to guilt.

In other words, the law does not insist on long, drawn - out deliberations just to make the verdict "look good."

But there is another side to the matter. The law does insist that, when jurors feel the need to go slow, they should not be highpressured into hurrying.

For example:

The jurors in a murder case, deadlocked for almost seven hours, reached a verdict in short order — after the trial judge hinted that he might hold them in contempt if they did not agree.

This verdict, on appeal, was thrown out. The appellate court warned:

"If a trial judge is permitted to coerce a jury into a verdict, then the value of the system of trial by jury is at an end.

Guide To Good Reading

Many New Books Now In Library

By Frances Flanders, Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books in great number have been added to the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. There are books for every reader. A new book by William Faulkner is always a literary sensation. This week there is the delightful small book "The Wishing Tree". It is a fantasy and is an interesting addition to the Faulkner collection."Diary of an Old Man" by Chaim I. Bermant is the story of two old men who have outlived all of their contemporaries. The setting is in England and the story is slight, but there is much philosophy in the book. "The Nine Billion Names of God" is a collection of short stories of the science fiction type, written by Arthur C. Clark "Sanctuary" is a delightful English story of retired ladies written by Frank Swinnerton, "Silverhill" by Phyllis Whitney is another of her stories of involved family relationships and mysteries written by an author who had a large and devoted audience. "The Family Tree" by Dorothy Yates has a Louisiana setting. It is a story of memories, shadows and impending destruction. "About Us." by Chester Aaron is a story of Jewish family life and is exceedingly well done. "The Falling Hills" by Perry Lentz is a story about one battle in the Civil War. It is very realistically done and will be too much for squeamish readers. "The Purloined Paperweight" is a delightful story by P. G. Wodehouse. His devoted readers will not be disappointed. "Finding Out" by Thomas Baird is a story of a mystery in a museum. It is very well - written and should be enjoyed by many readers. "For Love or Money" by Tim Jeal is a story of life and love among an upper class English family. It will interest those who do not want a serious work, but light entertainment.

In the field of non-fiction there is a geat variety of coverage. "The Responsibility of the Press" by Gerald Gross is a book which will appeal to all those engaged in this profession. "The Vision of the Past" is an expression of the philosophy of Teilhad de Chardin. "Games People Play" by Eric Berne has just been added in the large type edition. It is a most interesting book of sociology. "The Guaranteed Income" by Robert Theobold is an interesting new book in the field of economics. "Little Charley Ross" by Norman Zierold is an account of America's first sensational kidnapping case. "The Seventh Step" is the continuation of the story of Bill Sands, whose "My Shadow Ran Fast" was such a sensation two years ago. Editors of school yearbooks will surely want to see "Yearbook Editing, Layout and Management" by Calvin Medlin. "The Gypsies" by Jan Yoors is a very fine account of this remarkable people. John Pierce is the author of two new books in the field of electronics: "Electrons and Waves" and "Quantum Electronics."

"The Ancient World" by Giovani Garbini is an evaluation of art in the early days of the world. "Magic of Trees and Stones" contains the secrets of Japanese Gardening and was written by Katsau Saito. "Jazz Masters of New Orleans" by Martin T. Williams is an interesting addition to our music and Louisiana collection. "My Championship Judo" by Anton Geesink will be used by those who are studying this art. Henry Timrod was one of the great Southern poets and his work has long been out of print. We are happy that the University of Georgia has reprinted his collected poems in a lively edition. Gordon C. Bigelow has written an interesting evaluation and criticism of the literary career in Majorie Kinnan Rawlings, which he calls "Frontier Eden." "A Wife for the Pretender" by Aline Miller deals with an interesting period of English history, from 1714 to 1837. There are two new books about the War in Vietnam: "Letters from Vietnam" edited by Bill Adler and "Victor Charlie" by June Knoebl. Both of these books shed much light on the conditions in that troubled land. Philip Viereck is the author of "The New Land" which discusses the discovery, exploration and early settlement of the Northeast Section of the U. S. up to the year 1621. "Latin America in World Politics" in an interesting appraisal by Norman A. Bailey. Of great interest to students of modern American history are "The Journal of David E. Lilienthal" in three volumes. We just added the last two volumes, which are most interesting. "Hollywood Pilot" by Don Dwiggins is the biography of Paul Matz and makes exciting reading. A most useful new reference book is "Electronics and Nucleonics Dictionary" edited by John Markus.

Providence Woman Dies; Rites Today

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special)—Funeral services for Mrs. Donovan F. Davis, 64, of Lake Providence, will be today at 2 p.m. at First Methodist Church here with the Rev. Ned Stout officiating.

Burial will be in Providence Memorial Park Cemetery under direction of First National Funeral Home of Lake Providence.

Mrs. Davis, the former Marie Jennings of Chicago, Ill., died unexpectedly at Mercy Hospital in Vicksburg late Friday after a short illness.

She was a teacher at Lake Providence High School and the wife of a Lake Providence physician. A member of the Methodist Church, Mrs. Davis had served as an officer for the Fifth District Methodist WSCS. She was a charter member of the Carroll Woman's Club and an active member of that organization. She was also a member of the East Carroll Garden Club, having served as president, and she was a member of Kappa Iota Sorority, a teachers' professional organization, and a member of providence Chapter No. 42, Order of Eastern Star in Lake Providence.

She received her RN degree from the Lake Forrest School of Nursing in Chicago and a BS Degree from Northeast Louisiana College in Monroe.

Survivors include her husband, Dr. Donovan F. Davis, Lake Providence; two daughters, Mrs. B.G. Trosclair, Ferriday, and Mrs. L. A. Batton of Lake Providence; two sisters, Misses Margaret and Irene Jennings, and her father James Jennings, all of Chicago, Ill.

Pallbearers will be Dr. F.M. Terral, Bernard Rosenzweig, B.A. Bayles, Henry Vaughn, Penn Sandidge and Sam Batton.

Centenary Choir Sets Appearance

MANY (Special) — In top form vocally and anticipating its six weeks engagement at New York's famed Radio City Music Hall this summer, the Centenary Choir of Shreveport will present a gala program of lilting songs in its annual Spring Concert at Hodges Gardens on Saturday, at 8 p.m.

The 49 - voice singing troupe under the direction of Dr. A. C. Voran will preview some of the songs it will sing in New York plus an album of songs for all ages the choir is recording this month under the auspices of Hodges Gardens.

Featured soloist will be Miss Carolyn Garison, soprano of El Dorado, Ark., who will sing "Jubilant Song" by Dello Joio and "Open a New Window."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Instant Justice

Back in frontier days, a stern judge in Ohio used to keep a live bomb on the floor of the jury room. When he sent the jurors in to deliberate, he would call their attention to the fuse leading outside of the room.

"Bring me a verdict in five minutes," he would thunder, "or by heaven I will light the fuse!"

Needless to say, his jurors didn't dawdle. And it is still true today that jurors, even though not spurred on so persuasively, sometimes do bring in their verdict fast.

Quite naturally, doubts may arise. Did they really give fair consideration to the evidence? Can a trial that last for days be decided in minutes? Time and again, a person who has been found guilty of a crime will raise such questions by appealing to a higher court for a new trial.

But almost invariably, the court has ruled that speed alone does not prove that the verdict was unfair. For, after all, there are perfectly sensible reasons why a jury, while conscientiously doing its duty, may still bring in a speedy verdict. Thus:

When a jury took only eight minutes to convict a man of drunk driving, the court found nothing improper — because there was just one simple issue for the jurors to decide.

And when a jury took only an hour to convict a man of tax fraud, the court found nothing improper — because a lopsided preponderance of evidence pointed to guilt.

In other words, the law does not insist on long, drawn - out deliberations just to make the verdict "look good."

But there is another side to the matter. The law does insist that, when jurors feel the need to go slow, they should not be highpressured into hurrying.

For example:

The jurors in a murder case, deadlocked for almost seven hours, reached a verdict in short order — after the trial judge hinted that he might hold them in contempt if they did not agree.

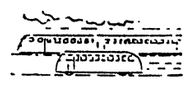
Away From Home

Richard Enwright



The Man And The Spirit

The Lexington IRT Line runs from the Bronx, down through Yorkville, past Grand Central Station, 32nd Street, 23rd, and on down to the bottom end of Manhattan Island at Fulton Street. Then it whirs under the East River and wanders into Flatbush. At the Fulton Street station, footworn steps climb out of the tunnel into daylight. At once comes the clean salt air of the ocean which overpowers unpleasant vapors of streets and buildings. Several short blocks from the station is the Battery where you can see the East and Hudson Rivers flow into New York Bay. Water slaps against the sea wall, and the waves careen away as if to run to the Narrows and to the ocean. In the morning, when it is early and you can think, there is a quietness in the streets, Sea gulls wheel aand turn near the watertop. One flies toward the Atlantic. Only gull squawks and the swish of a tug halt the quiet. Forty years ago there was another morning, another flier. Who could forget his story?

. . .May 20, 1927, 7:00 a.m. (New York time) SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS PUSHED OUT OF HANGER INTO A MUDDY FIELD. LIGHT RAIN FALLING. . .The Ryan was built in just sixty days. Lindberg flew it to St. Louis in a record thirteen hours.

. . .7:40 a.m. — WRIGHT WHIRLWIND J-5,220 HORSEPOWER ENGINE STARTED . . . Someone remembered that it had sputtered a few seconds and then droned into life. It was a valiant machine which never faltered, not for thirty - three and a half hours.

. . .7:52 a.m. — SPIRIT OF ST. LOUS TOOK OFF ON WORLD'S FIRST SOLO FLIGHT ACROSS THE ATLANTIC, FIRST FLGIHT FROM NEW YORK TO PARIS. PROCEEDED UP THE NORTHEAST COAST OF LONG ISLAND, OVER CAPE COD, NOVA SCOTIA AND NEWFOUNDLAND. IN THIRTEEN HOURS. . . There had been a steamroller at the far end of the muddy strip. They had had to push and lift the airplane, helping it to a start. Some figured it would never clear the steamroller and the line of trees and houses beyond.

. . . .8:15 p.m. — . . . DARKNESS SET IN SOON AFTER PASSING NORTHEAST TIP OF NEWFOUNDLAND. . .The pilot had seen small settlements below and then high cliff. . . .Finally, there was only ocean and darkness, and he was alone in the greatness of the sky.

. . . .10:15 p.m. — MOON APPEARED ON HORIZON GIVING SUFFICIENT LIGHT TO DODGE TOPS OF STORM CLOUDS. . . Lindbergh flew on, into the darkness, without sleep. He flew until it seemed the night would never end. . .

. . . .1:00 a.m. — DAWN . . .ENCOUNTERED SNOW, SLEET: NECESSARY TO FLY ON INSTRUMENTS FOR SEVERAL HOURS. ALTITUDE VARIED FROM 20 FEET ABOVE OCEAN TO 10,000 . . . There was a vastness, an emptiness, which Lindbergh never forgot. And wherever he looked, there was sky, ocean, and clouds; grey in the light of dawn.

7:52 a.m. — STILL GOING STRONG AFTER BEING ALOFT 24 HOURS. HAD NOT SIGHTED ANY SHIPS . . . LATER IN DAY SIGHTED SOUTHERN COAST OF IRELAND . . .ENTERED MOUTH OF ENGLISH CHANNEL — PASSED JUST SOUTH OF PLYMOUTH, ENGLAND. . . SUN WENT DOWN FOR SECOND TIME SOON AFTER PASSING OVER COASTLINE OF FRANCE NEAR CHERBOURG. . .He had searched for signs of land. Sleep was an enemy which had to be fought. Then on the horizon, he saw the green hills of Ireland. The little airplane darted on, crossing the Channel to France. Who could have imagined the feeling he had. And the whole world waited, prayed and was overjoyed.

. . . .5:21 p.m. — (10:21 p.m. or a.m. PARIS TIME), LANDED LE BOURGET AIR FIELD AFTER FLYING THIRTY-THREE AND A HALF HOURS, WINNING $25,000 PRIZE OFFERED BY ORTEIG. . .Lindberg hadn't expected the huge crowd which massed at the airport. He thought he'd come to the wrong place. Then he was lifted out of the airplane and carried away. He thought about the airplane and worried that it would be torn to pieces. But the world was his that night . . . He and has airplane had flown into history and men's hearts.

The morning passed and as the sun climbed higher, waves on New York bay turned into whitcaps in the freshening wind. Sea gulls still swooped and wheeled as you thought about the night forty years ago. Sunlight caught the uplifted arm of the Statue of Liberty, and you could hear the rumblings of the IRT trains beneath the streets and buildings. High above, between city and sky, a jet was climbing, heading toward the sea.

The Man And The Spirit

The Lexington IRT Line runs from the Bronx, down through Yorkville, past Grand Central Station, 32nd Street, 23rd, and on down to the bottom end of Manhattan Island at Fulton Street. Then it whirs under the East River and wanders into Flatbush. At the Fulton Street station, footworn steps climb out of the tunnel into daylight. At once comes the clean salt air of the ocean which overpowers unpleasant vapors of streets and buildings. Several short blocks from the station is the Battery where you can see the East and Hudson Rivers flow into New York Bay. Water slaps against the sea wall, and the waves careen away as if to run to the Narrows and to the ocean. In the morning, when it is early and you can think, there is a quietness in the streets, Sea gulls wheel aand turn near the watertop. One flies toward the Atlantic. Only gull squawks and the swish of a tug halt the quiet. Forty years ago there was another morning, another flier. Who could forget his story?

. . .May 20, 1927, 7:00 a.m. (New York time) SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS PUSHED OUT OF HANGER INTO A MUDDY FIELD. LIGHT RAIN FALLING. . .The Ryan was built in just sixty days. Lindberg flew it to St. Louis in a record thirteen hours.

. . .7:40 a.m. — WRIGHT WHIRLWIND J-5,220 HORSEPOWER ENGINE STARTED . . . Someone remembered that it had sputtered a few seconds and then droned into life. It was a valiant machine which never faltered, not for thirty - three and a half hours.

. . .7:52 a.m. — SPIRIT OF ST. LOUS TOOK OFF ON WORLD'S FIRST SOLO FLIGHT ACROSS THE ATLANTIC, FIRST FLGIHT FROM NEW YORK TO PARIS. PROCEEDED UP THE NORTHEAST COAST OF LONG ISLAND, OVER CAPE COD, NOVA SCOTIA AND NEWFOUNDLAND. IN THIRTEEN HOURS. . . There had been a steamroller at the far end of the muddy strip. They had had to push and lift the airplane, helping it to a start. Some figured it would never clear the steamroller and the line of trees and houses beyond.

. . . .8:15 p.m. — . . . DARKNESS SET IN SOON AFTER PASSING NORTHEAST TIP OF NEWFOUNDLAND. . .The pilot had seen small settlements below and then high cliff. . . .Finally, there was only ocean and darkness, and he was alone in the greatness of the sky.

. . . .10:15 p.m. — MOON APPEARED ON HORIZON GIVING SUFFICIENT LIGHT TO DODGE TOPS OF STORM CLOUDS. . . Lindbergh flew on, into the darkness, without sleep. He flew until it seemed the night would never end. . .

. . . .1:00 a.m. — DAWN . . .ENCOUNTERED SNOW, SLEET: NECESSARY TO FLY ON INSTRUMENTS FOR SEVERAL HOURS. ALTITUDE VARIED FROM 20 FEET ABOVE OCEAN TO 10,000 . . . There was a vastness, an emptiness, which Lindbergh never forgot. And wherever he looked, there was sky, ocean, and clouds; grey in the light of dawn.

7:52 a.m. — STILL GOING STRONG AFTER BEING ALOFT 24 HOURS. HAD NOT SIGHTED ANY SHIPS . . . LATER IN DAY SIGHTED SOUTHERN COAST OF IRELAND . . .ENTERED MOUTH OF ENGLISH CHANNEL — PASSED JUST SOUTH OF PLYMOUTH, ENGLAND. . . SUN WENT DOWN FOR SECOND TIME SOON AFTER PASSING OVER COASTLINE OF FRANCE NEAR CHERBOURG. . .He had searched for signs of land. Sleep was an enemy which had to be fought. Then on the horizon, he saw the green hills of Ireland. The little airplane darted on, crossing the Channel to France. Who could have imagined the feeling he had. And the whole world waited, prayed and was overjoyed.

. . . .5:21 p.m. — (10:21 p.m. or a.m. PARIS TIME), LANDED LE BOURGET AIR FIELD AFTER FLYING THIRTY-THREE AND A HALF HOURS, WINNING $25,000 PRIZE OFFERED BY ORTEIG. . .Lindberg hadn't expected the huge crowd which massed at the airport. He thought he'd come to the wrong place. Then he was lifted out of the airplane and carried away. He thought about the airplane and worried that it would be torn to pieces. But the world was his that night . . . He and has airplane had flown into history and men's hearts.

The morning passed and as the sun climbed higher, waves on New York bay turned into whitcaps in the freshening wind. Sea gulls still swooped and wheeled as you thought about the night forty years ago. Sunlight caught the uplifted arm of the Statue of Liberty, and you could hear the rumblings of the IRT trains beneath the streets and buildings. High above, between city and sky, a jet was climbing, heading toward the sea.

IN A RUT?

ARE YOU FRUSTRATED and discouraged by being bogged down year after year in a job with a limited future?

By applying the same amount of hard work and diligent effort that you now put into your present job, you could be in a position where only you can limit your future. We do not want your capital or investments, we only want men who have a sincere desire to better themselves and are willing to work toward that goal. We are a nation wide company with over 1,000 men working that earn professional pay of $10,000 and above yearly. If you do not need this kind of income and are not willing to work for it then do not answer this ad. I can show and will prove to any man "worth his salt" how to give himself a $1,000 a year pay raise.

Qualifications desired: 25-50 years of age, good health, serviceable auto, steady past employment record and above all a burning desire to have a better future.

If this fits you, send a brief resume to Box 254 care of News-Star—World for an appointment for a personal interview. All letters will be answered.

IN A RUT?

ARE YOU FRUSTRATED and discouraged by being bogged down year after year in a job with a limited future?

By applying the same amount of hard work and diligent effort that you now put into your present job, you could be in a position where only you can limit your future. We do not want your capital or investments, we only want men who have a sincere desire to better themselves and are willing to work toward that goal. We are a nation wide company with over 1,000 men working that earn professional pay of $10,000 and above yearly. If you do not need this kind of income and are not willing to work for it then do not answer this ad. I can show and will prove to any man "worth his salt" how to give himself a $1,000 a year pay raise.

Qualifications desired: 25-50 years of age, good health, serviceable auto, steady past employment record and above all a burning desire to have a better future.

If this fits you, send a brief resume to Box 254 care of News-Star—World for an appointment for a personal interview. All letters will be answered.

State Solon Joins Fight For Trains

ALEXANDRIA Special — State Representative Larry Parker of Alexandria Saturday joined the others against Missouri Pacific Railroad's plan to discontinue two passenger trains between here and Little Rock, Ark.

Parker said that although the decision is the final word in the current local legislature session, he will ask the legislature Monday to pass a memorial petition requesting John Hunt of Monroe to intervene.

The MPR said earlier this week that it will ask the interstate commerce commission for permission to drop the two trains.

The proposed resolution of Parker's office has far-reaching implications. Parker said. "We are trying to build on the industrial image of Central Louisiana and to induce more people to locate here. Missouri Pacific, by reducing passenger service, is doing the exact opposite."

U.S. Selects Northeast For Grant

The Vertebrate Museum of the Department of Biology at Northeast Louisiana State College has been designated as one of six research museums in the United States to receive specimens of a newly named species of fish, Dr. B. Earl Prince, head of the department, has announced.

Northeast, along with the University of Alabama, Cornell University, the University of Michigan, Tulane University and the National Museum in Washington, D. C., has been selected as a depository for a paratypic series of a small freshwater fish commonly called a "darter" but now scientifically named "Etheostoma colletti."

The specimens were collected in 1965 and 1966 in survey work on the freshwater fishes of Louisiana by Dr. Neil H. Douglas, associate professor of biology at Northeast, and some of his students. They were sent to Dr. Ray S. Birdsong of the Institute of Marine Sciences at the University of Miami, who named and described and new species and selected the six museums as depositories.

Dr. Douglas collected the fish from Choudrant Bayou on La. 15 bounding Ouachita and Union Parishes. He says the species appears limited in distribution to smaller streams and bayous of central and north Louisiana and southeastern Arkansas.

Body Of Woman Linked To Killing

ATLANTA (UPI) —The body of a beautiful 22-year-old girl was found Saturday stuffed in the trunk of her car. She had received five red roses from an anonymous sender, just as another local woman had before she mysteriously disappeared.

Police said that both the victim and the woman who disappeared at one time had the same roommate.

The body of Diane Marie Shields was discovered about 2:30 a.m. by two officers on a routine patrol in the Atlanta suburb of East Point. A nine foot long trail of blood led from the trunk.

An autopsy showed the girl had been strangled, but officers said she also had received a severe blow on the back of her head. She was fully clothed and had not been raped, authorities said.

Little-Known War Going On In Laos

PARIS (AP)—A split has developed among Communist leaders in Hanoi over whether North Vietnam should launch a major invasion of the allies either accomplished a political victory in South Vietnam or signed a peace treaty, according to Western officers in Vientiane, Laos.

Westerners there say the split has developed since Premier Nguyen Van Dong returned from Moscow and Peking with a promise of more Soviet and Red China aid.

Dong is said to favor an all-out effort to overthrow the Saigon government and a major invasion might bring the wrath of the world down on them.

Some other Communist leaders, particularly those working in the South Vietnam and Laos fronts, are said to feel that Hanoi would very much exist if the pressure in South Vietnam were suddenly relieved.

They say this could be accomplished by a cease-fire and the start of negotiations.

Western officers in Vientiane say the military situation seems to be improving slowly. Government forces have about two-thirds of the country under control and Westerners think the Laotian army, never particularly famous for being an aggressive force, is improving.

There are no really elite Laotian units, but there are some crack officers and their men do well in the field, an American source said. "You have to consider that the Laotians are not an aggressive people. In the past their land has always been free of patrols and they have not had to be aggressive to survive.

"Also they've been at war with the Japanese, the French and then another for about 20 years.

"The best unit in the government has been the paratroops. It is mainly made up of Meo tribesmen from the area of the Plaine des Jarres, under the Vientiane military region. Gen. Kouprasith Abhay is in charge of it.

"The northern tribesmen have been fighting the Communists for years and would defend their homes to the death. They are also fierce fighters and have a tradition of never surrendering."

Little-Known War Going On In Laos

PAKSE, Laos (AP)—A pilot flies 350 missions against a Communist enemy. An infantry patrol clashes with a North Vietnamese unit and kills six of them.

This sounds like Vietnam but it's Laos. Here there's also a war, on a smaller scale.

The forces are of about the same size, both numbering around 70,000 according to a U.S. military attache.

Western sources estimate that about 15,000 of the Communists are North Vietnamese regulars actively engaged in fighting royal Laotian army troops. Possibly 5,000 more North Vietnamese guard the series of roads and paths in south-central Laos that has come to be known as the Ho Chi Minh trail used for infiltration into South Vietnam.

"Laos' future is inextricably bound with that of Vietnam," a U.S. source said. "The fighting there has undoubtedly drained off men who otherwise would be here."

Westerners differ in opinions on whether North Vietnam would launch a major invasion if the allies either accomplished a clear-cut victory in South Vietnam or signed a peace treaty suddenly.

"I don't think so," said one American observer. "They have no claim on Laos that could by any stretch of the imagination be termed legitimate, even by them.

"Fourteen nations—including the United States and Red China —have signed an agreement respecting Laotian neutrality, and a major invasion might bring the wrath of the world down on them."

Some other Americans, particularly those working in the field on various aid projects, don't think Hanoi would worry much about world opinion if the pressure in South Vietnam were suddenly relieved.

"They'd hit this place like a thunderbolt," one said.

Meanwhile, the Laotian military situation seems to be improving slowly. Government forces have about two-thirds of the country under control and Westerners think the Laotian army, never particularly famous for being an aggressive force, is improving.

"There are no really elite Laotian units, but there are some crack officers and their men do well in the field," an American source said. "You have to consider that the Lao just are not an agressive people. In the past their land has always been one of plenty and they have not had to be aggressive to survive.

"Also they've been at war with the Japanese, the French or one another for about 30 years."

One bright spot for the government has been the behavior of 10,000 neutralist troops formerly under the controversial mystic, Gen. Kong Le, now in exile.

The neutralist colonels were able to keep their troops in hand and most proved willing to serve under combined neutralist-royal command.

Last month a combined neutralist-royal force began an operation about 35 miles east of Pakse that is aimed at recovering an area long dominated by the Communists.

Hall Of Fame For McElroy

With Stuart Hill

A Monroe resident, who still draws the highest praises from his high school and college coaches, has been enshrined in the Hall of Fame at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Neville athletic director and long-time coach, Bill Ruple and USM coach Thad "Pie" Vann recall almost the same things about William Murry "Bucky" McElroy Jr.

Ruple describes Bucky as the best ever to come out of Neville High School. "He had a lot of determination," Ruple said. "If he was playing marbles he played to win and he hated to get beat worse then anybody I've ever seen."

Vann figures that Bucky, who now devotes his athletic abilities to golf, was, "one of the finest fullbacks that ever played at Southern."

"He was well above the average fullback in that he had a lot of determination to excell. He didn't believe anybody could beat him at anything on that football field," said Vann.

If coaches need anything to back up their comments, consider these laurels for the new hall of famer: two years honorable mention junior college All-America while at Hines Junior College; All-GSC; set GSC ground gaining record; second team Little All-America, 1951; first team Little All-America, 1952-53; holds ground gaining record at Southern; played in post-season games such as Sun Bowl, 52-53, Blue-Gray, Shrine Bowl, Senior Bowl, All-Star game; played briefly with the Chicago Bears, and one year with the Hamilton Tiger Cats in Canada.

Vann credits McElroy as an instrumental part of the Southern team which defeated Alabama and Georgia in 1953. The Southerners had a 9-1 season that year, but lost to San Francisco in the Sun Bowl. "Bucky was injured for that game and we used him only for passing on fake runs, but thats the only time I remember him being injured," said Vann.

"He made it hard on opponents," said Vann. "He had a lot of power and quickness running straight on, but he still had the ability to go outside and throw the defense off balance."

Ruple drifts back in memory to the 45-46-47 seasons to recall some of McElroy's feats.

"The first game he ever played in," said Ruple, "he ran 65 yards for a touchdown and it was called back because a guard was off sides. He came back on the next play and ran it again, but it was called back because of holding. The next morning, Paul Martin, (long-time sports editor for the News-Star--World, called him, 'No-Touchdown, McElroy.'

"He was death on punt returns. We didn't learn that until we played Homer. He took the punt on the 15-yard line and ran straight back to the two. I was just about to have a heart attack then he ran straight to the sidelines and five of our players were with him when he crossed the goal line," said Ruple.

Ruple recalled another game when opponents would not punt to McElroy. With Ruple's permission, McElroy waited on the sidelines until just before the other team kicked, then ran in to replace the Neville safty to receive the kick.

The veteran Neville coach said that the Tigers lost two games in '47, McElroy's last prep season. One was to Bogalusa, which won the AA title, and the other was to Ruston, which won the Class A title, and both were by one point.

Shorts and Stuff

The New Orleans Saints have found sponsors for a seven-state radio broadcasting system. The agreement covers the coming and 1968 season.

There is no sure fire way of becoming a Saint! But, If you want to try, the Saints will hold a tryout camp June 9,10 at Tulane Stadium. As part of the requirements, prospective Saints must write 615 Howard Ave., New Orleans before hand or call 1-504-524-1421. That's the smallest price of becoming a professional football player. Ask Smokey Stover of Monroe, who became a Kansas City Chief via the tryout route.

Gene Adams, a former Northeast State golfer, who has been one of the guiding influences at Highland Park Country Club, has been transferred to New Orleans.

Ray Mulhern of West Monroe, the top tournament golfer for Louisiana Tech this past season with a 77.3 stroke average, is planning to work at Monroe's Municipal course this summer — and to work on his game in his spare time. Ray will be a senior at Tech next season.

It's not enough for coaches to scrap with one another in various athletics. They get together June 8-9 in Thibodaux for the first annual Louisiana Collegiate Cajun Coaches Golf Classic. Head coaches, athletic directors, celebrities and members of the press, radio and TV corps of the state will participate.

The University of Southern Mississippi took on two new coaches, Doug Barfield and Joe Vetraino, when Maxie Lambright took over the head job at Tech. Both Barfield and Vetraino are Southern graduates.

Bill Keith and Steve Thurber of Tech, the GSC No. 1 doubles champions, lost one set in league competition during the season while posting eight straight wins.

David Smith of Bossier City is the only athlete to play on Northwestern's two championship teams. Smith, a 6-0, 175-pound junior, was a defensive halfback on the undefeated Demons' football squad and played right field for the GSC championship baseball team. Only Northwestern athletic director Jack Clayton can top that — he coached both teams.

Derby-Beaten Damascus Takes Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Damascus, a failure in the Kentucky Derby and seemingly headed for another downfall in the role of the public choice, struck like the thrust of a sword Saturday and won the richest Preakness at Pimlico.

His time of 1:55 1-5 was the second fastest in 92 runnings of the 1 3-16 mile second lag of the Triple Crown.

Ninth in a field of 10 3-year-olds after a quarter of a mile, 11 lengths back in eighth place at the half-mile and still eighth, 5½ lengths behind the leaders at the three-quarter pole, the son of Sword Dancer swept to a 2¼-length victory in the $194,000 race.

In Reality, making his first start since winning the Florida Derby April 1, also came from out of the pack for runner-up honors.

Kentucky Derby winner Proud Clarion, farther back than even Damascus in the earby running, again turned on the power in the stretch. But it was too late. He trailed In Reality by four lengths while beating Reason to Hail by three-quarters of a length for third place.

The winning time was second only to the track record of 1:54 3-5 set by Nashua in 1955.

Damascus, who finished third in the Derby, carried Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft's white and red-dotted silks which also were sported by Nashua when he posted the third Preakness triumph for the famous Belair Stud. Mrs. Bancroft is a daughter of the late William Woodward, founder of Belair.

Billy Shoemaker, scoring his second Preakness triumph, lashed Damascus with his whip to take the lead at the head of the stretch, cracked him a couple more times in the final 16th of a mile, dismounted, was interviewed and within less than an hour was en route to California with his son, Mitchell and some $14,000.

The jockey received 10 per cent of the winner's purse which was a record $141,500.

The $2 backers of Damascus retrieved $5.60, $3.60, $2.60. In Reality paid $4.60 and $3.60 while Proud Clarion returned $3.80.

"I had no place to go except outside on the final turn," said Shoemaker, who won the Preakness with Candy Spots in 1963. "Damascus was an entirely different horse today from the one I rode in the Derby. He had it when I called on him."

"I guess we'll go onto the Belmont," said trainer Frank Whiteley when asked about the third race of the Triple Crown on June 3 at Aqueduct.

Bobby Ussery, astride Proud Clarion from John Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm, had no excuses for the surprise winner of the Kentucky Derby.

"I didn't plan to be so far back," said Ussery. "But when Shoemaker started to move I gave my horse the word. He answered with a burst of speed, but when Shoe went to the whip there was no stopping his horse."

Back of the first four horses in order came Misty Cloud, Barbs Delight, Ask The Fare, Celtic Air, Favorable Turn and Great Power.

Damascus's powerful stretch run carried him across the finish line 2¼ lengths in front of In Reality, who was making his first start since winning the Florida Derby on April 1.

It was another four lengths back to Proud Clarion and three-quarters of a length separated the Derby winner from Patrice Jacobs' Reason to Hail, who in the last seven weeks has traveled some 8,000 miles and got a piece of five major stakes.

Damascus, chalking up his fourth victory in six starts this year, earned a record Preakness purse of $141,500 to boost his earnings as a 3-year-old to $260,460.

In 10 starts since coming to the races late last season, the trim bay Kentucky-bred colt never has been worse than third.

"There was no place to go but outside," said Shoemaker, watching a television rerun of the race. "They were all bunched up and there wasn't much running room."

Shoemaker said Damascus was inclined to get lazy when in front sometimes.

"I whacked him pretty good with my whip in the stretch to keep him from laying back," Shoemaker said.

Shoemaker got Damascus away well but the same could not be said for Bobby Ussery on Proud Clarion.

With Celtic Air, ridden by Nick Shuk, breaking on top, Shoemaker settled Damascus in stride but he was far back going the first turn and no better than seventh in the run down the back stretch as his stablemate reeled off the first quarter mile in 23 seconds flat, the half in 46 2-5.

At this stage of the race, Barbs Delight, runner-up in the Derby and ridden by Bill Hartack, was offering the most serious contention.

As they hit the one-half mile pole, the trailers started closing in and Shoemaker swung to the outside with Damascus.

With ground-eating strides, he was within a length of the leaders one-eighth of a mile later and in the home stretch, with one-quarter mile left, the lightly-trained colt was really flying and his supporters in the third largest Preakness crowd in history were cheering wildly.

Celtic Air and Barbs Delight had enough at that point as In Reality moved out of the pack and Proud Clarion, who had come from far off the pace to take the Kentucky Derby, began his move.

But there was no catching the son of Sword Dancer this day as he responded to the urging of Shoemaker's whip and went on to victory with In Reality having no trouble staving off Proud Clarion's stretch run.

Shoemaker Says Mount Was Relaxed

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jockey Willie Shoemaker said Damascus was able to show his heels to the Preakness field Saturday because he went to the post much more relaxed than he did as the beaten favorite in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago.

"He wasn't shook up going to the gate the way he was in the Derby," Shoemaker said after guiding the son of Sword Dancer to a 2¼-length victory at Pimlico, worth $141,500 to owner Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft.

"There was a lot of noise at the Derby and he wasn't used to it. He was a kind of a different horse today."

After three-quarters of a mile of the 1 3-16 mile race, Damascus was running eighth in the 10-horse field. But he was only 5½ lengths off the pace being set by Celtic Air — with whom he was coupled in the betting because both are trained by Frank Whiteley Jr.

Shoemaker said jockey Nick Shuk on Celtic Air had not been instructed to take the early lead.

Shoemaker took Damascus to the outside when he made his move and then shifted to the rail for the stretch drive.

"The field was bunched up," Shoemaker said, "and I had no shot to go through. I had no other choice than to go to the outside. Then he went to the inside because of the whip."

By the time Damascus reached the stretch he already had opened up a 3½-length lead over In Reality and the crowd of 38,371 knew the 92nd running of the Preakness was over.

Shoemaker said he was laying farther off the pace than he had planned, but "I wanted to make one run with him today and see how he would handle it.

"It was different than the Derby because he had it when I called on him."

Jockey Earlie Fires, aboard runner-up In Reality, said he thought his colt was in the perfect spot "but we got into trouble between the half mile and the 3-16 pole.

"The leaders started backing up on us, and there was no where to go. When I got clear at the 3-16 pole my horse felt strong and I thought I had a shot, but then he tired in the last 16th."

Fires said he thought a previous race on the Pimlico strip would have helped.

Trainer Sunshine Calvert agreed that In Reality could have used another race because he hadn't been in competition since April 1.

"Maybe that horse Damascus would have beat us if we had three races, but I would have been more satisfied," Calvert said.

Bobby Ussery, who rode Proud Clarion to victory in the Derby and finished a well beaten third Saturday, said in mount "ran a good race and I have no excuses.

"I started my move coming to the half-mile pole and at that point I was only a half-length off Damascus, who was moving too," Ussery said. "But then Shoemaker hit Damascus and he took off."

Ussery said Proud Clarion was running strongly when he made the move but "when Damascus took the lead he went over to the rail and I had to stay where I was — out in the middle of the track."

Cepeda's Hit Leads Cards By Mets, 11-9

NEW YORK (AP) — Orlando Cepeda drove in the winning run with a ninth-inning double as the St. Louis Cardinals came from behind for an 11-9 victory over the New York Mets Saturday night.

Cepeda, who drive in four runs with three hits, followed Alex Johnson's pinch single with a drive down the left field line. Mike Shannon then singled, scoring Cepeda.

The Cardinals tied the score with four runs in the seventh and another in the eighth after the Mets had opened a 9-4 lead.

Lou Brock's two-out single in the eighth tied it, following singles by Julian Javier and Bobby Tolan.

Javier started the four-run seventh with a double and Tolan contributed a pinch double in that inning. Cepeda, who had homered in the third, climaxed the rally with a two-run double.

Consecutive two-run doubles by Ed Kranepool and Jerry Buchek were the key blows in the Mets' sixth as New York built a 9-4 lead.

New York broke in front at 4-0 on pitcher Jack Hamilton's grand slam home run in the second inning. But the Cardinals scored three runs in the third and Cepeda's homer in the fourth tied the score.

Taylor Agrees With Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Jimmy Taylor, one of the mainstays of the Green Bay Packer backfield for nearly a decade, has agreed to play for the New Orleans Saints, it was learned Saturday from a highly reliable source.

Earlier Saturday, the New Orleans States-Item, in a story by assistant sports editor Peter Finney, said Taylor signed a contract reportedly worth $500,000 to play for the Saints. The signing took place Friday, the story said.

"We're denying it," said Don Smith, public relations director for the Saints. "I won't say we won't sign Taylor but that's not true at this stage."

However, it was learned that Taylor's agreement is a personal services contract with John W. Mecom Jr., majority owner of the Saints. Taylor's official signing of an NFL contract with the Saints probably won't come until after the league meet- this coming week in New York.

"I'll have the story for you when we get back from New York," Larry Karl, another Saints official, said.

Taylor became a free agent May 1 after playing nine years with the Packers. He played college football under Paul Dietzel at LSU and makes his home in Baton Rouge.

The one hitch in Mecom's plans to obtain Taylor is Packer Coach and General Manager Vince Lombardi. Mecom, the States-Item said, has reportedly agreed to surrender his first round draft choices in 1968 and 1969 to The Packers.

Taylor, contacted in Baton Rouge, said "I have not signed a contract with any team." Asked if he would play with the Packers next year, Taylor replied

"I don't know. Maybe not."

There have been repeated reports from the Packer camp that Lombardi wants three — not two — first round draft choices. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said here two weeks ago he would step into the Taylor negotiations if it became necessary.

Rozelle, it is believed, wants to keep Taylor from going to court to win his complete freedom. Although the 31-year-old Taylor is a free agent, the team acquiring him must get the Packers to release him.

Rozelle explained previously that the league thinks the team which developed a player is entitled to compensation for losing him.

The States-Item story said the Saints will pay Taylor $500,000 over a 20-year period to lighten the tax bite. He'll also get an apartment in New Orleans, and his wife will get a new car, the story said. The contract is for four years, the newspaper said.

It was later learned, however, that the agreement with Mecom may call for Taylor to continue with the Saints in a promotional capacity after his playing days are over.

The Saints already have Paul Hornung, the Packers' one-time Golden Boy. Plagued with injuries in recent seasons, Hornung was acquired from the Packers in the veteran player expansion draft.

Finney wrote that Taylor turned down a Green Bay offer which called for a three year contract at $65,000 annually plus a $50,000 bonus. Sources close to the Packer camp placed these figures as "a little high," however.

SEC Officials Set To Grapple With Winter-Born Problems

ST PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Southeastern Conference athletic officials will start grappling Monday with problems that have developed during the winter, and are expected to work out unofficially any difficulties posed by integration of football and basketball next year.

Integration of athletics is not among the topics listed for discussion at the annual spring meeting of athletic directors and football and basketball coaches, but the debut of Negroes in SEC football and basketball next fall is expected to produce plenty of conversation during the three-day meeting.

Two Kentucky freshmen will be the first Negroes to play football in the SEC, and two Vanderbilt Negroes will be the first of their race to play basketball in the SEC.

Tennessee has given athletic grants to a pair of Negro high school football standouts, and other schools in the 10-member league have been prodded about integration by federal officials.

No formal action on integration is expected, but coaches probably will be trying to find out how Negro athletes will be received at some football stadiums and basketball courts.

Topics set for discussion by athletic directors include discussion of a proposal that the NCAA adopt the SEC rule that allows freshmen to compete in spring sports.

The athletic directors also will discuss a proposal that a limit be placed on the number of athletic grants allowed for each sport. There now is no limit, except in football.

Also proposed is a limit on the size of the traveling squads in football and basketball, and the controversial change in the rules on punt returns will be discussed.

Some coaches contend the rule which prohibits interior linemen from leaving the line until the ball is kicked—will increase injuries.

Basketball coaches also will discuss rules changes and work on the 1967-68 schedule.

Commissioner A. M. "Tonto" Coleman will attend the meetings which are used for background work on issues that will be formally acted upon at the later meeting next January.

Big Eight Adopts Recruiting Rule

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — A rule against luding out prospective athletes at signing time was adopted by Big Eight faculty representatives Saturday and the league urged national action against what it termed "growing undesirable trends in recruiting."

The new league rule prohibits the practice of staying with an athlete at a secluded or unknown location from 24 hours before the singing time until 24 hours after.

Big Eight Commissioner Wayne Duke said the faculty men also urged national legislation to limit the number of visits an athlete can make to college campuses and eliminate the practice of contacting boys in their junior and sophomore year in high school.

"We recognize the difficulty of enforcing such legislation," Duke said, "but we hope the NCAA and high school associations can take some action at a national level."

Hall Of Fame For McElroy

With Stuart Hill

A Monroe resident, who still draws the highest praises from his high school and college coaches, has been enshrined in the Hall of Fame at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Neville athletic director and long-time coach, Bill Ruple and USM coach Thad "Pie" Vann recall almost the same things about William Murry "Bucky" McElroy Jr.

Ruple describes Bucky as the best ever to come out of Neville High School. "He had a lot of determination," Ruple said. "If he was playing marbles he played to win and he hated to get beat worse then anybody I've ever seen."

Vann figures that Bucky, who now devotes his athletic abilities to golf, was, "one of the finest fullbacks that ever played at Southern."

"He was well above the average fullback in that he had a lot of determination to excell. He didn't believe anybody could beat him at anything on that football field," said Vann.

If coaches need anything to back up their comments, consider these laurels for the new hall of famer: two years honorable mention junior college All-America while at Hines Junior College; All-GSC; set GSC ground gaining record; second team Little All-America, 1951; first team Little All-America, 1952-53; holds ground gaining record at Southern; played in post-season games such as Sun Bowl, 52-53, Blue-Gray, Shrine Bowl, Senior Bowl, All-Star game; played briefly with the Chicago Bears, and one year with the Hamilton Tiger Cats in Canada.

Vann credits McElroy as an instrumental part of the Southern team which defeated Alabama and Georgia in 1953. The Southerners had a 9-1 season that year, but lost to San Francisco in the Sun Bowl. "Bucky was injured for that game and we used him only for passing on fake runs, but thats the only time I remember him being injured," said Vann.

"He made it hard on opponents," said Vann. "He had a lot of power and quickness running straight on, but he still had the ability to go outside and throw the defense off balance."

Ruple drifts back in memory to the 45-46-47 seasons to recall some of McElroy's feats.

"The first game he ever played in," said Ruple, "he ran 65 yards for a touchdown and it was called back because a guard was off sides. He came back on the next play and ran it again, but it was called back because of holding. The next morning, Paul Martin, (long-time sports editor for the News-Star—World, called him, 'No-Touchdown, McElroy!'

"He was death on punt returns. We didn't learn that until we played Homer. He took the punt on the 15-yard line and ran straight back to the two. I was just about to have a heart attack then he ran straight to the sidelines and five of our players were with him when he crossed the goal line," said Ruple.

Ruple recalled another game when opponents would not punt to McElroy. With Ruple's permission, McElroy waited on the sidelines until just before the other team kicked, then ran in to replace the Neville safty to receive the kick.

The veteran Neville coach said that the Tigers lost two games in '47, McElroy's last prep season. One was to Bogalusa, which won the AA title, and the other was to Ruston, which won the Class A title, and both were by one point.

Shorts and Stuff

The New Orleans Saints have found sponsors for a seven-state radio broadcasting system. The agreement covers the coming and 1968 season.

There is no sure fire way of becoming a Saint! But, If you want to try, the Saints will hold a tryout camp June 9,10 at Tulane Stadium. As part of the requirements, prospective Saints must write 615 Howard Ave., New Orleans before hand or call 1-504-524-1421. That's the smallest price of becoming a professional football player. Ask Smokey Stover of Monroe, who became a Kansas City Chief via the tryout route.

Gene Adams, a former Northeast State golfer, who has been one of the guiding influences at Highland Park Country Club, has been transferred to New Orleans.

Ray Mulhern of West Monroe, the top tournament golfer for Louisiana Tech this past season with a 77.3 stroke average, is planning to work at Monroe's Municipal course this summer — and to work on his game in his spare time. Ray will be a senior at Tech next season.

It's not enough for coaches to scrap with one another in various athletics. They get together June 8-9 in Thibodaux for the first annual Louisiana Collegiate Cajun Coaches Golf Classic. Head coaches, athletic directors, celebrities and members of the press, radio and TV corps of the state will participate.

The University of Southern Mississippi took on two new coaches, Doug Barfield and Joe Vetraino, when Maxie Lambright took over the head job at Tech. Both Barfield and Vetraino are Southern graduates.

Bill Keith and Steve Thurber of Tech, the GSC No. 1 doubles champions, lost one set in league competition during the season while posting eight straight wins.

David Smith of Bossier City is the only athlete to play on Northwestern's two championship teams. Smith, a 6-0, 175-pound junior, was a defensive halfback on the undefeated Demons' football squad and played right field for the GSC championship baseball team. Only Northwestern athletic director Jack Clayton can top that — he coached both teams.

Broncos Sign Three Players

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The Denver Broncos announced Saturday the signing of three more players for the 1967 American Football League season.

They were veteran guard Pat Matson; Wayne Valley of Oregon State, the Broncos' 17th draft choice, and Bernard Hynde of Pittsburgh, a free agent.

Derby-Beaten Damascus Takes Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Damascus, a failure in the Kentucky Derby and seemingly headed for another downfall in the role of the public choice, struck like the thrust of a sword Saturday and won the richest Preakness at Pimlico.

His time of 1:55 1-5 was the second fastest in 92 runnings of the 1 3-16 mile second lag of the Triple Crown.

Ninth in a field of 10 3-year-olds after a quarter of a mile, 11 lengths back in eighth place at the half-mile and still eighth, 5½ lengths behind the leaders at the three-quarter pole, the son of Sword Dancer swept to a 2¼-length victory in the $194,000 race.

In Reality, making his first start since winning the Florida Derby April 1, also came from out of the pack for runner-up honors.

Kentucky Derby winner Proud Clarion, farther back than even Damascus in the early running, again turned on the power in the stretch. But it was too late. He trailed In Reality by four lengths while beating Reason to Hail by three-quarters of a length for third place.

The winning time was second only to the track record of 1:54 3-5 set by Nashua in 1955.

Damascus, who finished third in the Derby, carried Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft's white and red-dotted silks which also were sported by Nashua when he posted the third Preakness triumph for the famous Belair Stud. Mrs. Bancroft is a daughter of the late William Woodward, founder of Belair.

Billy Shoemaker, scoring his second Preakness triumph, lashed Damascus with his whip to take the lead at the head of the stretch, cracked him a couple more times in the final 16th of a mile, dismounted, was interviewed and within less than an hour was en route to California with his son, Mitchell and some $14,000.

The jockey received 10 per cent of the winner's purse which was a record $141,500.

The $2 backers of Damascus retrieved $5.60, $3.60, $2.60. In Reality paid $4.60 and $3.60 while Proud Clarion returned $3.80.

"I had no place to go except outside on the final turn," said Shoemaker, who won the Preakness with Candy Spots in 1963. "Damascus was an entirely different horse today from the one I rode in the Derby. He had it when I called on him."

"I guess we'll go onto the Belmont," said trainer Frank Whiteley when asked about the third race of the Triple Crown on June 3 at Aqueduct.

Bobby Ussery, astride Proud Clarion from John Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm, had no excuses for the surprise winner of the Kentucky Derby.

"I didn't plan to be so far back," said Ussery. "But when Shoemaker started to move I gave my horse the word. He answered with a burst of speed, but when Shoe went to the whip there was no stopping his horse."

Back of the first four horses in order came Misty Cloud, Barbs Delight, Ask The Fare, Celtic Air, Favorable Turn and Great Power.

Damascus's powerful stretch run carried him across the finish line 2¼ lengths in front of In Reality, who was making his first start since winning the Florida Derby on April 1.

It was another four lengths back to Proud Clarion and three-quarters of a length separated the Derby winner from Patrice Jacobs' Reason to Hail, who in the last seven weeks has traveled some 8,000 miles and got a piece of five major stakes.

Damascus, chalking up his fourth victory in six starts this year, earned a record Preakness purse of $141,500 to boost his earnings as a 3-year-old to $260,460.

In 10 starts since coming to the races late last season, the trim bay Kentucky-bred colt never has been worse than third.

"There was no place to go but outside," said Shoemaker, watching a television rerun of the race. "They were all bunched up and there wasn't much running room."

Shoemaker said Damascus was inclined to get lazy when in front sometimes.

"I whacked him pretty good with my whip in the stretch to keep him from laying back," Shoemaker said.

Shoemaker got Damascus away well but the same could not be said for Bobby Ussery on Proud Clarion.

With Celtic Air, ridden by Nick Shuk, breaking on top, Shoemaker settled Damascus in stride but he was far back going the first turn and no better than seventh in the run down the back stretch as his stablemate reeled off the first quarter mile in 23 seconds flat, the half in 46 2-5.

At this stage of the race, Barbs Delight, runner-up in the Derby and ridden by Bill Hartack, was offering the most serious contention.

As they hit the one-half mile pole, the trailers started closing in and Shoemaker swung to the outside with Damascus.

With ground-eating strides, he was within a length of the leaders one-eighth of a mile later and in the home stretch, with one-quarter mile left, the lightly-trained colt was really flying and his supporters in the third largest Preakness crowd in history were cheering wildly.

Taylor Agrees With Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Jimmy Taylor, one of the mainstays of the Green Bay Packer backfield for nearly a decade, has agreed to play for the New Orleans Saints, it was learned Saturday from a highly reliable source.

Earlier Saturday, the New Orleans States-Item, in a story by assistant sports editor Peter Finney, said Taylor signed a contract reportedly worth $500,000 to play for the Saints. The signing took place Friday, the story said.

"We're denying it," said Don Smith, public relations director for the Saints. "I won't say we won't sign Taylor but that's not true at this stage."

However, it was learned that Taylor's agreement is a personal services contract with John W. Mecom Jr., majority owner of the Saints. Taylor's official signing of an NFL contract with the Saints probably won't come until after the league meets this coming week in New York.

"I'll have the story for you when we get back from New York," Larry Karl, another Saints official, said.

Taylor became a free agent May 1 after playing nine years with the Packers. He played college football under Paul Dietzel at LSU and makes his home in Baton Rouge.

The one hitch in Mecom's plans to obtain Taylor is Packer Coach and General Manager Vince Lombardi. Mecom, the States-Item said, has reportedly agreed to surrender his first round draft choices in 1968 and 1969 to The Packers.

Taylor, contacted in Baton Rouge, said "I have not signed a contract with any team." Asked if he would play with the Packers next year, Taylor replied:

"I don't know. Maybe not."

There have been repeated reports from the Packer camp that Lombardi wants three — not two — first round draft choices. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said here two weeks ago he would step into the Taylor negotiations if it became necessary.

Rozelle, it is believed, wants to keep Taylor from going to court to win his complete freedom. Although the 31-year-old Taylor is a free agent, the team acquiring him must get the Packers to release him.

Rozelle explained previously that the league thinks the team which developed a player is entitled to compensation for losing him.

The States-Item story said the Saints will pay Taylor $500,000 over a 20-year period to lighten the tax bite. He'll also get an apartment in New Orleans and his wife will get a new car, the story said. The contract is for four years, the newspaper said.

It was later learned, however, that the agreement with Mecom may call for Taylor to continue with the Saints in a promotional capacity after his playing days are over.

The Saints already have Paul Hornung, the Packer's one-time Golden Boy. Plagued with injuries in recent seasons, Hornung was acquired from the Packers in the veteran player expansion draft.

Finney wrote that Taylor turned down a Green Bay offer which called for a three-year contract at $65,000 annually plus a $50,000 bonus. Sources close to the Packer camp placed these figures as "a little high," however.

SEC Officials Set To Grapple With Winter-Born Problems

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Southeastern Conference athletic officials will start grappling Monday with problems that have developed during the winter, and are expected to work out unofficially any difficulties posed by integration of football and basketball next year.

Integration of athletics is not among the topics listed for discussion at the annual spring meeting of athletic directors and football and basketball coaches, but the debut of Negroes in SEC football and basketball next fall is expected to produce plenty of conversation during the three-day meeting.

Two Kentucky freshmen will be the first Negroes to play football in the SEC, and two Vanderbilt Negroes will be the first of their race to play basketball in the SEC.

Tennessee has given athletic grants to a pair of Negro high school football standouts, and other schools in the 10-member league have been prodded about integration by federal officials.

No formal action on integration is expected, but coaches probably will be trying to find out how Negro athletes will be received at some football stadiums and basketball courts.

Topics set for discussion by athletic directors include discussion of a proposal that the NCAA adopt the SEC rule that allows freshmen to compete in spring sports.

The athletic directors also will discuss a proposal that a limit be placed on the number of athletic grants allowed for each sport. There now is no limit, except in football.

Also proposed is a limit on the size of the traveling squads in football and basketball, and the controversial change in the rules on punt returns will be discussed.

Some coaches contend the rule —which prohibits interior linemen from leaving the line until the ball is kicked—will increase injuries.

Basketball coaches also will discuss rules changes and work on the 1967-68 schedule.

Commissioner A. M. (Tonto) Coleman will attend the meetings which are used for background work on issues that will be formally acted upon at the inter meeting next January.

Big Eight Adopts Recruiting Rule

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — A rule against hiding out prospective athletes at signing time was adopted by Big Eight faculty representatives Saturday and the league urged national action against what it termed "growing undesirable trends in recruiting."

The new league rule prohibits the practice of staying with an athlete at a secluded or unknown location from 24 hours before the singing time until 24 hours after.

Big Eight Commissioner Wayne Duke said the faculty men also urged national legislation to limit the number of visits an athlete can make to college campuses and eliminate the practice of contacting boys in their junior and sophomore year in high school.

"We recognize the difficulty of enforcing such legislation," Duke said, "but we hope the NCAA and high school associations can take some action at a national level."

Gene Conley was the last of the well-known professional athletes to play two sports well. Conley alternated between the mound staff of the Boston (later the Milwaukee) Braves and the center position for the New York Knickerbockers and the Boston Celtics. Even though the two sports were conducted during different seasons, with different practice sessions and times, Conley found the pressure too much to bare. His personal panacea was sleep, and he resorted to it with increased necessity, finally retiring in 1962.

While the practice of competing in two sports is relatively common in college and high school, the ability to excel in two sports is not. And coupled with the fact that the two sports are conducted in the same season, with conflicting game and practice sessions, the degree of skill to which three local athletes have advanced is indeed noteworthy.

Tom Brown, Mike Kilcoyne and Petey Smith of Neville played a dominant role in carrying the Tigers to the state semifinals in baseball and to victory in ten of eleven track meets this season.

These three, all seniors, were first team picks for the All-Twin City baseball team. Brown, Twin-City athlete of the year, was also picked to the first team All-District 1-AAA baseball squad while Kilcoyne was named to the second team all-district.

The All-Twin City track team, composed of those athletes who win a first-place in Twin-City Relays, also included Brown, who won the high jump with a 5-10 leap, and Smith, who captured top honors in the long jump with a 21-¼ effort. Kilcoyne's 40-9 was second in the triple jump behind West Monroe's Danny White, who set a new meet standard of 41-10½.

Brown posted a 10-4 record as Neville's top mound man, including three wins in four starts in playoff competition. Brown blanked South Terrebone, 2-0 in quarter-final play, knocking in both Tiger runs himself, and won the third game of the series, 8-3, after Neville dropped the middle contest, 2-1. He bagged the opener against West Jefferson in the semifinals, 6-5, but the Buccaneers proved too much and won the next two games, 7-0 and 4-2.

Smith, an agile third - baseman, finished the season with a .307 batting average. First baseman Kilcoyne was the slugger for the Tigers, netting three home runs and a .377 average for the year.

The only track meets that these three failed to enter were the Indian Relays in Shreveport and the Minden Relays. Both times they were playing baseball, which took priority over track. The Indian Relays was the only meet Neville lost. Though Neville won the Minden cinderfest, the Tigers could manage but a second place in the long jump and a third in the triple jump against weaker - than - usual competition.

Most meets assign a scoring of 5-4-3-2-1 for individual events. If Brown, Kilcoyne and Smith had not competed in track this season in their specialties, the jump, triple jump and long jump, respectively, Neville conceivably would have lost at least two of the meets that they won by large margins. In five representative meets, for example, they tallied 83 points by themselves, an average of 16.6 points per meet, a total that could not easily have been done without.

The schedule for practicing athletics is usually a trying one, and attempting to practice two sports at the same time is doubly trying.

Their workouts would usually begin at 2 p.m. for baseball and last to 4:30, when they would move over to the jumping area of the track, there to train for another hour. Since they had less time than the other cindermen, they often devoted Sundays to working out for their jumps.

The problems that can arise from such a tight schedule are easily seen. Oftentimes they could be seen working out in the stadium in their baseball togs, and at other times they would be seen on the ball diamond with track equipment on.

"If I could have devoted more time to one sport I could have done a lot better," mused Brown. "It hurt to have to pitch or jump the day before a meet or game."

Surprisingly, they found that practice and skills learned in one sport did not necessarily carry over to the other. The main concern in the jumping events is getting the timing and the steps down, while the only real good that comes from this is some help in strengthening the legs.

All three viewed baseball as the most important of the two sports, and were used accordingly by Tiger baseball coach Larry Reeves at the expense of the peace of mind of track mentor Buck Stewart.

"We were sort of extra men on the track team. If we were there, good, if not, they tried to get along without us," added Brown.

"Having a game and a meet on the same time was hard on us," said Kilcoyne. "It's bad to miss a track meet when you have been training for them all season."

"Fridays were the worst for us," commented Smith. "Baseball was scheduled for Monday , Wednesday and Friday, while track meets were usually held on Tuesday and Friday. Of course, rained out meets or baseball games could easily be placed on conflict with each other.

Smith, a seven letter man, was also voted the most valuable player in the Twin-Cities in basketball, and has signed a grant in-aid with Northeast State College.

Both Brown and Kilcoyne have had scholarship offers, but are still undecided about the school to choose. Brown in addition to earning his fourth baseball letter and his second track letter this year, was the All-Twin City quarterback in football this season. Kilcoyne is in his first year of baseball and track, and has previously earned three leters in football.

All three are looking forward to competing in college sports, and are hoping that they won't have to split up the "Terrific Threesome."

CINCINNATI WHIPS PHILLIES, 5-2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tony Perez' two-run single and a booming triple by Don Pavletich keyed a five-run sixth inning for Cincinnati as the reds whipped the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 Saturday.

Perez' single followed a walk to Tommy Harper and Vada Pinson's double and tied the triple put the reds in front and knocked out started Grant Jackson .

Reliever Dick Farrell was stung for two more safeties as the Reds' banged out five hits in their big innings.

Until the sixth, Jackson was almost untouchable in his duel with 18-year-old rookie sensation Gary Nolan. The Phillies' young left-hander allowed only two hits and struck out eight before Cincinnati found the range.

Southpaw Jerry Arrigo, who came on in relief of Nolan and shut the door on the Phillies' two-run fourth inning rally, got the victory. He allowed just one hit in six innings of relief.

GENE MAUCH, Philadelphia Phillies manager, appears set to ward off a blow as Umpire Harry Wendelstedt tosses Mauch out in 6th inning of Saturday's game with the Cincinnati Redlegs in Philadelphia. Mauch had objected to Wendelstedt's call on a close play at second. Reds' Leo Cardenas had singles to center scoring Chico Ruiz from second and then Cardenas took second on the throw to the plate. The Reds won, 5-2. (AP Wirephoto)

NSC's Turner Takes GSC Batting Title

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Danny Turner, Northwestern State's third sacker, took the batting title in the Gulf States Conference, hitting a brilliant .411, garnering 37 hits and knocking in 27 runs.

Turner won over Northeast's Marvin Brosset, who compiled a .376 average to edge out Northwest's Mike Herron for the runner-up slot by three percentage points.

Northeast's Glynn Saulters, who led the batting race most of the season finished in fourth at .365.

Northwestern's Gary Johnson led the pitching race with a 10-0 record and an earned run average of 2.03. Johnson allowed 59 hits in 57 1-3 innings and walked but 22 while striking out 71.

Among the leading pitchers the strikeout king was Northwestern's Wayne Jowers, who whiffed 81 in 68 2-3 innings on the mound.

David Davis turned in a remarkable 1.22 earned run average among the leaders to pace that department.

Brosset led in doubles with a dozen. Earl Baron of Southeastern topped the field in triples with a half dozen and Herron of Northwestern led in home runs with eight.

Chance Gets Win No. 7

ANAHEIM (AP) — Dean Chance scattered seven hits for his seventh straight victory Saturday night, leading Minnesota past California 7-2.

Chance, facing his former mates for the first time since the Angels traded him to the Twins last winter, was within two outs of posting his third consecutive shutout.

Just A Few Distinctive Features

- New 3-Rib Wrap-Around Tread Design . . . combines an ultra - modern design with a 9% deeper, 9% wider tread. This extra-wide, extra-deep tread design places more super - mileage Poly-Diene rubber on the road for greater car stability and a longer, safer tire life.
- New Butyl Inner Liner . . . holds air 5 time more efficiently than any other conventional liner, thereby virtually eliminating any loss of air pressure. By minimizing the danger of running the Imperial in an underinflated condition has resulted in increased safety, longer tire life, easier car handling and less tread wear.
- New Super-Mileage Poly-Diene . . . combined with other rubbers and ultra-modern tread design increases mileage up to 50%.
- Atomically-Controlled Nylon Cord . . . offers super-strength and durability to spare in order to meet the many hazards of daily driving. Through our atomically controlled processing machine, Nylon cord becomes stronger than steel cable (pound for pound), resulting in greater tread wear and a longer, safer tire life.
- Neoprene White Sidewall Rubber . . . resist yellowing, weather checking and oxidation better than any other type of white. It stays white through years of service.

U.S. Golfers Take Walker Cup Again

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Bill Campbell carded an eagle 3 at the seventh hole in his singles match against Ronnie Shade Saturday and sparked the United States amateur golfers to a 13-7 victory over the British Isles in the Walker Cup.

It was the 19th time that the United States had won the trophy. Britain has won it only once — in 1938 — and tied once, in Baltimore two years ago.

The British, under Capt. Joe Carr, had mustered a rousing comeback threatening the Americans' 8-1 opening day lead when the 44-year-old Campbell, a former U.S. amateur champion and Walker Cup captain, made his dramatic charge.

Playing Britain's top ace, the man who sank the putt that saved the tie in 1965, the tall Princeton University graduate unleashed a string of five straight 3s — including two birdies and an eagle — on the outgoing nine, finally winning 3 and 2.

The eagle came at the 493-yard seventh. Hitting across blustery winds, Campbell boomed a big drive and sent his second almost stiff to the pin on the par 5 hole.

Campbell's victory over Shade put the Americans within one point of victory and it remained for Bob Dickson of Muskogee, Okla., to add the clinching point with a 4 and 3 triumph over Scotsman Sandy Pirie.

The veteran Ed Tutwiler of Indianapolis, Ind., and Jim Grant of Wethersfield, Conn., added superfluous points later. Tutwiler beat Dudley Millensted 3 and 1, and Grant edged Peter Oosterhuis, Britain's 19-year-old wonder boy, 1-up.

In the two days of competition over the Royal St. George's course, whipped by winds reaching gusts of 60 miles an hour, the Americans won nine of the singles matches, lost four and halved three. In the foursomes, in which two-man teams hit alternate shots, they won four, lost three and halved one.

The British, trailing 8-1 going into the final day's play, won three of the four foursomes in the morning and stepped off to a lead in most of the eight singles in the afternoon.

Campbell, only player to figure in four points without a loss, teamed with 19-year-old Jack Lewis of Florence, S.C., to win the lone foursomes for the United States on the second day, beating Sandy Saddler and Pirie, 1-up.

The British won the other three. Tom Craddock, a 35-year-old Irishman, and Mike Bonallack, three times British Amateur champion, beat Bob Murphy of Gainesville, Fla., and Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael, Calif., 2-up.

Shade and Oosterhuis whipped Tutwiler and Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., 3 and 1. Millensted and Rodney Foster toppled Don Allen of Richester, N.Y., and Marty Fleckman of Port Arthur, Tex., 2 and 1.

Fleckman was a last minute substitute for Deane Beman, who turned professional.

Britain's three singles triumphs were scored by Craddock, who beat young Lewis 5 and 4; Saddler, who topped Gray 3 and 2, and Bonallack, who beat Murphy 4 and 2. Cerrudo and Foster halved the other individual match.

Weiskopf, Stockton Share Lead Hogan Storms Into Contention

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf moved into a share of the lead with faltering Dave Stockton Saturday and ageless Ben Hogan stormed into contention in the third round of the Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament Saturday.

Hogan, the 54-year-old sentimental favorite shooting for his sixth Colonial crown, moved steadily over his hometown course with a one-under-par 69 for a 54-hole total of 208, just three strokes back of the co-leaders.

Weiskopf matched par 70 to overtake the struggling young Stockton, the second round leader who blew to a 74. Each has a 205 total.

The leading trio got caught in a rainstorm on the closing holes, but the only casualty was Stockton, who took a double bogey six at the 15th and blew the lead with a bogey at 18.

His approach shot at 18 caught a trap and he pitched to within six feet of the cup and missed the attempt at par.

Stockton, 25, looking for his first tour victory, started the third round nine under par and four shots ahead of Weiskopf, who blazed into contention Friday with a record-tying 65.

Stockton chipped in from 60 feet for a birdie at No. 4, which Weiskopf bogeyed, and at that point had a seven-stroke lead. Weiskopf had also bogeyed the par 4 second.

Four strokes behind the leaders was George Archer, who, with a 69, was one of only six to dip under par on the soggy 7,132-yard Trinity River course.

A four-way deadlock developed at 211 that included Charles Coody, 70, Frank Beard, 68, Homera Blancas, 73, and Gardner Dickinson, 72.

Bobby Nichols, Gene Littler and Gay Brewer were in at 212, one ahead of Arnold Palmer, Dan Sikes and Harold Henning. Palmer shot a 67.

A thunderstorm flooded the course Friday night and a downpour early Saturday delayed play for an hour. The rains resumed after most of the field had finished.

Stockton, gunning for the $23,000 first prize, hovered near par through the first 14 holes. Then the bubble burst.

His approach shot to the 435-yard 15th slid off to the left of the green and landed near a post, surrounded by cables. A ruling followed, and Stockton disagreed with it. He did get a free drop.

He chipped poorly, then three putted from eight feet.

Canine Track, Field Men Leave Mark On School Record Books

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's 1967 track and field team left its mark on the school record books in a rebuilding year.

Coach Jim Mize's athletes broke eight school records and tied three others in a campaign which saw them rise to fourth in the Gulf States Conference with a host of freshmen carrying a big load.

League coaches though enough of Mize's achievements with the young squad to award him a share of the "Coach of the Year" award along with Bob Cole of the champion University of Southwestern Louisiana team.

Two of the new Tech records were set in the field events by discus thrower Tim Hall and high jumper Tommy Stinson. Hall hurled the plate 182-3 to break his own mark of 179-3 set two years ago and Stinson cleared 6-7 to crack a standard of 6-5 which he and Frank Howard (1963) had held jointly.

Hall and Stinson were also Tech's only individaul winners in the GSC Meet with Hall breaking the league discus mark with a toss of 169-2.

Two school relay records were broken in the conference meet. The team of Don King, Jerome Vascocu, Claude Williams, and Reggie Day topped the 440-yard relay time with a 41.7 clocking and Grey Easterling, Ronnie Broussard, Vascocu and Carr McClendon set the mile relay record of 3:14.4.

The 880 - yard relay mark was also broken earlier in the season as King, Butch Daniel, McClendon, and Day combined for a 1:26.5 time.

McClendon tied the 440 - yard dash record of 48.5 on two separate occasions. He shares it with Dayton Baker (1960) and Edwin Davis (1961).

Brendan Minihan personally accounted for two Tech records with a 9:26.0 two - mile run and a three - mile effort of 14:48.9 The two - mile standard had been previously held by Bob Hayes. The three - mile was a new event in the GSC.

Two hurdle records were equalled in the conference meet. Easterling ran the 120 - yard high hurdles in 14.2 to tie Jim Sturdivant (1959) and Allen Carpenter (1964). Freshman Wayne Williams tied Carpenter's time of 52.4 in th 440 - yard intermediates.

A pair of freshman relay records were also topped. King, Wayne Williams, Ken Rorie and Vascocu ran a 3:19.3 mile relay and Williams, Vascocu, Ronnie Grimmett, and Wayne Delony teamed up for a 3:32.7 in the sprint medley.

Gray Easterling Takes Canine Scoring Crown

RUSTON (Special) — Gray Easterling of Alexandria captured his second straight point-scoring championship for Louisiana Tech during the 1967 track and field season.

The junior hurdler tallied 90 points to easily cop the title over freshman sprinter Don King of Overton, Tex., second with 79½. Easterling scored 65-3-8 in 1966.

Senior discus man Tim Hall of Alexandria was third with 72 points, followed by high jumper Tommy Stinson of Ruston with 68½ and distance runner Brendan Minihan of Little Rock, Ark., with 61.

The final totals were very similar to those of 1966 when Easterling, Hall, Minihan and Stinson were the top four in that order.

Other top performers for the Bulldogs were freshman hurdler Wayne Williams of Shreveport with 47-3/4, sprinter Carr McClendon of Minden with 47-½, forsh javelin thrower Mike Guzman of Lake Charles with 44, shot putter Aubrey Futrell of Jonesboro with 36 and freshman hurdler Ken Rorie of Shreveport with 32-3/4.

Fillowing them were freshmen Wayne Delony of Minden with 30½, Jerome Vascocu of Minden with 28-3/4 and Glenn Ferachi of Plaquemine with 27.

Hall was the leader in individual wins with 13. His 182-3 throw in the discus established an all - time best for a Louisiana collegian.

Tech finished fourth in the Gulf States conference in a rebuilding year.

Powell Hits Homer For Oriole Win

WASHINGTON (AP) —Boog Powell clouted a three-run homer following an intentional walk to Frank Robinson in the sixth inning and boosted the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-3 victory over the Washington Senators Saturday.

Frank Howard slugged his sixth and seventh homers over the fence in dead center off Dave McNally, for all Washington's runs. Howard's second homer in the sixth inning followed a single by Hank Allen.

Luis Aparicio singled leading off the Orioles' sixth and was sacrificed to second. After Brooks Robinson grounded out, Frank Robinson was walked intentionally.

Powell, hitless in eight times at bat in the series, homered over the fence in left center.

The orioles scored in the second on Frank Robinson's double and Dave Johnson's single.

Moe Drabowsky relieved McNally in the seventh following a two-out walk to Ed Brinkman and preserved McNally's second victory in four decisions.

Joe Coleman, 2-3, was the loser.

Indians Top Red Sox In Ten Innings

BOSTON (AP) — Chuck Hinton's two-run, two out home run in the 10th inning lifted the Cleveland Indians to a 5-3 victory over Boston Saturday.

Hinton's shot, the 21st homer off Red Sox pitchers in the last eight games, followed a double by Vic Davalillo.

A two-run pinch double by Dalton Jones following two walks and a hit batsman helped the Red Sox tie the score in the seventh. Rico Petrocelli's single tied it.

Joe Azcue cracked a two-run homer for the Indians in the fifth after Fred Whitfield's lead-off double broke a spell of four hitless innings by Boston starter Jose Santiago.

The Indians added an unearned run in the sixth when Reggie Smith misplayed Leon Wagner's fly ball and it fell for a triple. Whitfield walked and stole second as Wagner scored on catcher Mike Ryan's throw.

Qualifying Will Open Tourney

ST. LOUIS (AP) —Qualifying begins Sunday in bowling's most prestigious event, the $70,000 All-Star Tournament.

The field of 288 men and 144 women will eventually be chopped to 12 men and 12 women for the round-robin finals, which begin Thursday night.

A $15,000 men's title and a $5,000 check for the champion woman will be at stake in the title match next Sunday night.

Defending champion Dick Weber of St. Louis is the favorite.

Joy Abel of Chicago, defending women's titlist and the 1966 woman "bowler of the year," is one of the top picks in the distaff field.

Georgia Tech has had only three football coaches in the past 62 years — John Heisman William A. Alexander and Bobby Dodd.

Bowmen Hold Jubilee On Range Today

The Archers Jubilee, major production of Tupawek Bowmen, has its fifth annual run today with a 56 - target course for bowmen of all classes.

Shooting begins at 8:30 o'clock for the morning round of 28 field targets. The afternoon shoot, with all archers due on the range not later than 1:30 o'clock, will be at 14 hunter and 14 animal targets.

Drew Nelms, Tupawek's president, said rules of the Louisiana Field Archery Association and the National Field Archery Association will govern the Archers Jubilee which will have trophies available for first, second and third place winners in all divisions and classes that have five or more contenders in each. If only two entries are in a class, only a first place trophy will be given, and in a class of just three or four entries the awards go to the top two.

There will be divisions for men and women in adult divisions of several classifications and similar classifications for boys and girls in youth divisions — plus divisions for barebow and freestyle shooters.

Late registrations will be accepted from 6:30 until 8:15 a.m. at the range this morning. The 160 - acre woodland range in on Johnson road and north of Arkansas road out of West Monroe near Drew community.

Jackson, Miss., archers won the team title last year with shooters Jerry Fulton, Ray Countryman, Elaine Countryman and Lottis Fulton.

Tennessee Powers SEC Win

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Tennessee powered the Southeastern Conference to a 91-54 conquest of the Atlantic Coast Conference in a track duel between standouts from each league Saturday.

The SEC, which also won a year ago, took 12 of the 17 events with Tennessee runners Richmond Flowers won the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds, took the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.4 seconds.

Flowers also anchored Tennessee's 440 - yard relay team which won in 41.3 seconds, and Tennessee's mile relay team won with a 3:14 clocking.

High winds whipping into the finish line hampered runners but four track marks were shattered.

Don Hunt of Mississippi State was upset in both the mile and the two-mile, with Mike Williams of North Carolina taking the mile in 4:07.7 and Duke's Ed Stenberg winning the two - mile in 9:10.3. Hunt was second in both races, although he won the SEC distance double a week ago with faster clockings in both events.

John Morton of Florida won both the shot and the discus, flipping the shot 53-8¾ and the discus 182-5.

David Adkins, Alabama's slender junior, also was a double winner. He won the 220-yard dash in 21.1 seconds and took the 440 in 47 seconds flat.

Scott Hager of Florida won the 440-yard hurdles in 52.9 seconds, and Frank Saier of Florida leaped 6-9 to win the high jump. The triple jump crown was claimed by Bill Meadows of Auburn, with a leap of 49-10¾, and Hull Carr of Georgia soared 15-8¾ to win the pole vault.

U.S. Golfers Take Walker Cup Again

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Bill Campbell carded an eagle 3 at the seventh hole in his singles match against Ronnie Shade Saturday and sparked the United States amateur golfers to a 13-7 victory over the British Isles in the Walker Cup.

It was the 19th time that the United States had won the trophy. Britain has won it only once — in 1938 — and tied once, in Baltimore two years ago.

The British, under Capt. Joe Carr, had mustered a rousing comeback threatening the Americans' 8-1 opening day lead when the 44-year-old Campbell, a former U.S. amateur champion and Walker Cup captain, made his dramatic charge.

Playing Britain's top ace, the man who sank the putt that saved the tie in 1965, the tall Princeton University graduate unleashed a string of five straight 3s — including two birdies and an eagle — on the outgoing nine, finally winning 3 and 2.

The eagle came at the 493-yard seventh. Hitting across blustery winds, Campbell boomed a big drive and sent his second almost stiff to the pin on the par 5 hole.

Campbell's victory over Shade put the Americans within one point of victory and it remained for Bob Dickson of Muskogee, Okla., to add the clinching point with a 4 and 3 triumph over Scotsman Sandy Pirie.

The veteran Ed Tutwiler of Indianapolis, Ind., and Jim Grant of Wethersfield, Conn., added superfluous points later. Tutwiler beat Dudley Millensted 3 and 1, and Grant edged Peter Oosterhuis, Britain's 19-year-old wonder boy, 1-up.

In the two days of competition over the Royal St. George's course, whipped by winds reaching gusts of 60 miles an hour, the Americans won nine of the singles matches, lost four and halved three. In the foursomes, in which two-man teams hit alternate shots, they won four, lost three and halved one.

The British, trailing 8-1 going into the final day's play, won three of the four foursomes in the morning and stepped off to a lead in most of the eight singles in the afternoon.

Campbell, only player to figure in four points without a loss, teamed with 19-year-old Jack Lewis of Florence, S.C., to win the lone foursomes for the United States on the second day, beating Sandy Saddler and Pirie, 1-up.

The British won the other three. Tom Craddock, a 35-year-old Irishman, and Mike Bonallack, three times British Amateur champion, beat Bob Murphy of Gainesville, Fla., and Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael, Calif., 2-up.

Shade and Oosterhuis whipped Tutwiler and Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., 3 and 1. Millensted and Rodney Foster toppled Don Allen of Richester, N.Y., and Marty Fleckman of Port Arthur, Tex., 2 and 1.

Fleckman was a last minute substitute for Deane Beman, who turned professional.

Britain's three singles triumphs were scored by Craddock, who beat young Lewis 5 and 4; Saddler, who topped Gray 3 and 2, and Bonallack, who beat Murphy 4 and 2. Cerrudo and Foster halved the other individual match.

Weiskopf, Stockton Share Lead Hogan Storms Into Contention

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf moved into a share of the lead with faltering Dave Stockton Saturday and ageless Ben Hogan stormed into contention in the third round of the Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament Saturday.

Hogan, the 54-year-old sentimental favorite shooting for his sixth Colonial crown, moved steadily over his hometown course with a one-under-par 69 for a 54-hole total of 208, just three strokes back of the co-leaders.

Weiskopf matched par 70 to overtake the struggling young Stockton, the second round leader who blew to a 74. Each has a 205 total.

The leading trio got caught in a rainstorm on the closing holes, but the only casualty was Stockton, who took a double bogey six at the 15th and blew the lead with a bogey at 18.

His approach shot at 18 caught a trap and he pitched to within six feet of the cup and missed the attempt at par.

Stockton, 25, looking for his first tour victory, started the third round nine under par and four shots ahead of Weiskopf, who blazed into contention Friday with a record-tying 65.

Stockton chipped in from 60 feet for a birdie at No. 4, which Weiskopf bogeyed, and at that point had a seven-stroke lead. Weiskopf had also bogeyed the par 4 second.

Four strokes behind the leaders was George Archer, who, with a 69, was one of only six to dip under par on the soggy 7,132-yard Trinity River course.

A four-way deadlock developed at 211 that included Charles Coody, 70, Frank Beard, 68, Homera Blancas, 73, and Gardner Dickinson, 72.

Bobby Nichols, Gene Littler and Gay Brewer were in at 212, one ahead of Arnold Palmer, Dan Sikes and Harold Henning. Palmer shot a 67.

A thunderstorm flooded the course Friday night and a downpour early Saturday delayed play for an hour. The rains resumed after most of the field had finished.

Stockton, gunning for the $23,000 first prize, hovered near par through the first 14 holes. Then the bubble burst.

His approach shot to the 435-yard 15th slid off to the left of the green and landed near a post, surrounded by cables. A ruling followed, and Stockton disagreed with it. He did get a free drop.

He chipped poorly, then three putted from eight feet.

Canine Track, Field Men Leave Mark On School Record Books

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's 1967 track and field team left its mark on the school record books in a rebuilding year.

Coach Jim Mize's athletes broke eight school records and tied three others in a campaign which saw them rise to fourth in the Gulf States Conference with a host of freshmen carrying a big load.

League coaches though enough of Mize's achievements with the young squad to award him a share of the "Coach of the Year" award along with Bob Cole of the champion University of Southwestern Louisiana team.

Two of the new Tech records were set in the field events by discus thrower Tim Hall and high jumper Tommy Stinson. Hall hurled the plate 182-3 to break his own mark of 179-3 set two years ago and Stinson cleared 6-7 to crack a standard of 6-5 which he and Frank Howard (1963) had held jointly.

Hall and Stinson were also Tech's only individaul winners in the GSC Meet with Hall breaking the league discus mark with a toss of 169-2.

Two school relay records were broken in the conference meet. The team of Don King, Jerome Vascocu, Claude Williams, and Reggie Day topped the 440-yard relay time with a 41.7 clocking and Grey Easterling, Ronnie Broussard, Vascocu and Carr McClendon set the mile relay record of 3:14.4.

The 880 - yard relay mark was also broken earlier in the season as King, Butch Daniel, McClendon, and Day combined for a 1:26.5 time.

McClendon tied the 440 - yard dash record of 48.5 on two separate occasions. He shares it with Dayton Baker (1960) and Edwin Davis (1961).

Brendan Minihan personally accounted for two Tech records with a 9:26.0 two - mile run and a three - mile effort of 14:48.9 The two - mile standard had been previously held by Bob Hayes. The three - mile was a new event in the GSC.

Two hurdle records were equalled in the conference meet. Easterling ran the 120 - yard high hurdles in 14.2 to tie Jim Sturdivant (1959) and Allen Carpenter (1964). Freshman Wayne Williams tied Carpenter's time of 52.4 in th 440 - yard intermediates.

A pair of freshman relay records were also topped. King, Wayne Williams, Ken Rorie and Vascocu ran a 3:19.3 mile relay and Williams, Vascocu, Ronnie Grimmett, and Wayne Delony teamed up for a 3:32.7 in the sprint medley.

Gray Easterling Takes Canine Scoring Crown

RUSTON (Special) — Gray Easterling of Alexandria captured his second straight point-scoring championship for Louisiana Tech during the 1967 track and field season.

The junior hurdler tallied 90 points to easily cop the title over freshman sprinter Don King of Overton, Tex., second with 79½. Easterling scored 65-3-8 in 1966.

Senior discus man Tim Hall of Alexandria was third with 72 points, followed by high jumper Tommy Stinson of Ruston with 68½ and distance runner Brendan Minihan of Little Rock, Ark., with 61.

The final totals were very similar to those of 1966 when Easterling, Hall, Minihan and Stinson were the top four in that order.

Other top performers for the Bulldogs were freshman hurdler Wayne Williams of Shreveport with 47-¾, sprinter Carr McClendon of Minden with 47-½, forsh javelin thrower Mike Guzman of Lake Charles with 44, shot putter Aubrey Futrell of Jonesboro with 36 and freshman hurdler Ken Rorie of Shreveport with 32-¾.

Fillowing them were freshmen Wayne Delony of Minden with 30½, Jerome Vascocu of Minden with 28-¾ and Glenn Ferachi of Plaquemine with 27.

Hall was the leader in individual wins with 13. His 182-3 throw in the discus established an all - time best for a Louisiana collegian.

Tech finished fourth in the Gulf States conference in a rebuilding year.

Powell Hits Homer For Oriole Win

WASHINGTON (AP) —Boog Powell clouted a three-run homer following an intentional walk to Frank Robinson in the sixth inning and boosted the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-3 victory over the Washington Senators Saturday.

Frank Howard slugged his sixth and seventh homers over the fence in dead center off Dave McNally, for all Washington's runs. Howard's second homer in the sixth inning followed a single by Hank Allen.

Luis Aparicio singled leading off the Orioles' sixth and was sacrificed to second. After Brooks Robinson grounded out, Frank Robinson was walked intentionally.

Powell, hitless in eight times at bat in the series, homered over the fence in left center.

The orioles scored in the second on Frank Robinson's double and Dave Johnson's single.

Moe Drabowsky relieved McNally in the seventh following a two-out walk to Ed Brinkman and preserved McNally's second victory in four decisions.

Joe Coleman, 2-3, was the loser.

Indians Top Red Sox In Ten Innings

BOSTON (AP) — Chuck Hinton's two-run, two out home run in the 10th inning lifted the Cleveland Indians to a 5-3 victory over Boston Saturday.

Hinton's shot, the 21st homer off Red Sox pitchers in the last eight games, followed a double by Vic Davalillo.

A two-run pinch double by Dalton Jones following two walks and a hit batsman helped the Red Sox tie the score in the seventh. Rico Petrocelli's single tied it.

Joe Azcue cracked a two-run homer for the Indians in the fifth after Fred Whitfield's lead-off double broke a spell of four hitless innings by Boston starter Jose Santiago.

The Indians added an unearned run in the sixth when Reggie Smith misplayed Leon Wagner's fly ball and it fell for a triple. Whitfield walked and stole second as Wagner scored on catcher Mike Ryan's throw.

Qualifying Will Open Tourney

ST. LOUIS (AP) —Qualifying begins Sunday in bowling's most prestigious event, the $70,000 All-Star Tournament.

The field of 288 men and 144 women will eventually be chopped to 12 men and 12 women for the round-robin finals, which begin Thursday night.

A $15,000 men's title and a $5,000 check for the champion woman will be at stake in the title match next Sunday night.

Defending champion Dick Weber of St. Louis is the favorite.

Joy Abel of Chicago, defending women's titlist and the 1966 woman "bowler of the year," is one of the top picks in the distaff field.

Georgia Tech has had only three football coaches in the past 62 years — John Heisman William A. Alexander and Bobby Dodd.

Bowmen Hold Jubilee On Range Today

The Archers Jubilee, major production of Tupawek Bowmen, has its fifth annual run today with a 56 - target course for bowmen of all classes.

Shooting begins at 8:30 o'clock for the morning round of 28 field targets. The afternoon shoot, with all archers due on the range not later than 1:30 o'clock, will be at 14 hunter and 14 animal targets.

Drew Nelms, Tupawek's president, said rules of the Louisiana Field Archery Association and the National Field Archery Association will govern the Archers Jubilee which will have trophies available for first, second and third place winners in all divisions and classes that have five or more contenders in each. If only two entries are in a class, only a first place trophy will be given, and in a class of just three or four entries the awards go to the top two.

There will be divisions for men and women in adult divisions of several classifications and similar classifications for boys and girls in youth divisions — plus divisions for barebow and freestyle shooters.

Late registrations will be accepted from 6:30 until 8:15 a.m. at the range this morning. The 160 - acre woodland range in on Johnson road and north of Arkansas road out of West Monroe near Drew community.

Jackson, Miss., archers won the team title last year with shooters Jerry Fulton, Ray Countryman, Elaine Countryman and Lottis Fulton.

Jerry Baxter, Arkansas state champion from Pine Bluff, was the men's Class A freestyle champion last year, and Mattie Wallis, West Monroe, was the Class A women's freestyle winner.

Tennessee Powers SEC Win

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—Tennessee powered the Southeastern Conference to a 91-54 conquest of the Atlantic Coast Conference in a track duel between standouts from each league Saturday.

The SEC, which also won a year ago, took 12 of the 17 events with Tennessee runners Richmond Flowers won the 100-yard dash in 9.8 seconds, took the 120-yard high hurdles in 14.4 seconds.

Flowers also anchored Tennessee's 440 - yard relay team which won in 41.3 seconds, and Tennessee's mile relay team won with a 3:14 clocking.

High winds whipping into the finish line hampered runners but four track marks were shattered.

Don Hunt of Mississippi State was upset in both the mile and the two-mile, with Mike Williams of North Carolina taking the mile in 4:07.7 and Duke's Ed Stenberg winning the two - mile in 9:10.3. Hunt was second in both races, although he won the SEC distance double a week ago with faster clockings in both events.

John Morton of Florida won both the shot and the discus, flipping the shot 53-8¾ and the discus 182-5.

David Adkins, Alabama's slender junior, also was a double winner. He won the 220-yard dash in 21.1 seconds and took the 440 in 47 seconds flat.

Scott Hager of Florida won the 440-yard hurdles in 52.9 seconds, and Frank Saier of Florida leaped 6-9 to win the high jump. The triple jump crown was claimed by Bill Meadows of Auburn, with a leap of 49-10½, and Hull Carr of Georgia soared 15-8¾ to win the pole vault.

Debating Cheniere

With Paul Martin

Ouachita sportsmen desiring to continue the Cheniere Lake project of annual drawdown, clean-up and general lake improvement suffered a slight setback this week because a petition bearing 917 signatures had almost enough weight to cause the Police Jury to reverse its decision of a year ago.

A year ago by a 12-7 vote the jury approved recommendations of the Cheniere Lake Commission to undertake the improvement of Cheniere conditions. Monday night the vote was only 10-4 on a tabling motion that means the issue isn't resolved by any means and that at least two votes that supported the clean - up a year ago now may be against it.

Mrs. Mae Lucky, our registrar of voters, will tell you there are "approximately 36,000 registered voters in Ouachita Parish" today. We would hate to think that 917 signatures on petitions that have been circulating for some time are going to determine the issue for 35 083 voters who haven't signed, given the opportunity or not.

At a well - publicized meeting a year ago the jury heard arguments for and against the Cheniere issue. This week the petition showed up in the jury meeting to start the arguments all over again.

At the next jury meeting the sportsmen might win back their losses with a petition backed by 918 names. Then, at the following meeting, the petition of the week before last would be reintroduced with Police Jury Votes!

Stopping the Cheniere project now will never have the drawdown strong Cheniere Lake is better today because of the clean-up and deepening of shorelines at public areas and boat lanes criss - crossing the lake that were improved last fall.

The recent petition asks that the water not be lowered for two years. The same petitioners, in our opinion, won't agree to a drawdown three years from now.

If the police Jury ever decides to leave the conduct of Cheniere Lake in the hands of the Cheniere Lake Commission it should eliminate some of its headache. The Cheniere Lake Comission is without political entanglements and wants only to bring Cheniere to the fulfillment it deserves as a recreation spot for all of Ouachita parish. The latest petitioners, thus, would oppose the lake commission taking the authority it deserves.

Anyone for another petition supporting the Cheniere improvements to win back those lost votes?

Turkey News — Good, Bad

Louisiana turkey hunters bagged 226 legal gobblers during the April season, according to a report from Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission who also said 18 cases for violations were also made by agents of the enforcement division — one case in Tensas parish, nine in St. Tammany and eight in St. Helena.

A breakdown on the area gobbler tally showed 57 taken during open season in all parts of East Carroll, West Carroll, Morehouse, Union, Lincoln, Ouachita, Richland and Jackson parishes open to turkey hunting; 78 in the Madison, Caldwell, Franklin, Tensas, LaSalle, Catahoula and Concordia parish areas, and the greatest number, 91, in West Feliciana, East Feliciana, St. Helena, Tangipahoa, Washington, East Baton Rouge, Livingston, St. Tammany and Ascension parishes.

All case involving violations had not been disposed of at latest count, but those settled drew fines ranging from $25 to $115.

"Poaching is one of the greatest deterrents to the program of restocking," Dr. Glasgow said. "It is the duty of every person to see that these basic flocks receive full protection."

Some Random Notes

Jim Packer, chairman of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit's fishing contest, has announced new additions for grand prizes to lucky winners in bass, bream and crappie categories — three deep sea fishing trips in addition to all those other prizes he has lined up. The monthly contest periods are May 13-June 11, June12-July 16, and July 17-August 20. Award dates, at unit meetings, are June 17, July 25, August 29.

Tupawek Bowmen are hosting their fifth annual Archers Jubilee today and out of action for the first time is M. L. "Mr. Vick" Vickery, Tupawek's treasure and one of archery's ambassadors. A recent bear attack ruled Mr. Vick out of competition. But our nominee as Mr. Archery, J. M. McBeth, the man who years ago was doing archery the support it is now observed when about everyone else considered the bow a toy — and the sport child's play, will be on hand — not to shoot but to prepare those hamburgers and the archers and guests will be going for once the aroma of his cookery drifts through the woodland trails. Drew Nelms and other officers of Tupawek promise another good tournament, the club's seasonal main event.

A public hearing on policies of management and utilization of federal lands in this part of the nation will be held next Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at Monteleone Hotel, New Orleans. Mrs. Ellen Bryan Moore, registrar of state lands, has announced. The hearing will lead to recommendations to Congress concerning retention, management or disposal of federal lands to provide maximum benefits for the public. Dr. Glasgow is urging hunters, fishermen, trappers, campers, naturalists, hikers make themselves heard.

The Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries public hearing on setting of hunting seasons and bag limits will be held at Alexandria on June 23 and 24 at Ramada Inn.

Gun buffs will be interested in the new book — Stoeger Mail Order Gun Parts Catalog — of 416 pages illustrating offerings of near 70,000 parts for every firearm currently available to sportsmen. Gunsmiths, collectors, all firearms enthusiasts may soon be terming this the most important gun book of the year. Available at $2 per copy from any of the nation's thousands of Stoeger dealers.

The Outdoor Scoreboard

VAN HICKS, East Carroll parish school official, hit the jackpot in Lake Providence by catching four "tagged" bass worth prizes in a fishing contest. He caught three on one trip.

The TILFORD WALKER family of Jena took bream limits four straight days at Black River. JACK FLUITT, Jena, made several nice catches of blue channel cat at Catahoula.

Better late than never, the old saying goes. OTIS HASSELL, Winnsboro, sent us a report the first week of this month that T. D. DICKEY, Winnsboro, had taken the bass limit at Lake St. John, the largest weighing six pounds, 12 ounces. The report was misplaced until we discovered it this week.

Black Bayou catches for the week included bream limits for ARCHIE and MRS. SUMRALL, BILLY ORSBORNE (twice), MACK WARD, FRED PETTY and BOB GANEY.

ROBERT DECELL and A. A. HAMPTON took Black Bayou speckled perch limits. So did T. R. TAYLOR, FLOYD DOLLAR and LEE and MRS. HICKS. LEE was back the next day without the Mrs. for another limit.

FREDERICK SUMMERS caught eight Black Bayou Bass Thursday. R. L. CURRIER, Crowley, missed 78 bream and specks; JOE WILKINS's crappie string included a speck that went two pounds, two ounces; WILLIE LINDSAY caught 61 80

Vacationers were having a high time during the week at Bussey Brake. RICH and MRS. CREWS, W. E. and MRS. DODIE, E. G. GOMILLION, MRS. IMOGENE GOLD, MRS. AUBREY GOMILLION and MRS. ADDIE BODLE all of Pensacola, Fla., caught bream limits almost daily, totaling near 1,000. MIKE BONO and WAYNE MCELBEE, Lake Charles, took 23 bass; JAMES OGERTON and CECIL NASH, Lawson, Ark., 100 crappie; O. W. STOVER, Crossett, Ark., 50 crappie; REV. J. E. ALLEN and J. C. MORELAND, Bastrop, took nine bass totalling 35 pounds, two of seven pounds each, and MORELAND came back with JUDGE WEAVER for 18 more; G. A. WALL, Bastrop, 14 bass; B. M. and MRS. TURNER, Bastrop, bream limits, and MRS. PETE INGRAM and MRS. VERA CROW, Bastrop, 50 crappie.

Some Lake D'Arbonne success includes LUKE DAVIS, El Dorado, and G. L. BURTON, Farmerville, 55 bream; ADEN THOMAES, Ruston, 85; CHARLES HOLLIS, Bernice, 43; JIMMY TUCKER, Monroe, 47; MRS. MILDRED MITCHELL, Fort Worth, Tex., and MRS. C. M. BURTON, Farmerville, 88; HUEY PATE, Lillie, 75; BARBARA WHITE, Farmerville, bass limit; S. R. and MRS. BUTLER, Smackover, Ark., 170 bream; AUBREY and MRS. ANGLIN, Haynesville, 75 bream; J. W. SMITH and DUDAN REED, El Dorado, 80.

Freehan, Brown Crack Singles In 7th To Propel Tigs To 3-1 Win Over Yanks

DETROIT (AP) — Bill Freehan and Gates Brown cracked run-scoring singles in the seventh inning Saturday, lifting the Detroit Tigers to a 3-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Jim Northrup tripled with one out in the decisive inning off loser Al Downing, 3-3, and Freehan singled him home. Freehan took second on a walk to Norm Cash and scored on a pinch-hit safety by Brown.

Dick McAuliffe gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead in the first inning with an inside-the-park homer when his low liner bounced past center fielder Joe Pepitone. It was his fifth homer.

Mickey Mantle tied the count in the fourth with his seventh homer high into the second deck in right center field.

Denny McLain went the distance and evened his record at 4-4 with a seven-hitter.

Wayne Peddy Indian Medalist

To nobody's surprise, Gulf States Conference individual champion Wayne Peddy was the season medalist of Northeast State's 1967 golf team.

By winning a sudden - death playoff for the GSC title last week, Peddy climaxed the finest year ever by a Northeast golfer and led the Indian team to one of its finest seasons. Northeast won eight of 10 dual or triangular matches and finished second in the GSC tournament.

Peddy averaged 72.4 strokes per 18 holes over the season, nearly the same average he posted in winning the GSC title with a 215 total over 54 holes. The ex - West Monroe High golfer was consistent throughout the year, particularly in dual play. After Northeast's three opening tournaments, Peddy never shot higher than 72, hitting a low of 68 twice.

Rick Hyland of Monroe was the team's No. 2 golfer in average with 73.7 and finished third in the GSC tourney. He was followed by Glenn Walker of Monroe, who averaged 76.3 and had the team's lowest round of the year, a 65. Paul Henslee had a 76.5 average and Raymond Winn averaged 77.4 strokes.

In dual match play, Peddy was the top scorer with 27¾ points, winning six times and trying once in seven matches. Three of Northeast's matches were decided by medal play. Hyland was the No. 2 scorer with 25¼ points and Walker had a perfect record in dual matches, 4-0-0.

Winn is the only senior among Northeast's 1967 top 5 — Hyland and Walker are juniors, Peddy is a sophomore and Hensley is a freshman.

Debating Cheniere

With Paul Martin

Ouachita sportsmen desiring to continue the Cheniere Lake project of annual drawdown, clean-up and general lake improvement suffered a slight setback this week because a petition bearing 917 signatures had almost enough weight to cause the Police Jury to reverse its decision of a year ago.

A year ago, by a 12-7, vote the jury approved recommendations of the Cheniere Lake Commission to undertake the improvement of Cheniere conditions. Monday night the vote was only 10-9 on a tabling motion that means the issue isn't resolved by any means and that at least two votes that supported the clean - up a year ago now may be against it.

Mrs. Mae Lucky, our registrar of voters, will tell you there are "approximately 36,000 registered voters in Ouachita Parish" today. We would hate to think that 917 signatures on petitions that have been circulating for some time are going to determine the issue for 35 083 voters who haven't signed, given the opportunity or not.

At a well - publicized meeting a year ago the jury heard arguments for and against the Cheniere issue. This week the petition showed up in the jury meeting to start the arguments all over again.

At the next jury meeting the sportsmen might win back their losses with a petition backed by 918 names. Then, at the following meeting, the petition of the past week be reintroduced with 919 names. It could get ridiculous.

Stopping the Cheniere project now will never have the drawdown strong Cheniere Lake is better today because of the clean-up and deepening of shorelines at public areas and boat lanes criss - crossing the lake that were improved last fall.

The recent petition asks that the water not be lowered for two years. The same petitioners, in our opinion, won't agree to a drawdown three years from now.

If the police Jury ever decides to leave the conduct of Cheniere Lake in the hands of the Cheniere Lake Commission it should eliminate some of its headache. The Cheniere Lake Comission is without political entanglements and wants only to bring Cheniere to the fulfillment it deserves as a recreation spot for all of Ouachita parish. The latest petitioners, thus, would oppose the lake commission taking the authority it deserves.

Anyone for another petition supporting the Cheniere improvements to win back those Police Jury Votes?

Turkey News — Good, Bad

Louisiana turkey hunters bagged 226 legal gobblers during the April season, according to a report from Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, who also said 18 cases for violations were also made by agents of the enforcement division — one case in Tensas parish, nine in St. Tammany and eight in St. Helena.

A breakdown on the area gobbler tally showed 57 taken during open season in all parts of East Carroll, West Carroll, Morehouse, Union, Lincoln, Ouachita, Richland and Jackson parishes open to turkey hunting; 78 in the Madison, Caldwell, Franklin, Tensas, LaSalle, Catahoula and Concordia parish areas, and the greatest number, 91, in West Feliciana, East Feliciana, St. Helena, Tangipahoa, Washington, East Baton Rouge, Livington, St. Tammany and Ascension parishes.

All case involving violations had not been disposed of at latest count, but those settled drew fines ranging from $25 to $115.

"Poaching is one of the greatest deterrents to the program of restocking," Dr. Glasgow said. "It is the duty of every person to see that these basic flocks receive full protection."

Some Random Notes

Jim Packer, chairman of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit's fishing contest, has announced new additions for grand prizes to lucky winners in bass, bream and crappie categories — three deep sea fishing trips in addition to all those other prizes he has lined up. The monthly contest periods are May 13-June 11, June12-July 16, and July 17-August 20. Award dates, at unit meetings, are June 17, July 25, August 29.

Tupawek Bowmen are hosting their fifth annual Archers Jubilee today and out of action for the first time is M. L. "Mr. Vick" Vickery, Tupawek's treasure and one of archery's ambassadors. A recent hear attack ruled Mr. Vick out of competition. But our nominee as "Mr. Archery," J. M. McBeth, the man who years ago was giving archery the support it deserved when about everyone else considered the bow a toy and the sport child's play, will be on hand — not to shoot but to prepare those hamburgers the archers and guests will be going for once the aroma of his cookery drifts through the woodland trails. Drew Nelms and other officers of Tupawek promise another good tournament, the club's seasonal main event.

A public hearing on policies of management and utilization of federal lands in this part of the nation will be held next Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at Monteleone Hotel, New Orleans, Mrs. Ellen Bryan Moore, registrar of state lands, has announced. The hearing will lead to recommendations to Congress concerning retention, management or disposal of federal lands to provide maximum benefits for the public. Dr. Glasgow is urging hunters, fishermen, trappers, campers, naturalists, hikers make themselves heard.

The Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries public hearing on setting of hunting seasons and bag limits will be held at Alexandria on June 23 and 24 at Ramada Inn.

Gun buffs will be interested in the new book — Stoeger Mail-Order Gun Parts Catalog — of 416 pages illustrating offerings of near 100,000 parts for every firearm currently available to sportsmen. Gunsmiths, collectors, all firearms enthusiasts may soon be terming this the most important gun book of the year. Available at $2 per copy from any of the nation's thousands of Stoeger dealers.

The Outdoor Scoreboard

VAN HICKS, East Carroll parish school official, hit the jackpot in Lake Providence by catching four "tagged" bass worth prizes in a fishing contest. He caught three on one trip.

The TILFORD WALKER family of Jena took bream limits four straight days at Black River. JACK FLUITT, Jena, made several nice catches of blue channel cat at Catahoula.

Better late than never, the old saying goes. OTIS HASSELL, Winnsboro, sent us a report the first week of this month that T. D. DICKEY, Winnsboro, had taken the bass limit at Lake St. Jhn, the largest weighing six pounds, 12 ounces. The report was misplaced until we discovered it this week.

Black Bayou catches for the week included bream limits for ARCHIE and MRS. SUMRALL, BILLY ORSBORNE (twice), MACK WARD, FRED PETTY and BOB GANEY.

ROBERT DECELL and A. A. HAMPTON took Black Bayou speckled perch limits. So did T. R. TAYLOR, FLOYD DOLLAR and LEE and MRS. HICKS. LEE was back the next day without the Mrs. for another limit.

FREDERICK SUMMERS caught eight Black Bayou Bass Thursday. R. L. CURRIER, Crowley, missed 78 bream and specks; JOE WILKINS's crappie string included a speck that went two pounds, two ounces; WILLIE LINDSAY caught 61 bluegills, SAMMY DITTA 70.

Vacationers were having a high time during the week at Bussey Brake. RICH and MRS. CREWS, W. E. and MRS. DODIE, E. G. GOMILLION, MRS. IMOGENE GOLD, MRS. AUBREY GOMILLION and MRS. ADDIE BODI,E all of Pensacola, Fla., caught bream limits almost daily, totaling near 1,000. MIKE BONO and WAYNE MCELBEE, Lake Charles, took 23 bass; JAMES OGERTON and CECIL NASH, Lawson, Ark., 100 crappie; O. W. STOVER, Crossett, Ark., 30 crappie; REV. J. E. ALLEN and J. C. MORELAND, Bastrop, took nine bass totalling 35 pounds, two of seven pounds each, and MORELAND came back with JUDGE WEAVER for 18 more. G. A. WALL, Bastrop, 14 bass; B. M. and MRS. TURNER, Bastrop, bream limits, and MRS. PETE INGRAM and MRS. VERA CROW, Bastrop, 50 crappie.

Some Lake D'Arbonne success includes LUKE DAVIS, El Dorado, and G. L. BURTON, Farmerville, 55 bream; ADEN THOMAES, Ruston, 85 CHARLES HOLLIS, Bernice, 43; JIMMY TUCKER, Monroe, 47; MRS. MILDRED MITCHELL, Fort Worth, Tex., and MRS. C. M. BURTON, Farmerville, 88; HUEY PATE, Lillie, 75; BARBARA WHITE, Farmerville, bass limit; S. R. and MRS. BUTLER, Smackover, Ark., 170 bream; AUBREY and MRS. ANGLIN, Haynesville, 75 bream; J. W. SMITH and DUDAN REED, El Dorado, 80; 80.

Wayne Peddy Indian Medalist

To nobody's surprise, Gulf States Conference individual champion Wayne Peddy was the season medalist of Northeast State's 1967 golf team.

By winning a sudden - death playoff for the GSC title last week, Peddy climaxed the finest year ever by a Northeast golfer and led the Indian team to one of its finest seasons. Northeast won eight of 10 dual or triangular matches and finished second in the GSC tournament.

Peddy averaged 72.4 strokes per 18 holes over the season, nearly the same average he posted in winning the GSC title with a 215 total over 54 holes. The ex - West Monroe High golfer was consistent throughout the year, particularly in dual play. After Northeast's three opening tournaments, Peddy never shot higher than 72, hitting a low of 68 twice.

Rick Hyland of Monroe was the team's No. 2 golfer in average with 73.7 and finished third in the GSC tourney. He was followed by Glenn Walker of Monroe, who averaged 76.3 and had the team's lowest round of the year, a 65. Paul Henslee had a 76.5 average and Raymond Winn averaged 77.4 strokes.

In dual match play, Peddy was the top scorer with 27¾ points, winning six times and trying once in seven matches. Three of Northeast's matches were decided by medal play. Hyland was the No. 2 scorer with 25¼ points and Walker had a perfect record in dual matches, 4-0-0.

Winn is the only senior among Northeast's 1967 top 5 — Hyland and Walker are juniors, Peddy is a sophomore and Hens- Mrs. Ray McEntyre of Jones-

Freehan, Brown Crack Singles In 7th To Propel Tigs To 3-1 Win Over Yanks

DETROIT (AP) — Bill Freehan and Gates Brown cracked run-scoring singles in the seventh inning Saturday, lifting the Detroit Tigers to a 3-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Jim Northrup tripled with one out in the decisive inning off loser Al Downing, 3-3, and Freehan singled him home. Freehan took second on a walk to Norm Cash and scored on a pinch-hit safety by Brown.

Dick McAuliffe gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead in the first inning with an inside-the-park homer when his low liner bounced past center fielder Joe Pepitone. It was his fifth homer.

Mickey Mantle tied the count in the fourth with his seventh homer high into the second deck in right center field.

Tommie Smith Sets World 440 Record

SAN JOSE (AP) — San Jose State sprint star Tommie Smith bettered the world records for the 400 meters and 440-yard run Saturday.

Smith was clocked at 44.5 in the 400 meters and at 44.8 for 440 yards.

The previous 400-meter world mark of 44.9 was set by Otis Davis of the U.S. Olympic team in the 1960 Rome Games. It was tied by Adolph Plummer of New Mexico in 1963 and Mike Larrabee of the Southern California Strikders in 1964.

Smith outdistanced his teammate, Lee Evans by approximately 25 yards to smash the record set in 1963 by Adolph Plummer of the University of New Mexico, who ran it in 44.9.

Municipal Course To Get Repairs

Monroe's Municipal Golf Course will be closed Monday morning, according to professional Johnny Myers.

Myers said the course would open at 12:30 p.m. after arifying and fertilizing of the greens.

Veale Wins Sixth Straight

ATLANTA (AP) — Pittsburgh took advantage of four Atlanta errors Saturday night and whipped the Braves 6-2 with the help of a three-run outburst in the sixth inning when the Pirates had only one hit.

Pitcher Bob Veale boosted his record to 6-0 although he was driven out in the seventh when Clete Boyer and Marty Martinez singled and scored on Woody Woodward's double.

Reliever Al McBean, after giving up a single, ended the threat by getting Joe Torre to bounce out.

Roberto Clemente ignited the Pirates' triumph, slamming a bases-empty home run in the fourth inning. The Pirates added an unearned run in the fifth and then used Manny Mota's double, a sacrifice, a walk, Bill Mazeroski's squeeze bunt and throwing errors by Woodward and Martinez to nail down the victory in the sixth.

Clemente added an insurance run in the eighth when he doubled, went to third on an infield bouncer and scored on Donn Clendenon's single.

Astros Fall To Marichal

HOUSTON (AP) — Juan Marichal pitched a three-hitter for his seventh straight victory as the San Francisco Giants edged Houston 3-2 Saturday night.

Marichal, who lost his first three decisions this season, held the Astros hitless until Bob Aspromonte singled with two out in the fifth inning.

The brilliant right-hander gave up the other two hits in the sixth when Houston scored two unearned runs with the help of a fly ball dropped by Willie Mays.

Tommie Smith Sets World 440 Record

SAN JOSE (AP) — San Jose State sprint star Tommie Smith bettered the world records for the 400 meters and 440-yard run Saturday.

Smith was clocked at 44.5 in the 400 meters and at 44.8 for 440 yards.

The previous 400-meter world mark of 44.9 was set by Otis Davis of the U.S. Olympic team in the 1960 Rome Games. It was tied by Adolph Plummer of New Mexico in 1963 and Mike Larrabee of the Southern California Strikders in 1964.

Smith outdistanced his teammate, Lee Evans by approximately 25 yards to smash the record set in 1963 by Adolph Plummer of the University of New Mexico, who ran it in 44.9.

Municipal Course To Get Repairs

Monroe's Municipal Golf Course will be closed Monday morning, according to professional Johnny Myers.

Myers said the course would open at 12:30 p.m. after arifying and fertilizing of the greens.

Veale Wins Sixth Straight

ATLANTA (AP) — Pittsburgh took advantage of four Atlanta errors Saturday night and whipped the Braves 6-2 with the help of a three-run outburst in the sixth inning when the Pirates had only one hit.

Pitcher Bob Veale boosted his record to 6-0 although he was driven out in the seventh when Clete Boyer and Marty Martinez singled and scored on Woody Woodward's double.

Reliever Al McBean, after giving up a single, ended the threat by getting Joe Torre to bounce out.

Roberto Clemente ignited the Pirates' triumph, slamming a bases-empty home run in the fourth inning. The Pirates added an unearned run in the fifth and then used Manny Mota's double, a sacrifice, a walk, Bill Mazeroski's squeeze bunt and throwing errors by Woodward and Martinez to nail down the victory in the sixth.

Clemente added an insurance run in the eighth when he doubled, went to third on an infield bouncer and scored on Donn Clendenon's single.

Astros Fall To Marichal

HOUSTON (AP) — Juan Marichal pitched a three-hitter for his seventh straight victory as the San Francisco Giants edged Houston 3-2 Saturday night.

Marichal, who lost his first three decisions this season, held the Astros hitless until Bob Aspromonte singled with two out in the fifth inning.

The brilliant right-hander gave up the other two hits in the sixth when Houston scored two unearned runs with the help of a fly ball dropped by Willie Mays.

BOB LENARDUZZI, exchange student from Italy, crashes across the finish line in 4:21.2 to rewrite the Crossett Relays mile run record.

Italian Exchange Student In Crossett Eyes Olympics

By JANICE CLARK
CORRESPONDENT

CROSSETT, Ark. — "Roberta Leonarduzi Exploded to new All - Time Arkansas High School Marks!" "Exchange Student Crashed the 4:20 Barrier in Mile Run!"

Headlines like the above have become commonplace for Crossett's fifth Foreign Exchange Student during his year at Crossett High School. The slim 18 - year - old boy from Udine, Italy, already had his sights set on the Olympics before he came to Crossett, and nothing that has happened here has changed his goals.

"Bob," as his Crossett classmates promptly reduced the "Roberto," has been one of the most popular students in his Senior class. He meets people with a warm friendliness, and converses with easy grace.

son" in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beldon Wheat, of Crossett. He shares a room with 17 - year - old Frank Wheat, who is a junior in high school. The two boys get along well together, although Frank is a restless, gregarious young man, and Bob is just as happy staying at home studying or simply visiting with his foster parents, as he is at a Youth Center dance.

Bob, in discussing the differences between a teen - ager's life here and in his home town, says that young people stay at home more there, for several reasons. Teen - agers do not drive cars until they are 18 in Italy, so much of their partying is in the home.

They take bicycle trips out from their city of 100,000, into the surrounding farmland, which often culminate in picnics. And they often camp in the mountains which look into Austria. Most of the time they go "dutch" on dates, because salaries are relatively low in Italy, and teen - agers don't have as much pocket money as they do here.

The high school pattern in Bob's home is vastly different from that in Crossett. Students go to school six days a week, from 8:00 A.M. until 1:00 P.M., with no study halls or time out for lunch. There is much homework, which the student must develop the self - discicpline to do. In contrast to the four or five subjects our students take in high school, Bob's schedule in Udine last year included the following: Philosophy, Italian, English, Latin, Mathematics, History, Physics, Chemistry, Geography, Science (Biology, etc.), Religion (taught by a Roman Catholic teacher), Mechanical Drawing, and Physical Education — 13 subjects.

Although the subjects are scheduled twice or three days a week, and not all subjects [illegible] is an indication of tremendous application on the part of the student that he can master so many courses in a given year.

That Bob does have a grasp of his work is indicated by the fact that in Crossett he has averaged A's in Chemistry, Advanced Algebra, and Mechanical Drawing, and B's in English and American History. He has maintained these grades while keeping to [illegible] schedule, as well as participating in an active social life.

Members of families are much closer one to another than they are here. Bob is accustomed to staying at home a lot, which has made him a particular joy to the Wheats, who have enjoyed his relaxed habit of sitting at home reading or visiting in the evenings.

Bob has joined his classmate, Karl Salb, in smashing local and state records in the field of track. Karl has hurled the shot put and sailed the discus to all - time records, while Bob has "sizled" down the track ahead of the pack to "explode to new all - time Arkansas High School marks," in the mile run.

He first "slammed across the finish line with a 35-yard lead" and a time of 4:20.2, to break the state record of 4:22.9. on March 23, at Little Rock Central's Tiger Relays. Since then the 5' 8", 136 pound Italian youth has "scorched the track" to run the mile in [illegible]

[illegible] Foresign Exchange students, [illegible] less formal than in his country. In Italy the teacher-student relationship is more formal than here, and the teachers address students by their last names. His family has always lived in the Province of Udine, midway between Venice and Trieste, where he traces his ancestry back to 1266, indicating a much less fluid society than is current in the United States.

Among the experiences he has partciularly enjoyed in Crossett have been his camping, fishing and hunting trips with his foster brother. He was with Frank when Frank brought down a nine-point deer last December.

Bob didn't get a deer, but is proud of the rabbit and squirrel he shot. Game is so scarce in his home province that hunting licenses cost $80 a year, and then there is slim chance for a shot.

This boy, whose mother is an elementary school teacher and father a railroad engineer, plans to return to Italy to finish high school. His year here will have set him back a year, so he will have one more year there before college, where he plans to study medicine. He would then like, if possible, to return to the United States to specialize in Heart work at Houston, Tex. Meantime, his track record here has brought "feelers" from various colleges about the country.

Soon after returning to Italy this summer he will participate in the Italian National track meets. He hopes his performance there will make him eligible for the "Triangles," a three-country meet. From there he hopes to move on to the Olympics.

So — the people of Crossett will be watching the international sports news for years to come, hoping to see their "citi- [illegible] duzzi, flirting with the world's top records in the mile race.

And for the students of Crossett's schools, whose Key Club boys have earned the money five successive years to bring foreign students to Crossett — what has been the value of hosting these guests in our community? First of all, we have learned to understand the warmth and friendliness behind the different national temperaments. The Scandinavian students, a boy from Finland and one from Norway, have been very reserved on the surface and formal.

The girl from Brazil was a happy, joyious personality, making friends instantly, and loving every minute of life — here or wherever she might be. The German student was also very dignified and reserved, highly cultured and almost aloof. And then, Bob, from Italy, has been warmly friendly, a participator in school activities, and a gracious person to visit with.

All have stayed here long enough for Crossett's students to find that beneath the superficial differences of personality is a common interest in friendship, understanding, and sharing of experiences. Perhaps if these experiences could be multiplied by hundreds and thousands, we would find that the world is closer than would seem from the current headlines.

McNeese Names Bob Hayes As New Head Track Coach

LAKE CHARLES (Special)— Bob Hayes, one of the outstanding high school coaches in the state, will become head track coach at McNeese State College.

McNeese athletic director, A.I. Ratcliff, made the announcement of Hayes' appointment, noting that the Kansas native's duties would be strictly those of track and cross country coach.

Hayes will join the McNeese State coaching staff July 1, replacing Charles Kuehn, who has served as head track coach and football assistant the past seven years. Kuehn recently resigned to take over as head football coach at Westlake High.

For the past four years Hayes, a man dedicated to the sport of track and field, has been track coach at Lake Charles High where he built up one of the finest prep programs in the state.

Recently Hayes, who is a graduate of Louisiana Tech from which he also holds the master's degree, fielded one of his best track teams at Lake Charles. The double A squad won district and regional titles and placed second in the state meet.

In his previous three years at Lake Charles the Wildcats competed on the triple A level with Hayes' teams never finishing lower than eighth in the state meet.

Among the top high school products that the Kansas native has turned out while at Lake Charles have been discus thrower Mark Lumpkin, who was tops in the nation in that department in 1966, and sprinter Woody Pryor, currently a member of the McNeese track squad.

An avid runner who believes in running for exercise and who still runs several miles each day, Hayes was a distance runner on both the cross country and track teams at Louisiana Tech for four years. He also served as co-captain of the last Tech squad to win the Gulf States Conference title.

A native of Sedgwick, Kan., Hayes entered Louisiana Tech after graduating from high school and after serving a tour with the armed forces. On receiving his bachelor's degree, he accepted an assistantship at Tech, staying on to earn his master's degree in physical education.

He joined the Lake Charles High staff as head track and assistant football coach in the fall of 1963.

The new Cowboy coach is a member of the National High School Track Coaches Association and was instrumental in forming the Louisiana High School Track Coaches Association of which he served as president.

BOB HAYES
. . . Poke Ramrod

Hayes is married to the former Nell Perryman of Dubberly who is presently teaching in the local parish system.

Commented Hayes on his change of positions, "I feel very fortunate in being selected to coach track at McNeese State. I also have been very fortunate in having been associated with Lake Charles High School. The administration and faculty are wonderful people to work with."

Stated Ratcliff on the appointment of Hayes, who is slated to be the first full time track coach at McNeese, "Hiring a full time track coach will certainly help our track program, especially since we got a man of Coach Hayes' ability to run it."

"In the next few years we should definitely see a marked improvement in our track program," Ratcliff went on to say.

Tennessee Inks Negro Cager

DETROIT (AP) — Spencer Haywood, one of the most sought after high school basketball players in the nation, said Saturday he had accepted a basketball scholarship to become the first Negro ever to play the sport at the University of Tennessee.

Haywood, a 6-foot-8, 220-pound center from Detroit Pershing High School, led his team to the Michigan Class A high school basketball title this year.

He averaged about 30 points and 20 rebounds a game and said he had received about 258 scholarship offers from colleges and universities.

RATING GUIDE: A (adults), AMY (adult and mature young people), AYC (adults, young people and children;, and C (especially for children, accompanied by adults). When no rating is available on foreign imports etc., a listing of NRA will indicate "No Rating Available." Ratings are compiled from listings of the Film Estimate Board in "The Green Sheet" and from Parents Magazine.

EASTGATE CINEMA

Now showing: "In Like Flint," with James Coburn, Lee J. Cobb and Jean Hale - AYC. Once again imperturbable James Coburn appears as Flint, the super - genius who luckily is on our side. In the present complicated spoof he is called on by the head of a national security organization, Zowie, to investigate suspicious activities affecting our government.

JIM

Today through Tuesday: "Torn Curtain," with Julie Andrews and Paul Newman - A. A. Hitchcock tale of espionage, opening with a scene of premarital intimacy, goes on to the adventures of the young couple as supposed defectors behind the Iron Curtain.

Also showing: "Blindfold"-NRA.

Wednesday through Friday: "Joy in the Morning," with Richard Chamberlain and Yvette Mimieux - AMY. The young man marries his 17-year - old sweetheart and they go to live in the college town where he is in his last year of law school. Troubles pile up. But at the last there is a simplified, sentimental happy ending.

Also showing: "Your Cheatin' Heart" — NRA.

Saturday only: "Get Yourself a College Girl," with Mary Ann Mobley and Nancy Sinatra-AMY. As pictured by this musical, Wyndam College for girls in Los Angeles, bears no resemblance to any actual campus. The plot is just a sliver of springboard for a lot of dancing and rock 'n' roll by the Dave Clark Five, the Animals, the Jimmy Smith trio and the Rhythm Masters, among others.

Also showing: "Hercules, Samson and Ulyssess," with Kirk Morris and Richard Lloyd-AMY. An Italian costume piece is loosely based on a combination of Bible history and legends surrounding the three title characters.

JOY DRIVE-IN

Today through Tuesday: "The Cool Ones" - NRA.

Also showing: "The Viscount"-NRA.

Wednesday through Saturday: "Karamoja" - NRA.

Also showing: "The White Slave Ship"- NRA.

PARAMOUNT

Now showing: "Chuka," with Rod Taylor and Ernest Borgnine - AMY. A good cast gives depth to an unusual western, in which cowardly officers, mutinous soldiers, two ladies and a brave gunman in an Army stockade are attacked by starving Indians.

Tuesday through Thursday: "The Corrupt Ones," with Robert Stack and Elke Sommer - NRA.

Starting Friday: "Casino Royale," with Peter Sellers, Ursula Andress and David Niven-AMY. A James Bond adventure drama.

RIALTO

NOW SHOWING: "For a Few Dollars More," with Clint Eastwood and Lee Van Cleff-NRA.

STAR DRIVE-IN

Today through Tuesday: "Destination Inner Space" - NRA.

Also showing: "Frozen Alive"-NRA.

Wednesday through Friday: "Blood and Black Lace"-NRA.

Also showing: "The Chase," with Marlon Brando and Jane Fonda - A. A convict's escape is the fuse which ignites every explosive passion in the people of a small Texas town.

STRAND

Today through Tuesday: "Easy Come, Easy Go," with Elvis Presley - AYC. A light comedy with Elvis diving for sunken treasure and singing a generous program of lively tunes, in a West Coast atmosphere of beatniks and bikinis.

Wednesday through Saturday: "Monkeys, Go Home!" - AYC. A rollicking Walt Disney farce concerns a young American who inherits an olive grove in southern France and disrupts the village when he brings in four playful female chimps to harvest the crop.

Mississippi Visits By Lindberg Recalled

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — Forty years ago, Charles A. Lindberg piloted his "Spirit of St. Louis" across the Atlantic and into the pages of aviation history. His name became a household word.

His flight was as tortuous as it was dramatic.

Lindbergh, however, was used to hardships, having flown as a barnstormer and air mail pilot through some of the worst weather in the United States.

He acquired his first plane at Americus, Ga., in 1923 — four years before his trans-Atlantic flight—and headed toward Texas by way of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. The plane was a two-seat, World War I Jenny.

Lindbergh landed in Meridian, where he carried his first paying passenger. Barnstorming pilots in those days often made expenses by carrying local citizens aloft to see the countryside. The going price was $5 for a 10 to 15 minute flight.

After a near crash on a tree-level takeoff, the Meridian passenger told the fledging pilot it was a thrilling ride over the tree tops.

The lanky Lindbergh then flew to Maben, 100 miles northwest of Meridian. There he had his first accident and had to wait two weeks for spare parts before flying on to Texas.

In 1924, Lindbergh met a young St. Louis automobile dealer named Leon Klink. The two young men decided to fly south to escape the cold weather.

Klink, now retired, recalls the trip.

"We left St. Louis and spent a couple of days at the home of my friends in Perryville, Mo.," he said in an interview. "We left there and stopped in Kentucky and Tennessee. I believe we then flew to Friars Point, Miss.

"The South and the people of Mississippi were always gracious to us and very friendly. When we stopped, and this was often since our cruising range was between 125 and 150 miles, someone always helped us if we were in trouble or needed gas.

TRAFFIC TIEUP

TOKYO (UPI) —Automobile traffic in a downtown Tokyo tunnel was halted for more than an hour Thursday when 18 consecutive cars got flat tires. Police said a carton containing 5,000 half-inch tacks had fallen off a motorcycle truck and shattered, spilling tacks over the road.

MOSCOW (UPI) —The Soviet news agency Tass said Thursday was the day of the 1,000,000th mini-car. It said the millionth Moskvich sedan was turned off the assembly line just 20 years after post-war production of the vehicle began at Moscow's "low-powered automobile plant."

CURTAIN CALL

By CURTIS RAPE

Monday night the curtain rings up on the final major production of the 1966-67 season of Monroe Little Theatre. And what a fitting way to close the season with such a delightful and charming play as "Barefoot in the Park."

The rafters of Strauss Playhouse are sure to ring with laughter during the next eight days as "Barefoot . . ." plays its run before local audiences.

Time is short and if you haven't made those reservations, please do so without delay. Very few seats remain, and you won't wish to be among those who miss this exceptional show.

Written by Neil Simon, the play involves the hilarious adventures of newlyweds during the first few weeks of marriage. This show is said to be as funny or even funnier than Simon's hit that played Strauss Playhouse several seasons back . . . the play was "Come Blow Your Horn."

EVENING PERFORMANCES

Evening performances run May 22-27, 29 and 30 with curtain time at 8:15. Only one matinee is scheduled for May 28 with starting time at 2:30 p.m.

Box office hours are from 2 to 8 p.m. daily with the exception of Sunday when hours will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. If you desire to make telephone reservations or pick up your tickets, please do so only during the appointed hours.

Also be sure to pick up your tickets by 4:30 p.m. on the reservation date or they may be sold to someone else.

RESPONSE

Many people responded to our call last week and donated their time and items which were so badly needed for our play.

Carole Russell is doing properties for the show and worked as assistant director during the last week of rehearsal.

Blanche Oliver and Myrtle Carter responded in the items-needed department and loaned us some drapes for use during the show.

To these people and all of the others who have responded we say a deep and sincere thank you.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE

Great success was met this past week by the Theatre School as some of the classes presented creative works for fellow students and family and friends.

This was only one example of the many year-end activities of the Theatre School classes.

To top off the regular children's theatre season, the musical play, "Androcles and the Lion," will be presented by the theatre.

This musical is currently in rehearsal working toward a June 1st opening. It is scheduled to run four consecutive performances.

Don't forget to make your reservations today for "Barefoot . . ." If you miss this one you'll be sorry.

IN THE MONTH since the military takeover in Greece, King Constantine has become a king without power. His future is uncertain. On the other hand, Col. George Papadopoulos, intelligence officer who was the brains behind the military coup, appears to be developing as the future dictator in Greece. (AP Wirephoto)

Greece Said To Be A Nation In Waiting

ATHENS (AP) — One month after the coup, Greece's dictatorship has given no clear sign of where it is going or how long it will take to get there.

This normally volatile Balkan nation of 8.5 million people, abnormally silent and apprehensive in the grip of authoritarian control, is a country in waiting.

Greeks are waiting for the junta to shake down. They are waiting for the one unmistakable strong man to emerge, waiting for the economic repercussions, waiting for a clearer picture of what is in their own fate is likely to be.

Greece shows little outward sign of living under military rule. Everywhere one finds a sense of relief that there has been no violence or bloodshed.

But few believe there is any long-term future for the period of calm that has prevailed in a suspension of political life since the April 21 takeover.

The nagging question is What next?

The new rulers don't seem to know themselves.

There has been a wealth of [illegible] and decrees in addition to the set of proposals for a return to the old-fashioned moral values that character of this country when it was still a dominantly agricultural society. [illegible] and regulations [illegible]

Now the junta seems to have [illegible] its own stage of [illegible]. It has gone on with its reform program and [illegible] to consult [illegible]

[illegible] what the next step [illegible]

The answer may [illegible] struggle going on behind the scenes in the armed forces.

Of the four major officers [illegible] as leaders of the coup, [illegible] the first days and has continue to be prominent, one [illegible] these officials [illegible]

sions for farmers and making textbooks free for students up to university level, the regime's main actions have been to wipe away what was considered degenerate in Greek social and political life.

Every political leader considered a possible rallying point of resistance to the fiercely anti-Communist regime was arrested. Some 6,000 are confined.

Nearly 300 trade unions and social and political organizations have been disbanded.

An end was ordered to middleman jobs in marketing farm goods. The civil service was told to abolish all patronage positions and quickly back out dead wood employes who got in through pull.

The hierarchy of Greece's Orthodox Church, embroiled for years in personality scandals and squabbles over appointments, was brought into submission by a drastic shakeup. The junta kicked out the ruling synod, put in new men, and dictated the appointment of a new primate.

Many Greeks agree with the junta's house cleaning.

And many Greeks will admit that, deep down, they are relieved that someone stepped in before the [illegible] reforms [illegible] had been scheduled for [illegible]. Similar [illegible] had been widespread fears of [illegible] possible [illegible] and left.

Ribicoff Says Senate To Give Students Break

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., predicted Saturday the Senate will pass later this session his proposal to give parents a tax break on college education costs.

It will have to be added as a rider to a House measure, he noted in an interview, so that Senate passage could give that branch a chance to vote on it for the first time.

Under the Constitution, the House must originate all revenue measures. But tax bills normally reach the House floor under procedure which bars amendments. Advocates of the tax credit for college expenses thus have not had a chance to offer it there.

Ribicoff said he understands there is growing support for it in the House, although he would not predict what might happen there.

However, he said a strong Senate majority now has been achieved for it and said, "I believe this will continue to grow."

Last month the Senate voted 58 to 26 to add the Ribicoff plan as an amendment to a bill restoring business tax incentive provisions.

But this was only a tentative decision. Later, as a part of the maneuvering over repeal of the presidential campaign financing plan, nearly all amendments including the Ribicoff rider were stripped from the bill.

The Connecticut senator, who has been pushing the idea of a tax credit for college expenses for a long time, said he was extremely pleased with this vote. His proposal won the support of 28 Democrats and 25 Republicans.

"It crossed party lines and ideological lines," he said. "We got votes from all sections of the country, from conservatives and liberals, as well as from both parties.

"It gave a big psychological boost to my proposal. It has built up a head of steam now."

Ribicoff, who serves on the tax-writing Finance Committee, said he will watch carefully for another House-passed bill which could serve as a suitable vehicle for his proposal.

His plan would permit an annual credit of up to $325 on the expenses of a college student. A credit is subtracted from taxes due.

The credit could be taken against costs of tuition, fees, books and supplies but not room and board.

It would be allowed on this formula: 75 per cent of the first $200 of expenses, 25 per cent of the amount between $200 and $500, and 50 per cent of the amount between $500 and $1,500.

The Johnson administration strongly opposes the plan, defeated in previous Senate votes.

After the favorable Senate action on April 13, Secretary of Welfare John W. Gardner reiterated the opposition. He said it does not reach the youngsters most in need.

Ribicoff, however, contends that there are many types of federal aid, including scholarships and loans, loans for low-income families with children in college, but that middle-class families need some help.

The administration also objects to the cost of the proposal, estimated at $600 million the first year and $1.4 billion annually within a few years.

IN THE MONTH since the military takeover in Greece, King Constantine has become a king without power. His future is uncertain. On the other hand, Col. George Papadopoules, intelligence officer who was the brains behind the military coup, appears to be developing as the future dictator in Greece. (AP Wirephoto)

Greece Said To Be Nation In Waiting

ATHENS (AP) — One month after the coup, Greece's dictatorship has given no clear sign of where it is going or how long it will take to get there.

This normally volatile Balkan nation of 8.5 million people, abnormally silent and apprehensive in the grip of authoritarian control, is a country in waiting.

Greeks are waiting for the junta to shake down. They are waiting for the one unmistakable strong man to emerge, waiting for the economic repercussions, waiting for a clearer picture of what their own fate is likely to be.

Greece shows little outward sign of living under military rule. Everywhere one finds a sense of relief that there has been no violence or bloodshed.

But few believe there is any long-term future for the period of calm that has prevailed in a suspension of political life since the April 21 takeover.

The nagging question is: What next?

The new rulers don't seem to know themselves.

There has been a month of house cleaning, of exhortations for unity and decency in national life, of appeals for a return to the old-fashioned moral values that characterized this country when it was still a dominantly agricultural society, of repression of organized activities, and promises of a better future.

Now the junta seems to have faltered into its own stage of waiting. It has come up with no coherent political program and refuses to predict when it will let Greece return to constitutional rule.

Indeed, after announcing that a 25-member commission had been named to write a new constitution, the junta admitted that in fact no one had been appointed because "the best men" still were being sought.

Except for a few measures designed to gain popular support, such as increasing pensions for farmers and making textbooks free for students up to university level, the regime's main actions have been to wipe away what was considered degenerate in Greek social and political life.

Every political leader considered a possible rallying point of resistance to the fiercely anti-Communist regime was arrested. Some 6,000 are confined.

Nearly 300 trade unions and social and political organizations have been disbanded.

An end was ordered to middleman jobs in marketing farm goods. The civil service was told to abolish all patronage positions and quickly back out deadwood employes who got in through pull.

The hierarchy of Greece's Orthodox Church, embroiled for years in personality scandals and squabbles over appointments, was brought into submission by a drastic shakeup. The junta kicked out the ruling synod, put in new men and dictated the appointment of a new primate.

Many Greeks agree with the junta's house cleaning.

And many Greeks will admit that, deep down, they are relieved that someone stepped in before the parliamentary elections that had been scheduled for next Sunday. There had been widespread fears of nationwide rioting between right and left.

Many also are wondering now what the junta will try to build after it has done its cleaning up.

The answer may lie in a struggle going on behind the scenes in the armed forces.

Of the four army officers who had appeared as leaders of the coup in the first days, only two continue to be prominent. One of these appears to be losing influence.

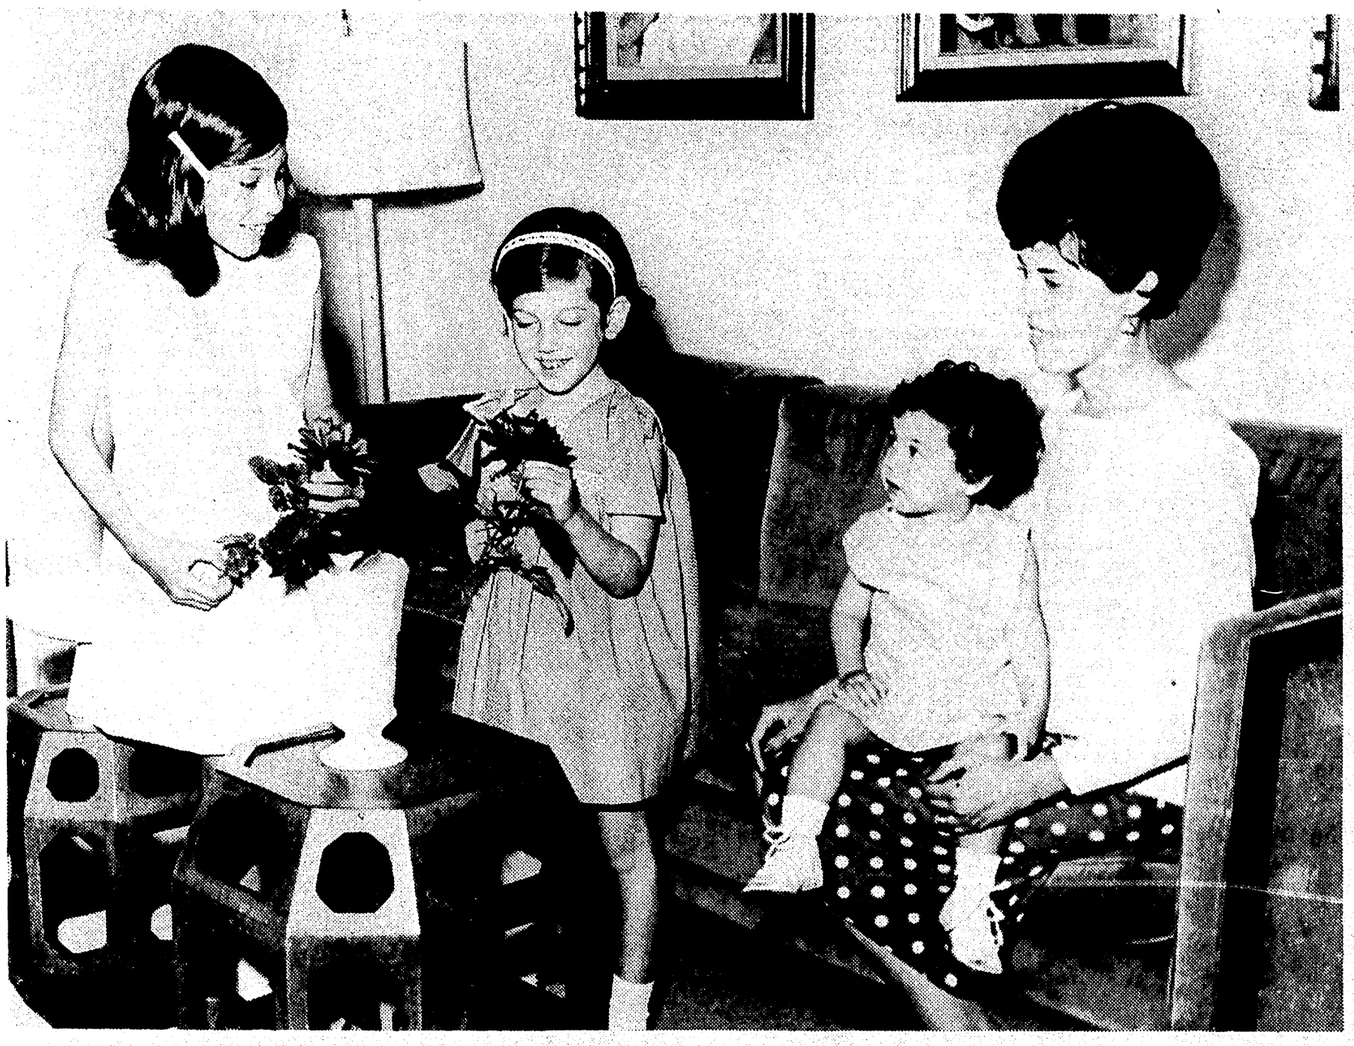
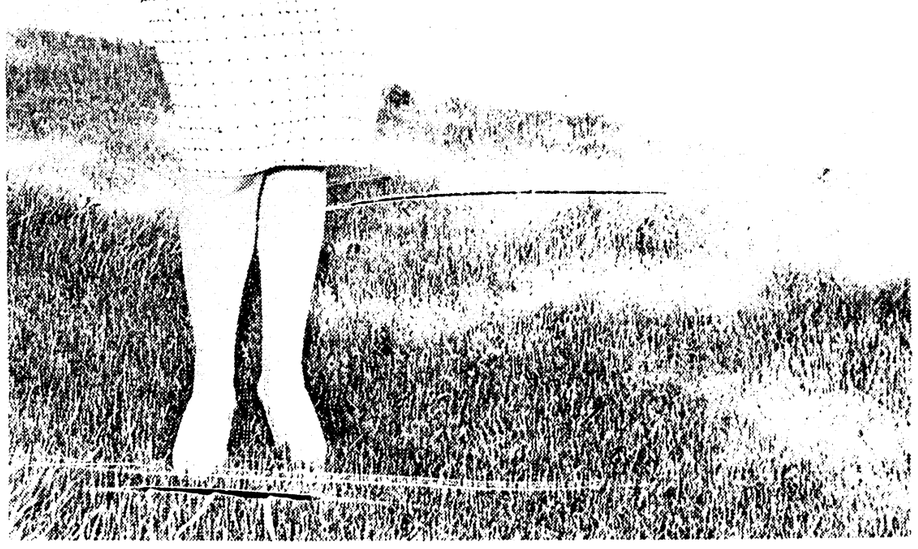
The World For WOMEN

Sunday, May 21, 1967

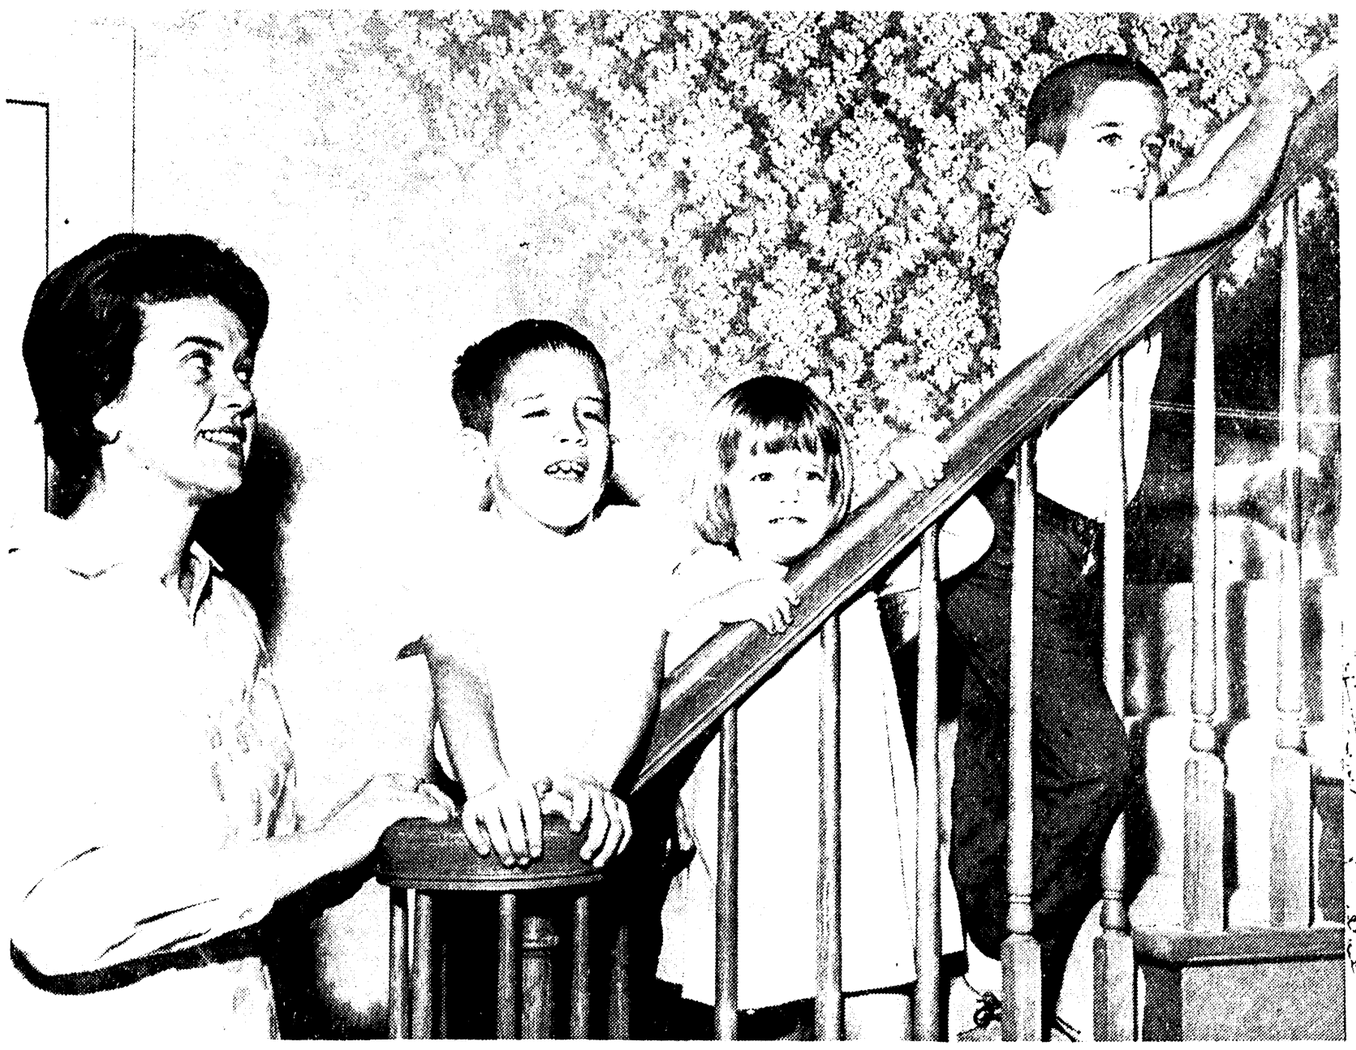


An Oriental flavor is noted in the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bernat and family which is located at 2409 Pargoud Blvd. The home is contemporary design of pale gray stoneface brick with the Oriental influence noted by the use of black painted open trellis over the entrance walk. Mrs. Bernat is pictured in the formal living room with their three daughters, from left to right, Lori, 8; Judy, 6 and Robin, 2.

In Colonial style architecture of sandy red oversize brick is the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fluck and family, located at 2710 Bayou Lane. The fireplace with its raised hearth provides a background setting in the family room for Mrs. Fluck and children, Jackie, 7 and Drew, 9.



Twin topiary trees flank the double door front entrance of the new home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Holloway, located at 4317 Belle Terre, where Mrs. Holloway is shown. Of pink frosted brick the home is of modified Louisiana Provincial architecture with wide overhang. The Holloway's son, Scott, 15 is a student at Sewanee Military Academy in Sewanee, Tenn., due home the last of the month for summer vacation.



Getting settled in their new home at 3405 Deborah Drive, into which they have just moved are Mr. and Mrs. William A. Mahaffey and family. Shown on the stairway in the foyer of the two story traditional design home of pink used brick are Mrs. Mahaffey and their children, Billy, 7½; Suzanne, 3½ and Todd, 5½.

Tennis Attire Has New Silhouette

The American woman is at play wherever the action is. This year it's the tennis court that appeals to her sense of action. The fashions she is most flexible and truly herself in are those made of Celanese contemporary fibers for this is the year when a new kettle of chic hits the tennis court.

The traditional tennis attire has disappeared and in its place new shapes and silhouettes — princess, shirt-fitted, elongated tunic, pleated or belted.

Celanese fibers become an important player in the tennis game of the American woman. This is the woman and the fiber that has the wear-with-all to make the sporting life from Maine to California a wonderful existence.

MISS LINDA SUE WOOD

MISS MARTHA ELAINE FARLEY

Martha Elaine Farley To Wed Charles R. Moore on June 24

Mrs. John Lewis, using a Japanese theme installed the officers for the ensuing year. They are Mrs. Rita Moore, president; Mrs. Emma Hicks, vice-president; Mrs. Tee Adams, treasurer; Mrs. Izella Smith, historian; Mrs. Mary Pennington, secretary and reporter and Mrs. Ida Mae Cook, courtesy chairman.

A pottery container was presented by the club to Mrs. Moore, in recognition of her services as president for the past year.

Members attending were Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Hicks, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Mable Wright, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Pennington.

Discotheque Fad Is On Decline

Discotheques may be declining, as the fad for them vanishes, but not the Cheetah night spots. By going into fashion boutiques, which are adjuncts of every Cheetah disco, the owners have given a bright new fillip to the original idea.

Now they have decided to tie in with Charlie's Girls, up-and-coming new youth fashion

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Brenda Susan Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Mason, 102 Riggs St., West Monroe, to David Coy Hood, 307 Curve Drive, Monroe, is announced by her parents. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy J. Hood, of Killeen, Texas. The wedding is planned for June 30 at 7 p.m. in Ridge Avenue Baptist Church with Rev. H. L. Sampson officiating.

Colored Door Keys For Easy Finding

Have trouble picking your front-door key from among all the others on your key-ring? No more. Keys are going four-color, according to the May Variety Store edition of Chain Store Age, and now you can have new keys made so that your front door-opener can be red, for example, the back door key blue, your office-door key green, your garage door yellow.

With the introduction of color, variety store chains expect their key-duplicating to jump greatly as householders turn in plain brass keys for vividly colored ones that they can readily identify on their rings or chains.

Guests Entertained At Open Meeting Of Review Club

Annual open meeting of the Review Club was held Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. W. M. Inabnet on DeSiard Road. Co-hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. John C. Loftin, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. Pauline Smith and Mrs. Sam Smith.

Beside the front entrance was a mass arrangement of magnolia leaves in a brass container and a black western saddle, which carried out the theme of the book review. Members and guests were greeted in the foyer where placed on the console was a large crystal vase of American Beauty roses.

Outgoing president, Mrs. George T. Walker, opened the meeting and gave a welcome to the guests.

Mrs. Thomas Dansby, chairman of the advisory board, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Marcus Mapp. Mrs. Mapp reviewed "Last of the Saddle Tramps," by Mesanna Wilkins, a warm and humorous story of a 63-year-old woman who traveled alone on horseback from Maine to California.

Following the review a dessert course was served in the dining room where the table was centered with an arrangement of multi - colored sweet peas in a crystal bowl and the buffet held a mass arrangement of blue and white carnations. Large yellow chrysanthemums centered a smaller table in the breakfast area. Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Craig Morgan, incoming president, presided at the coffee service and punch bowl.

Members and guests attending the event were Mrs. James Altick, Mrs. Armand Breard Jr., Mrs. W. Tom Davis, Mrs. Herschel Gentry Jr., Mrs. Prentice Gray Jr., Mrs. Fred Huenefeld Jr., Mrs. Ralph King Jr., Mrs. Lestar Martin, Mrs. Nathaniel Spencer, Mrs. T. B. Godfrey Jr., Mrs. James L. Dennis, Mrs. Jack Taylor, Mrs. B. G. Tucker, Mrs. Trent Palmer, Mrs. James Schonlau, Mrs. M. M. Hamner.

Mrs. James E. Lewis, Mrs. John Lolley, Mrs. W. L. Alexander, Mrs. A. T. Givens, Mrs. C. T. Yancey, Mrs. D. E. Duprec, Mrs. J. L. Adams, Mrs. Thomas Davenport, Mrs. A. C. Williams Jr., Mrs. Robert C. Cudd III, Mrs. Roger Silver Jr., Mrs. W. T. Armstrong, Mrs. Edward Long, Mrs. Mapp, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. Cudd, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Loftin, Mrs. Dansby, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Inabnet.

VINYL FASHIONS

Vinyl is infiltrating all branches of fashions. Would you believe transparent uppers for women's shoes, and vinyl vests for men: All the maintenance these novelties need is wiping with sudsy sponge, plus an occasional dip into warm soap or detergent suds.

TWO - FACED FABRICS

"Two - faced" is a complimentary comment when applied to airy 1967 washable cotton fabrics.

These are so artfully woven that the colored designs reverse themselves to show a different pattern on the back of the material. Either side — or both — can be used to give beguiling contrasts to any garment or costume.

Jewelry On Knee Really Sparkles With Mini-Skirts

Stanley Hagler thinks that jewelry is too static. In this frantically kinetic age, why should it rest always at neck, wrist, shoulder or finger? Mr. Hagler likes his jewelry to float around, so he calls the pieces Limbeau (pronounced as "in limbo," meaning nowhere).

You can fastern his jewelry to your gloves, to your hosiery, to your collar, to your scarf. He especially likes the hosiery idea, what with short skirts showing knees. Jewel your knee is the idea.

Israel Beachwear Firm Now Offers US Unique Styles

Hair Setting Tips For Home Coiffure

NEW YORK (UPI) — Out of setting lotion at hair fixing time? Beauty experts suggest substitutes, including cologne, cellophane tape, or an egg set. For the latter, mix one part egg white to two parts water. Whip it and apply. This adds body to fine hair. For heavier hair, stale beer has proved an ideal setting agent.

DOUBLE-PURPOSE SPRAY
New for the lawn is a bird bath fountain that also serves as lawn or garden sprinkler when attached to a hose. The same manufacturer has a new double deck combination bather and feeder.

Fashion Shapes Up For Spring

Fashion is shaping up for spring. Figure - defining silhouettes emerge as the most important new look of the season in California designer collections reports the National Cotton Council.

But, while the fashion line is more body - conscious than in seasons past, it's done with a softness and subtlety that's both feminine and flattering. The subtle shaping is achieved by darts and seaming, and in the cut itself. Skirts are easy - swinging from paneled fronts or slight flares. Waistlines move in closer, . . some merely hinting at a fitted look; others frankly marked by belts.

The costume remains all-important for spring, turning up in both two - and three - piece interpretations. More often than not, dresses are paired with jackets or coats. In suits, the new shorter sleeve expressed the young mood of spring. The sleeveless suit also moves into its own, looking more like a two - piece dress than the conventional suit.

Opti-Mrs. Install Officers, Honor Mrs. Archie Parker Jr.

Mrs. Archie Parker Jr. was awarded the Opti-Mrs. of the Year plaque for outstanding service to the club at the first installation banquet of the Opti-Mrs. of Monroe held Monday night at the Holiday Inn.

New officers installed by Louisiana District Governor of Optimist International Jack Phillips, include Mrs. Robert B. Bruce, president; Mrs. Allen Coon, first vice-president; Mrs. Robert E. Lee, second vice-president; Mrs. C. B. Roberts, secretary; Mrs. J. P. Mosley, treasurer; Mrs. Dan Lemoine, historian; Mrs. Harvey Guillot, reporter and Mrs. Leo Wall, parliamentarian.

Mrs. Parker, outgoing president, opened the meeting with a welcome and gave a resume of the past year's achievements, which included the presentation of $300. in scholarships. She also reported on the State Convention held last weekend in Lafayette at which the Monroe Opti-Mrs. Club was awarded the trophy for the best scrapbook in the Louisiana District. The trophy was presented to the outgoing historian, Mrs. Lee, who prepared the scrapbook.

Centering the head table from which two side tables extended in U-shape, was a spring arrangement comprising pink carnations, blue Dutch iris, white stock, pink painted daisies and purple ageratum. The centerpiece was presented to the new president, Mrs. Bruce at conclusion of the dinner and a gift from the club was presented to Mrs. Parker.

Width, Bright Hues Noted In Men's Summer Ties

NEW YORK — Fashion is a word more and more men are adding to their wardrobes. Constantly aware of the American male's growing fashion consciousness, the neckwear industry continues to keep pace with the increased interest in good grooming.

A real boon to the Father's Day gift shopper is summer neckwear which is crisp, fresh, bright and neat. In fact, there's [illegible] that will be [illegible] for fashions.

A noted feature of the current neckwear fashion trend is width. Most ties fall within a width range of 2¾ to 3 inches.

The summer forecast is for ties with white and pastel backgrounds, with slightly larger, but still neat, spaced figures or stripes.

Brighter stripes, checks and club figures point up the fact that color plays a key role in today's neckwear fashion picture.

Cotton weaves and oxford type silks or cotton in tattersall plaids all reflect the emphasis on color and its enlivening affect on the wardrobe.

Varying shades of orange and blue, and renewed interest in browns serve as background for enough summer ties to indicate the prominence these colors will have in fall neckwear.

Prettyfore Among Chic Clothes For Handicapped

United Press International

"To slip on over most anything." That the promise with high - fashion togs from Helen Cookman, executive director of the Clothing Research Development Foundation. The Foundation, to help you comprehend the promise, is dedicated to encouraging manufacture of chic clothes for the handicapped-ranging from those with missing limbs to those with paralyzed limbs. Miss Cookman offers, for example, a prettyfore, a polka dotted tog for a school age girl. It is worn under a rain or shine coat.

Both come in blue polka dots. Manufactured by Gay Sprites, the togs are especially easy to put on - by a handicapped child. Mean - while, for a woman who must wrestle with clothes while in a wheelchair or handling crutches, Dorothy Cox, designing for Tanner of North Carolina, comes up with a colorful foral print shifty shirtwaist dress - belted or not. It goes over "most everything" says Miss Cookman.

It's an oldtime trick, and still good! To decorate a sponge cake, place a paper doily (with a simple pattern) over the top of the cake and sift confectioners sugar through the holes in the pattern. Remove the doily with extreme care

Wife's Paycheck Goes For Extra Duds, Gadgets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — How much is the extra income worth when the wife also holds an outside job?

It's worth more — in certain spending, reports Finance Facts. Employed-wife households spend fractionally less for food and medical care, but more goes out for alcohol and tabacco, clothing, home furnishings, equipment, and recreation than in households where husband only is working.

Finance Facts, published by the National Consumer Finance Association, took note of the fact that one in three, or about 15 million wives, earn a paycheck. Half of all working wives earn about one fourth of the family's total income.

Almost 40 per cent of total consumer spending is estimated to come from homes where the wife works. Nearly half the employed wives are in clerical jobs or are in factories.

Hinson-Reno Wedding Vows Exchanged In Florida Chapel

Solemnized Saturday, May 20 in the U. S. Naval Chapel at Mayport, Fla., was the wedding of Miss Evelyn Rose Reno of Jacksonville, and Lynn James Hinson, Gainesville, Fla.

The bride is the daughter of Chief Petty Officer and Mrs. William Horace Reno of Jacksonville, former residents of Monroe, and is the granddaughter of Mrs. Mae Reno of Monroe. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Hinson of Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Rev. Richard Kukler performed the double ring ceremony at noon and appropriate music was provided by Mrs. Lola Wallace, organist and William Savage, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of white satin designed with full skirt which swept into a chapel train. The bodice featured a scoop neckline and long sleeves of Alencon lace. Her veil of illusion extended full length from a headpiece of Alencon lace leaves, pearls and crystals. She carried a cascade bouquet of pompon chrysanthemums, stephanotis and white orchids.

Miss Linda Carol Renn, who attended her sister as maid of honor, was wearing a floor length empire gown in mint green designed with A - line skirt, scoop neckline and Tom Jones sleeves. Her headdress of illusion was secured by a matching Dior bow and she carried a nosegay of daisies.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant in buttercup yellow were the bridesmaids, Miss Sharon Rozier, Miss Jan Bagley, Miss Nanci Caldwell and Miss Sharon Woodward, all of Jacksonville and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Darlene Reno, also a sister of the bride.

Serving as best man was Thomas Thoman, Jacksonville, and groomsmen were Gary Reno, brother of the bride; Robert Wheeler, Jack Larisey, Roy Faulkner, Melbourne, Fla., and Larry Killingsworth, Tampa, Fla.

The ensuing reception was held at the Chief Petty Officers Club, following which the couple departed on a wedding trip to St. Augustine, Fla. They will reside in Gainesville until August when Mr. Hinson will enter Officer Candidate School in the air force at Lackland, Texas.

The bride was graduated from Terry Parker high school at Jacksonville, and attended Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe, and Florida Junior College at Jacksonville. Also a graduate of Terry Parker high school, Mr. Hinson will graduate in June from the University of Florida. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta social fraternity, Phi Eta Sigma and Psi Chi honorary psychology fraternity.

Garden Center Notes

Pleasing Motifs Are Displayed

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The designs featured on Fifth District Garden Center program last Wednesday were made by members of the Lakewoods Estates Garden Club of Monroe. Most of the designs were award winners in the recent home show presented by the club members in the home of Mrs. Sylvia McHenry on Katherine Drive, Monroe.

Mrs. Thomas Easterling interpreted the theme, "Southern Hospitality," in her design for the dining room buffet. A free form design created with swirling wisteria vine (painted black), placed in a modern orange, rough textured vase, contained one large magnolia bloom with one outstanding bud rising vertically into the oval space formed by the vine. A black base, felt covered, added good balance. For her second design, Mrs. Easterling interpreted, "Night and Day," with creativity as her goal. Swirling garlic pods, painted black, formed the line, representing night. Day was interpreted with two lovely orange into gold colored daylilies, placed in the focal area. The container, painted black, was improvised from several objects placed together. The base was an orange straw place mat. This design was placed in the den.

UNUSUAL MATERIAL

Mrs. Don Culpepper, the club's president, made two of the designs for the program. Her first contained unusual material. Within a line of Guava foliage she placed the blooms of catalpa. These are busy in texture, rich in color. The container was a lovely gold cherub. On the hall console table this was most appropriate. The second design was given the title of "Sunshine", simply because of the material used. Daylilies and variegated euonymous formed a massed design for the dining table or buffet. The golden yellow daylilies are lovely in this type design and bring "sunshine" into the home.

Mrs. Margaret Hough interpreted "Night Into Day," a design for the bedroom T.V. Again daylilies were used for interpretation. Deep orange ones formed the overall line of the large oval shaped design in a green container. Bright yellow buds formed the day part of the design near the basic part of the design. Two tiered black bases were used for proper balance. A bright, cheerful design for the breakfast room table, "Sunshine Buffet," was made by Mrs. Russell Rainbolt. Iris foliage formed the crescent line for the design on a soft tan lazy-susan. Within this line were placed the florets from two canna blooms, orange into red color, with buds at the outer ends of the design. It is wonderful to see how these lovely flowers can be used so distinctively in a design for the home. This design created a lot of comments from the visitors in the center.

Mrs. J. M. Ford Jr. made two designs for the program. Her first, "We Bid You Welcome," made for the entrance hall, featured yellow glads with the foliage in a tall black cylinder container. Several of the leaves were wired and furled for interest within the vertical design. A black swirl of velvet formed the base. The next, "Along Our Waterways," an all dried design, contained sea oats for the primary line, with cattails and aspidestra leaves placed next in the design. Weathered wood added weight and interest in the lower section on the base. As an accessory, one handcarved water bird, added life to this design interpreting the waters of Louisiana.

More tips on planting for winter bouquets: Plant statice or Statice sinuata, the annual type, is excellent for late summer bloom and for drying. The everlastings or strawflowers are excellent for dried designs later on. For drying, cut while young, while the centers are unopened, bundle half a dozen or so together and hang upside down in a cool, dry location. Statice may also be dried this way. Globe amaranth, resembling pink clover, also comes in white, pink, flesh and red, is excellent when dried for arranging. This loves a hot, dry location in the garden, and blooms from midsummer to frost. Celosia is one of our old standbys for drying. The newer varieties come in many colors, yellow, orange, crimson, purple, rose, and red with scarlet highlights. Just place in a design, while fresh, and let dry out in a cool, airy place. Store in a dark cool place.

Wednesday, the Bayou Oaks Garden Club will present designs. This is a young, energetic Federated club from Monroe. Its president is Mrs. Bill Tolar.

Plant Beauty Main Factor

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Container plants can be handsome accessories to your landscape, Mrs. Gardener. Well selected plants growing in containers offer the advantage of mobility, which means that they can usually be moved from one area to another with little difficulty.

Give some thought to the selection of the container. Too often we try to squeeze a large plant into a small container. If the plant is to be enjoyed for several years the container should be two to three times larger than the ball of earth on the plant at the time of planting. Large natural colored clay pots are excellent. Most plants thrive in unglazed clay containers. Keep in mind that usually we want to feature the beauty of the plant and not compete with it by using a highly decorated pot.

There are many plants to use in containers, but don't overlook some of our common shrubs just because you have never seen them used in containers before. Nandinas, Bamboo, Camellias, Holly and Raphiolepis are all very good to use in containers.

PLASTIC DISHPANS

The gay colorful plastic dish pans you, Mrs. Homemaker, see in stores can play many a role outside the kitchen. For instance, what makes a handier toy chest for a toddler" Being plastic, it is sturdy and lightweight, and large enough to hold a lot of favorite toys. Even a small youngster can carry it around or put it away at pick-up-time.

A rectangular plastic dish pan is practical for use as a sewing bin or mending kit to keep handy near the washer and dryer. A colorful round plastic dishpan to use as a salad bowl when there is a crowd to serve is mighty hand. The dishpan salad bowl is a good idea for outdoor meals. Chose a color to match the tablecloth or place mats.

DURABLE PRESS

Mrs. Homemaker, many of your clothes this summer will be made from fabrics with easy care features. If you want to help retain the easy care features of these durable press fabrics then follow these suggestions. Dry them in small loads for less wrinkling, about half the dryer capacity. Dry at normal heat unless your dryer has a setting for "wash wear" or "permanent press".

At the end of the dry cycle, let the clothes contine to tumble for a cool-down period of five to 10 minutes after the heat is off. As soon as the dryer stops, remove the garments and hang or fold. If you do not have a dryer, shorten the final spin in the washing machine by advancing the dial or remove the garments while dripping wet and hang on rust-proof hangers. If touch-up pressing is needed, use the iron at the low setting.

WINTER CLOTHES

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have not stored all those woolen clothes, perhaps you may want to give them the cold treatment, if you have enough room in your home freezer. First clean the garments, then seal them in heavy paper. Store in the freezer for 24 hours, then store in a closet, being sure the seal remains unbroken. Near zero temperature will destroy clothes moths in all stages of development.

CANNED FOODS

There are many questions asked about canned foods. One is: Is it safe to leave unused portions of canned foods in the can after it has been opened? The answer is "yes," but refrigerate and cover just as you would any cooked food. Another question, asked by homemakers: How long will canned food keep" Canned foods will keep indefinitely but a good general rule is to have a regular turnover once a year. For example - rust, dents, or label stains do not have any effect on the contents of a can. If the can leaks, however, or if it bulges, it should be discarded.

A THOUGHT

What counts most in life is not what you have in your pocket or head, but what you have in your heart.

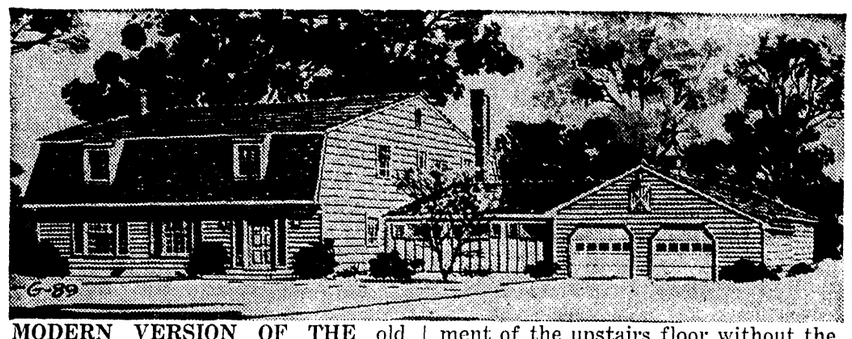
BEGIN NOW

Planning ahead on home improvements keeps your house in good trim, modern and pleasant. It's easier on the family budget, too.

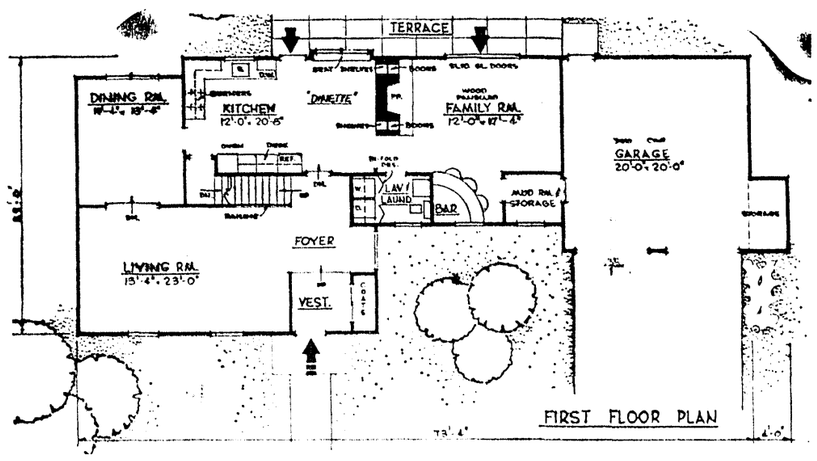
A five-year program makes good sense for many, as it takes into consideration growing youngsters and changing family needs.

"The way to maintain a home's living and actual values," says one expert, "is to keep it up. One year, it may mean buying a new living room suite; another, repainting the exterior; another, installing air conditioning."

The consultant suggests a family conference to play a five-year home improvement program. This should result in decisions and a list. Dad and Mom can take it from there.



MODERN VERSION OF THE old Dutch Colonial home, with the typical gambrel roof and wide use of textured materials, permits full development of the upstairs floor without the necessity of crowding rooms under low, slanted ceilings.



FLOOR PLANS: There are a number of interesting features in this layout, including the spacious vestibule preceding the foyer; the lavatory-laundry at the front; the corner refreshment bar; and the kitchen desk. All four bedrooms have cross-ventilation.

Practical Point Is Evident In Revival Of Gambrel Roof

By ANDY LANG

The gambrel roof was a device used successfully in the days of Dutch Colonial residential architecture. It was created to improve both the appearance and the usefulness of upstairs bedrooms, which usually had low ceilings with cut - off corners.

In the gambrel design, the roof is sloped to allow clear unbroken ceilings throughout the upper floor. To simplify construction and minimize the cost of the roof, the two front bedroom dormers are roofed as a continuation of the main roof surface. Architect Herman H. York has given us a modern version of it in Design G-89 in the House of the Week series.

The side - hall main entrance in this four-bedroom,two-story house affords excellent circulation throughout the main floor. Especially interesting is the large window lighting the foyer from the side. There is an impression of open space in the foyer area with a separate vestibule and clothes closet adjacent. One advantage of such a layout is that it make possible the use of a resilient, ceramic or masonry floor in the vestibule and a continuation of living room carpeting in the foyer. The open handrailing of the main stair adds to the spacious character of the entry.

ACCESS

Almost direct access from the entry to the rear yard is made through the dinette, with the added advantage of convenient service from the kitchen to the outdoor dining terrace. The dinette, almost as large as the formal dining room, has an attractive exposed brick wall as its one side with open shelves for display purposes. This same masonry unit serves to house the fireplace for the wood-paneled family room. A refreshment bar for convenient serving is set into an alcove directly off this room, located near the "powder room" and laundry appliances should the owner wish to install a bar sink.

The living room is 23' long, has two front windows and plenty of wall space for satisfactory furniture arrangement.

An interior storage and mud room is set at the right side of the house so that it can be entered from the garage, thus serving as a place to get rid of wet overshoes and work clothing before going into any of the rooms. The garage adequately takes care of two cars and, in addition, has a large storage alcove for power equipment and garden tools.

UPPER BEDROOMS

On the upper floor are four bedrooms and two baths. With a minimum of hall space, all rooms are conveniently accessible to the main stair. An abundance of closet space—over 35 linear feet—provides ample storage for a family requiring four bedrooms, all of which have cross-ventilation.

Important to the facade of this house is the vast expanse of roof. Most manufacturers of roof shingles have introduced into their line materials of heavier texture. The play of sun light and shadow on rough surfaces make for an attractive appearance. Wood shingles are shown for the side and rear exterior sidewalls. These may be either of the sawn cedar variety or light-weight hand-sphit.

Architect York uses clapboards and wood vertical boards in the front. Normally, fewer materials are preferable, but in a house such as this, with many breaks and interesting detail a greater freedom of materials can be enjoyed. White sidewalls with a dark roof will provide excellent contrast, with accent color — green or blue — on the shutters.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe-Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan G-89.

Gardeners who want to raise flowers for use in dried arrangements for winter must plan in the spring. There are many kinds of strawflowers and other everlastings that will brighten the home next winter.

Our interest in flower drying stems from visits to the home of Mr and Mrs. Earl Boothby in Limerick, Maine. The Boothbys have huge apple orchards and truck gardens. It was quite a sight to see Louise Boothby, who is less than five feet tall, driving her big, loaded truck to farmers' market in Portland on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

In the fall, the door of Mrs. Boothby's kitchen stove was open and hung with flowers drying in the heat, hanging downward in small bunches. When the flowers had dried out, they were strung on rafters in the attic until just before Thanksgiving, when they also went to market or were distributed to friends.

MATERIALS

You may find materials to process for winter bouquets along rural roads. Included are grasses, weeds, seeds, and berries - milkwood pods, thistles, sumac seed heads, bayberry, ferns, rose hips, cattails, lilac and hibiscus seed pods, red clover, tansy and Queen Anne's lace.

Fine flowers for drying are Acrochinium Ornamental Grass Everlastings, Globe Amaranth, Helichrysum, Honesty, Statice Sinuata Job's Tear and Neranthemum.

Growing Grey Leaved Plants

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

One reason we do not see more of the beautiful grey-leaved plants in gardens is that people do not realize that these perennials and biennials require certain growing conditions. They do not last very long in the ordinary perennial bed.

Grey - leaved plants have on either a fur coat or a set of scales or other special devices that keep in the moisture. They are able to grow in quite dry to very dry conditions because they can hold on to the small amounts of moisture available to them. Their weakness in the ordinary garden is that they may get too much moisture and rot.

POPULAR PLANTS

The beautiful low growing perennial called lavender cotton (santolina) has become very popular in the past few years. It is interesting to see in what kind of places it succeeds and lasts. In the ordinary bed of annuals and perennials, it is gone in a season or two, but in the edges of raised beds or on a slope or flower boxes where people forget to water it as often as they might water other plants, it thrives.

Santolina is our most elegant low growing grey plant. If it gets out of hand, spilling over where you do not want it, do not hesitate to shear it back. When the little yellow button-like flowers appear, just shear them off. They are like daisies without "petals" and not very showy. Since the shoots which flower usually die back and leave a hole, snip off the buds before they develop.

SILVERY BORDER

The perennial called bunny ears (stachys lanata) makes a handsome silvery border. It will put up with more nearly ordinary perennial border conditions than santolina, and I like the spikes of pink flowers it produces. The long leaves that do look like the ears of a white rabbit are the feature of the plant. Just a slight slope or a raised section at the front of a flower bed seems to be enough for stachys to go on from year to year.

If you are lucky enough, you may find the grey - leaved form of veronica in some perennial catalogue. Look for veronica incana. This and other silvery or grey plants will add real distinction to any group of plants. Plant this veronica just behind the lowest border perennials in well drained soil or on a slight slope. When the spikes of bright deep blue flowers have gone, the foliage looks good the rest of the season, so it can just as well go into the very edge of your planting.

Growing Grey Leaved Plants

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

One reason we do not see more of the beautiful grey-leaved plants in gardens is that people do not realize that these perennials and biennials require certain growing conditions. They do not last very long in the ordinary perennial bed.

Grey - leaved plants have on either a fur coat or a set of scales or other special devices that keep in the moisture. They are able to grow in quite dry to very dry conditions because they can hold on to the small amounts of moisture available to them. Their weakness in the ordinary garden is that they may get too much moisture and rot.

POPULAR PLANTS

The beautiful low growing perennial called lavender cotton (santolina) has become very popular in the past few years. It is interesting to see in what kind of places it succeeds and lasts. In the ordinary bed of annuals and perennials, it is gone in a season or two, but in the edges of raised beds or on a slope or flower boxes where people forget to water it as often as they might water other plants, it thrives.

Santolina is our most elegant low growing grey plant. If it gets out of hand, spilling over where you do not want it, do not hesitate to shear it back. When the little yellow button-like flowers appear, just shear them off. They are like daisies without "petals" and not very showy. Since the shoots which flower usually die back and leave a hole, snip off the buds before they develop.

SILVERY BORDER

The perennial called bunny ears (stachys lanata) makes a handsome silvery border. It will put up with more nearly ordinary perennial border conditions than santolina, and I like the spikes of pink flowers it produces. The long leaves that do look like the ears of a white rabbit are the feature of the plant. Just a slight slope or a raised section at the front of a flower bed seems to be enough for stachys to go on from year to year.

If you are lucky enough, you may find the grey - leaved form of veronica in some perennial catalogue. Look for veronica incana. This and other silvery or grey plants will add real distinction to any group of plants. Plant this veronica just behind the lowest border perennials in well drained soil or on a slight slope. When the spikes of bright deep blue flowers have gone, the foliage looks good the rest of the season, so it can just as well go into the very edge of your planting.

Other cities have debutantes . . . . Monroe has graduates . . . . Truly, the three weeks preceding high school graduation hereabouts are filled with such a round of parties as can only be compared to a "season". The schedule gathers steam steadily, reaching a climax with the granting of diplomas this coming week.

Neville's entire senior class (more than 200) were invited when ANN MURPHY was hostess for a shrimp supper at Bayou DeSiard country club Wednesday evening. Tables for ten, each covered with a blue cloth and centered with a hurricane light, were set up in the ballroom and on the porch. Doors between the rooms were festooned with net, blowfish, and cork floats, the whole held by two king-size shrimp wearing mortarboards. The buffet included shrimp in the jackets, dirty rice, green salad, and cake squares.

All Neville senior girls and their mothers were invited to the elegant tea given by CISSY RYAN and JUDY WORTHEN. The party, which honored BETSY TAYLOR, was held Tuesday afternoon in the Ryan residence on Pargoud boulevard. Betsy wore for the party a tent of yellow cotton chiffon with lace sleeves. Her corsage was of yellow chrysanthemums.

Hostesses and honoree greeted guests in the foyer, which was decorated with an arrangement of yellow Dutch iris and chrysanthemums arranged with peacock feathers and eucalyptus branches.

In the living room, magnolias used with natural foliage graced a large square table before the sofa. The guest book lay on a table decorated with king-size yellow paper daffodils.

Centering the dining table was an antique Chinese vase of blue cloisonne filled with yellow Fuji mums, Dutch iris, and blue Italian plumes. Pink lemonade was served with shrimp salad sandwiches, whole strawberries dipped in powdered sugar, and heavenly hash. Those who assisted were TEEDEE DIXON, JOY MARSHALL, and ANNE BERNHARDT.

An Hawaiian theme, foretelling the honoree's summer plans, was carried out at the luncheon given for CARROLL HUSTED last Friday. Hostesses for the affair on the porch at Bayou DeSiard country club were her grandmother, BELLE HUSTED, and aunts, VIRGINIA HARGROVE and CAROLYN SHELTON.

On arrival, guests were served minted green lemonade in coconut shell containers. The green-covered table was centered with a ti leaf holding a lavish display of fresh pineapples, aspidistra leaves, green and yellow fruit and yellow day lilies. Encircling the plates were leis which were given as favors to the seventeen guests. The menu included frozen fruit salad, shrimp salad, finger sandwiches, and raspberry parfait for dessert.

Also on Friday was the breakfast honoring KATHY COON. Hostesses were CONNIE HARPER and LOUISE KELLER, who entertained at the Harper residence, 2305 Katherine.

Twin arrangements of pansies in tiered milk glass containers looped with ivy centered the table. A menu of cantaloupe, orange juice, blueberry pancakes, sausage, tea and coffee was served to twelve seniors who attended.

A swimming party was the compliment planned for BONNIE BANCROFT on Monday afternoon. Hostesses were her grandmothers, VADA BANCROFT and NORMA SNELLING; and her aunts, ARABELLA CANN, PATSY PIPES, and KAY JORDAN.

Streamers and lanterns decorated the yard of the Bancroft residence on Point drive, where the party was held. Some thirty-six guests attended, with swimming and water skiing filling the schedule. The refreshment table, which was set up on the patio, was covered with a green and white striped cloth and centered with a brass bowl filled with daylilies. Sandwiches, dips, cookies, and graduation cake, with bottled soft drinks, comprised the menu.

A morning party in the Point drive home of JUDY TURPIN complimented MARTHA PERRY, MARY BETH CROSSLAND, and ROBERTA COBB. DOT BREARD was co-hostess for the Monday party.

Magnolias were used in the entrance, while yellow chrysanthemums banked in the fireplace decorated the living room. The dining room table was centered with a figurine of an owl encircled with low containers filled with daisies, ivy, and gardenias. Judy and Dot served orange juice, with tiny hot sweet rolls, Brownies, cinnamon cookies, and chicken salad sandwiches. Forty senior girls attended the party.

On Tuesday, EVELYN COLE entertained at her Pargoud boulevard home complimentary to KATHY MOUK and Carroll Husted. The 65 girls gravitated to the playroom, where the player piano was the center of interest for a play-and-sing fest.

Yellow daylilies were used in a container in the lower level of the glass top table. Refreshments were served from a round table centered with daisies in a black wrought iron container. Sandwiches, cookies, sweet rolls, and cakes were passed in wicker baskets. Assisting hostess were JEAN GIFFEN, WAVA FRAZER, and JIBBY FOX.

At noon on Tuesday, JEAN HUENEFELD invited a group of senior girls and their mothers for luncheon at her home on Pargoud boulevard. Arriving guests noted on the front door a picture of an owl and a small sign "Now you're a wise old owl." On the console in the entrance were a Neville annual and an arrangement of gold-colored chrysanthemums.

Jean's special guests, LIL SHAW, MARIANNE SALISBURY, and Betsy Taylor, each received a corsage of yellow mums tied with black and gold ribbon. Eight girls were seated at the table in the dining room, which was decorated with a black wrought-iron owl. At each place was a candy cup in the shape of an owl . . .Six mothers lunched in the family dining room at a table decorated with yellow mums in a brass compote. THEIR owls bore the legend "Now you're a wise old owl's mother".

Kathy Coon invited twelve couples for a swimming party at her home on the Old Sterlington road Tuesday from four to seven p.m. Daisies overflowed from milk cans which stood on the patio and boat dock. A basket of daisies decorated the table, where homemade blackberry ice cream and pound cake were served.

CALLIE COOPER was guest of honor when MEL ELLETT, JEAN DIXON, and JANE PLITT entertained at luncheon Wednesday. The party was held in the Plitt home on Sherwood, with twenty guests in attendance. Callie wore for her party a white A-line frock with blue trim and a corsage of daisies. She greeted her guests in the living room, which was decorated with spring flowers.

Guests were seated at five quartet tables, each centered with a clay pot filled with daisies and English ivy. Gifts of sachet marked each place. Chicken spaghetti, tossed salad, spiced peaches and hot rolls comprised the menu, with lemon bisque for dessert.

Luncheon in the Garden Room at Bayou DeSiard country club was the compliment planned by Anne Bernhardt for Betsy Taylor on Thursday. Lemonade was served to the fifteen senior girls on arrival, and Betsy received a corsage of yellow daisies from her hostess. The white-covered table was centered with yellow daisies highlighted with graduation symbols. The menu were fresh fruit plates centered with whole shrimp and Alaska refrigerator cake for dessert.

Speaking of graduations, your reporter attended the "recital presentation" of fifth and sixth grade classes of Theater School at Strauss Playhouse Wednesday afternoon. Considered opinion: a delightful experience.

The children presented a play in the form of "creative dramatics". That is, they told a story with their own lines and action. This told of a toymaker who made wonderful magic toys which could walk and talk. TOM ULRICH protrayed the toymaker, with eight of the Theater school students in animal costumes as his creations. 'Twas a joy to see DENA BALES in the part of a wicked witch, displaying her versatility in the change from her role of Amaryllis in last summer's "The Music Man." Director MURRY BURFFORD may take pride in this cast.

AND THEY USED BITSY'S PICTURES WITH A CREDIT LINE!

THAT'S TO KEEP THE PRICE DOWN!

CANYON!

WHAT DID I DO WRONG? I JUST GOT HERE!

WITH MYKE —YOU ONLY HAVE —TO BREATHE ALOUD!

CANYON, THESE MEN ARE POLICE OFFICERS.

YOU FLEW IN FROM TEXAS LAST NIGHT WITH A MISS B. BEEKMAN?

YES, SIR...

WE KNOW THAT A SHIPMENT OF HEROIN WAS PUT ABOARD A LIGHT AIRCRAFT IN TEXAS

THE PLANE'S REGISTRATION NUMBERS MATCH MISS BEEKMAN'S PLANE! THIS MORN-ING SHE AND THE AIRCRAFT ARE MISSING FROM HIGH CITY AIRPORT!

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

You know those plastic bottles so many products come in now, such as detergents and bleaches? They are made in many shapes and sizes and are soft and pliable. Being a therapist and registered nurse, I have found many wonderful uses for them.

They make excellent hot-water bottles. They can be hugged to your stomach when you have a stomach pain. If the bottle is concave, it can be filled with warm water and placed under your neck when you have a tension headache.

The same shaped bottle can be used under your leg if you have a knee pain and heat is needed.

This also goes for a patient who needs a cold application instead of heat. The bottle can be filled with water and placed in the freezer compartment of your refrigerator until the water gets mushy. It can then be used for an ice pack on practically any part of the body.

Thanks for helping others, which is what I have done for the last 30 years.

Registered Nurse

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

I found this poem from my husband this morning when I got up to get breakfast:

A shirt I need,
To wear to my job.
So iron one please,
I'll love you a gob!

Karen Byrer

UPSIDE-DOWN LOGIC

DEAR HELOISE:

Try hanging drip-dry blouses upside down to dry.

It's the collar you want the weight of the water to smooth out, not the tail of the blouse.

Ruth

SHINY ALUMINUM

DEAR HELOISE:

I remove the discoloration from my aluminum pots and pans by boiling EITHER two tablespoons of vinegar OR two tablespoons of cream of tartar in a quart of water in the pot for about 20 minutes.

I find this works wonders. Please pass it along to our friends.

Mary McBride

* * *

You just did! And you are as right as can be. This darkness in aluminum is caused by minerals in the water.

I do suggest that you take a soap-filled scouring pad and give the pan a once-over swab (not a hard cleaning) after using this method. These soap-filled pads contain a jewelers' rouge that makes the pot real shiny and you will love it. Just like I love you!

Heloise

WAIST NOT, WANT NOT

DEAR HELOISE:

Being short-waisted I always had trouble with girdles rolling at the waist. So I bought a rubber girdle and trimmed ¾" from the top. Result: Roll-less comfort.

I utilize the cut-off rubber strip to open stubborn jar caps.

A. M. M.

A PEACHY IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

The last time I canned peaches I found a new use for nylon net.

I took a square piece of net (double thickness for extra strength) and placed the peaches on it. By lifting the net at the corners, the peaches could be easily dipped into the boiling water. The peach skin came off slick as a whistle.

Mrs. Gerald Jost

* ** *

And, ladies, this same method could be used for dipping tomatoes in boiling water before peeling.

TASTY BREADSTICKS

DEAR HELOISE:

For something quick and different in the breadstick line, try using biscuit dough.

Roll the dough as thin as pie crust, then brush it with butter and sprinkle with poppy seed. Cut into strips about ½" wide and as long as you like. Bake in oven at about 400° until a golden brown.

Takes such a short time to make them—no yeast to mess with, etc. By serving them piping hot, you'll really make the family happy.

Mrs. Red Taylor

A BATHING BEAUTY

DEAR HELOISE:

Those cute and safe baby tub seats with suction cups can be stuck on the wall above the tub while they are still wet.

They will be out of the way and the water will drip into the tub while drying.

Rose Rowe

PLASTIC BAG DRYER

DEAR HELOISE:

For a convenient way to dry those wonderful plastic bags we all use and reuse...

Turn the ends of a wire hanger up and a little forward of the hook. Slide the wet bags over the turned-up ends to drip-dry. Hang wherever you like.

M. N.

SEAMS ON THE BEAM!

DEAR HELOISE:

When sewing with my machine, I use a small piece of scrap material about two inches square. When I come to the end of a seam, I simply run over the scrap and on to the next seam, then snip with scissors.

That way my needle never comes unthreaded, and it certainly seems to make sewing go faster

J. P.

NEW SCHOOL TIES

DEAR HELOISE:

When my husband's ties become soiled or worn, I just cut off and discard the front of the tie (approximately 12").

By hemming the remaining piece, I have a nice tie for my little boy.

The narrow end of the old tie (which is usually as good as new) is now the front of the new one, and the hem doesn't show.

G. Christiansen

OPERATION "FLOWER"!

DEAR HELOISE:

I am writing this because my mother said it's a good idea.

When you have someone in the hospital who is going to have an operation, send them paper or artificial flowers instead of real ones. They won't wilt the way fresh flowers do.

I usually make paper carnations and use some air freshener on them.
